-- Eighth College President

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Association President Stresses Cooperation

Seaton A. Bonta

It would be trite for me to say that I consider it a privilege to have the opportunity to serve as your President of the Northeast Missouri State College National Alumni Association. I accept this office with a great degree of humility.

Our membership has grown to 1886 charter members including 206 life members as of December 31, the deadline date for our charter membership campaign. The Association is off to a good start and with the organization of committees, I feel certain we can accomplish many things for the mutual betterment of the State College and its graduates and former students, which is the sole purpose of the Alumni Association.

Our Alumni Association will only be as active as we make it. It will take cooperation and help from everyone. If asked to serve on a committee, please help. By doing this you will be taking an active part in helping your Association achieve its goals. Remember, anyone holding academic credit from the College is eligible for membership and we know we have not reached all of our nongraduates. We would appreciate your help in telling them about the Association and encouraging them to join.

I am looking forward to working with our good Director of Alumni Activities, Mr. R. Russell Harrison.

"Teachers" Dropped from College Name; Emphasis Continues in Teacher Education

Northeast Missouri State Teachers College officially became Northeast Missouri State College on January 1, 1968. Announcement of the change in name was made by James R. Reinhard, President of the College Board of Regents following the December meeting of the Board.

The College at Kirksville, the oldest of Missouri's State Colleges, was founded in 1867 by Joseph Baldwin as the North Missouri Normal School and Commercial College. It became the First District Normal School in 1870 and the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College in 1919.

"We are the last of the State Colleges to drop the word Teachers from the name of the College since permissive legislation was passed by the State Legislature in 1945," Reinhard said. "We will not de-emphasize our strong program in teacher education with the name change," he said. "Our prime purpose is and will continue to be the preparation of teachers; however, as in the past, we will always attempt to meet the needs of the high school graduates of Northeast Missouri in numerous other fields of study."

An editorial in the December 16th issue of the Kansas City Times concerning the name change is as follows:

MISSOURI AND ITS STATE COLLEGE SYSTEM

As of January 1, Northeast Missouri State Teachers College will become simply Northeast Missouri State College. This shortening of its corporate title deserves notice—and applause—from the rest of the state. Northeast Missouri happens to be the oldest tax-supported institution of its kind in Missouri. It was founded as long ago as 1867 under the name of North Missouri Normal School and Commercial College. It remained the last of the state's 4-year facilities to preserve the word "Teachers," which it had acquired in 1919.

The change, recently decreed by the school's Board of Regents, is calculated not only to clear up a certain amount of confusion but to provide a more accurate description of the 'kinds' of higher education now available on the Kirksville campus. In fact, Northeast Missouri has no intention of abandoning its traditional teacher-training function. (And in their announcement the regents took care to avoid misapprehension on that score.) Neither, however, have any of the other four state institutions which previously called themselves teachers colleges.

Thus the continued retention of the older nomenclature by Northeast Missouri at least potentially had begun to carry an implication that, except for the state university's schools of education in Columbia and Kansas City, it was the sole public facility maintained for this purpose. Whereas, actually, Warrensburg, Maryville, Cape Girardeau and Springfield all supply similar opportunities and perform a like service.

Equally unfortunate was a further implication that Northeast Missouri might not have participated in the development of a broadened spectrum of programs which had already led Central, Northwest, Southeast and Southwest to proclaim themselves multi-purpose state colleges by title. The truth is that the Kirksville institution has shared in a trend which, besides extending its offerings to cover more general student needs, also works to enrich the range of content courses open to prospective teachers and so to avert an over-preoccupation with techniques.

The decision by Northeast Missouri's supervisory board, therefore, makes excellent sense, both for the state's growing pool of students in search of the right type of school and for this century-old college, itself. It additionally demonstrates a spirit of co-operation on the part of the Northeast Regents and administration which augurs well for a system of control at this level of public higher education, capable of combining any special regional interests with a degree of co-ordination required to achieve maximum efficiency and economy in the use of state funds.

Eight Pioneering Educators . . .

Northeast Missouri State College enters its second century of education under the leadership of Dr. F. Clark Elkins who was inaugurated as the eighth president of the College in ceremonies held this past November.

During the first one hundred years, Northeast Missouri State College graduated nearly 14,000 students on both the Master and Bachelor levels. A large percentage of these graduates entered the teaching profession. Many of the alumni now serve in top academic and administrative positions in the public school systems.

Without the excellent leadership and foresight of Dr. Elkin's seven predecessors, the proper training of these men and women who have reached the high plateaus of education would not have been possible.

The first of these great leaders for the College was JOSEPH BALDWIN who was president from 1867-1881. He was born on October 31, 1827 on a farm four miles from New Castle, Pennsylvania. He was educated in the east and he received his degree in 1852 from Bethany College.

In February, 1867, Joseph Baldwin arrived in St. Louis and inquired about a location for a Normal School. Major J. B. Merwin, editor of the American Journal of Education, and Baldwin's cousin, J. J. Grigsby, influenced him to try Kirksville. He was offered the use of an idle building (the Presbyterian Academy), and opened his school in September, 1867.

After the Missouri Legislature in 1870 provided for the creation of the normal school system, he was named to the Board of Regents. He held this position for one month. The Board adopted his school at Kirksville, making it the First District Normal School and named him as president. He remained at Kirksville until 1881.

Baldwin Hall on the campus contains his portrait and his statue is a central figure standing tall on the campus quadrangle.

Following twenty years of teaching, WILLIAM PICKNEY NASON became the second president of the College. He served from 1881-1882. During his short term in office he gained much prominence and upon his retirement was given the title of president emeritus by the Board of Regents of the Normal School. A dormitory on the campus bears his name and his oil portrait is displayed in the Hall of Presidents in Baldwin Hall.

William P. Nason

The third president of the College was JOSEPH PHILIP BLANTON who served from 1882-1891. Born in Cumberland, Virginia in 1849, Joseph Blanton was educated in various schools in Kentucky and graduated from Hampden-Sidney College in 1864. After graduation he taught two years in Kentucky rural schools, and then moved to Missouri. Following several more years of teaching in Watson Seminary at Ashley high school at Troy, principal of Parker Seminary at Troy, and superintendent of schools at Mexico, he was elected to the presidency of the Normal School at Kirksville in 1882 at the age of thirty-three.

Joseph P. Blanton

He remained until 1891 when he became professor of pedagogy at the University of Missouri.

Joseph Blanton has his portrait in the Hall of Presidents and a major women's dormitory is named in his honor.

WILLIAM DAVIS DOBSON succeeded Blanton as the fourth president of the College. Dobson served as president of the Normal School from June, 1891, until June, 1899. Before his appointment to the presidency of the College, he taught at Lindley in Grundy County; first assistant to the Trenton public schools; superintendent of the Trenton Schools, and Carrollton schools. He also served as county commissioner of education and in 1890 was made superintendent of schools at Moberly. The following year he was appointed president of the College.

The Board of Regents honored Dr. Dobson by naming a men's dormitory after him. The dorm was opened in 1961. His portrait hangs in the Hall of Presidents in Baldwin Hall.

For twenty-six years, 1899-1925, JOHN ROBERT KIRK guided the College through its transition stage from a State Normal School to a State Teachers College. Serving as amanuensis to President Baldwin, and as a graduate of the College, Kirk was able to get an insight on the internal workings of the Teachers College. He began teaching in 1871. He studied law privately and was admitted to the bar at Moulton, Iowa in 1884. He served as city attorney at Bethany in 1888. At the same time he was superintendent of schools and after coming to Kirksville he was admitted to the Adair County Bar and retained that membership for several years although he never practiced law in Adair county.

There are two buildings on the campus named in honor of John R. Kirk. One is the Kirk Building, of which Kirk was the designer in 1922, and the second being the John R. Kirk Memorial which was built at the south end of the main quadrangle. An oil portrait of Kirk hangs in the Hall of Presidents of Baldwin Hall.

EUGENE FAIR, professor of American History and Political Science from 1905 to 1925, became the sixth president of the College in 1925 and remained at that post until 1937. Prior to accepting his position as president, he was a teacher in rural schools, professor of history at the College, and instructor at George Peabody College and an acting professor of political science at the University of Missouri.

The Fair Apartments on the College campus were named in his honor and a loan fund was established at the College in his memory. His portrait is in Baldwin Hall along with the other past presidents.

Walter H. Ryle

DR. WALTER H. RYLE was born in Howard county, and at the age of seven moved to Randolph County with his parents. He is a graduate of a high school near Yates, and holds the Bachelor of Science in Education from Northeast Missouri State College. He received the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from George Peabody College. He has done other graduate work at the University of Chicago and the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Ryle began his public school service as principal of the Clifton Hill High School in 1916-17, and was then named superintendent of public schools at Clifton Hill in 1917. From that post he was given a leave of absence while serving in the United States Army during World War I.

Upon his return to civilian life, Dr. Ryle served as principal of Palmyra High School for two years and as principal and later as superintendent of Holden High School before joining the College faculty in 1928.

F. Clark Elkins

Carrying on the traditions of the past and leading the College into the jet-age, computerized future, will be the task of the eighth president of the College, DR. F. CLARK ELKINS.

Dr. Elkins is a native of Arkansas and a graduate of Paris, Arkansas High School, Arkansas State Teachers College, University of Arkansas and received his Doctor of Social Science from Syracuse University. He has been engaged in post-doctoral study at the University of North Carolina and the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Elkins began his career in the educational field by teaching in the Scranton, Arkansas High School and at Henderson State Teachers College, Arkadelpahia, Arkansas. In his fifteen years at Henderson State Teachers College, he taught history and the other social sciences, served as chairman of the American Institutions faculty, and as chairman of the Division of Social Science.

Dr. Elkins came to Kirksville after serving as president of Chadron State College, Chadron, Nebraska, for five and one-half years.

Dr. F. Clark Elkins Inaugurated Eighth College President, Nov. 7

"I accept the office of President of the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College and pledge to it the best of my abilities, strength and purpose," pledged Dr. F. Clark Elkins as he accepted the charge by the Board of Regents to become the eighth president of the College at ceremonies held in November, 1967.

Presiding over the morning session of the inaugural ceremonies was Dr. A. L. Fritschel, Dean of Instruction. Dr. Fritschel extended recognitions and welcomes to the official delegates of more than 200 institutions and societies and guests. Following his recognition, the NEMO Singers, under the direction of Clay Dawson and the Brass Choir, Harold Copenhaver directing, combined in singing and playing of "O Magnum Mysterium," and "Glory to God."

Greetings from the student body were given by Student Council president, Jack Wright. Jack proposed the student's opinions of a College President "to be a capable educator and to be available for the students."

Speaking for the faculty was Dr. Charles Kauzlarich, chairman of the Business Education Division. Chancellor of the University of Missouri at Columbia, Dr. John W. Schwada, gave the greeting in behalf of the alumni.

Representing the institutions of higher education was Dr. Ben Morton, Executive Secretary, Missouri Commission on Higher Education. The Honorable Warren E. Hearnes, Governor of Missouri, then gave greetings from the State of Missouri.

The "charge" to the new president was given by James R. Reinhard, President of the Board of Regents. Mr. Reinhard pointed out that "this inauguration of Dr. Elkins as the eighth president is the first of the second century, and ahead of us is a great opportunity to rededicate ourselves for the benefit of education and this institution." After Mr. Reinhard presented the "charge", Dr. Elkins gave his inaugural address.

Dr. Elkins cited a few of the major challenges facing higher education today. He expressed a particular emphasis on the teaching function, particularly the teaching of undergraduates, as being slighted today by the three functions: research, teaching and service. Dr. Elkins continued to express the need to restore the status of teaching.

"Secondly, colleges and universities must present in a more effective manner a larger and clearer vision of the importance of education," suggested Dr. Elkins. He emphasized that "We must commit more of our energies toward helping our various lay publics to see that 'the schools of America must save America,' as formerly stated by the American Bar Association.

Dr. Elkins contended that a third major problem facing today's institutions of education related to the many facets of curriculum reform, which is more acute in the undergraduate level.

He recognized that the colleges and universities must show more concern for continuing education and off-campus instruction as a fourth problem. "We should proceed to develop a system of education capable of meeting modern needs and aspirations," proceeded Dr. Elkins on the fourth point. "This leads into still another problem area for higher education—the effective utilization of new technology and the education products industry," continued President Elkins. Teachers are no longer the sole source of knowledge commented the new President.

In concluding his inaugural address, President Elkins acclaimed his pledge; "I pledge to you, Mr. Reinhard, and the assembled friends of this College, the best of my abilities, strength, and endeavors as we face the exciting challenges of the present and future."

Missouri Governor Warren E. Hearnes addressed the Inaugural Luncheon held in connection with the Inauguration of Dr. F. Clark Elkins as the eighth President of the College on November the 7th. Several hundred delegates and guests were in attendance at the luncheon.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Discusses 'Knowledge, Compassion, Money'

Governor Warren E. Hearnes was the featured speaker at President F. Clark Elkins' Inaugural Luncheon. Over 600 official delegates and invited guests attended the luncheon which was held in the Georgian Room of the Student Union following the Inaugural Ceremonies.

Using "Knowledge, Compassion, Money," as a topic, the Governor discussed first Missouri's participation and advancement in the area of higher education. He stated, "... We in state government are doing our utmost to provide the financial backing for buildings and faculty."

He followed this with facts and figures to substantiate his statement that, "We are improving rapidly."

Governor Hearnes then called upon the Northeast Missouri State College to serve all citizens of Northeast Missouri. He suggested, "without de-emphasis of teacher education, you must embrace academic disciplines that allow students to major in other fields."

Continuing he said, "you must do this to carry out our mutual college education within reach, financially and geographically, of every qualified young man and woman in Missouri.

The Governor also offered President Elkins a "thought" for guiding the College into its second century. He stated, "If you can teach knowledge through wisdom, knowledge tempered with logic, knowledge which embodies compassion, knowledge of the realities of life, a view toward what can and cannot be accomplished and a practical idea of how to reach a goal, then we all can maintain our confidence that the young people who seek to change our world today are doing so constructively for a better tomorrow."

Following the luncheon, the members of the College Board of Regents honored President and Mrs. Elkins with a reception. Approximately 1200 students, faculty, alumni, and friends of the college attended.

An Inaugural Ball concluded the day's activities. Music was provided by the Inaugural Orchestra under the direction of Tom Duden. More than 700 guests attended the Ball which was held in the Student Union Ballroom.

Hocker, who is also in the real estate and investment business. Travel has been a life long hobby of the Hockers and travels have included an around the world tour in 1966-1967.

Miss Kaye Johnson Elected Centennial Homecoming Queen

Miss Donna Carlson and Miss Claudia Burkhart
Named Attendants

The largest crowd ever to attend any event on the State College campus was on hand for the Centennial Homecoming festivities, October 27-29. Highlights of the activities included the coronation of the Centennial Homecoming Queen, Miss Kaye Johnson of Marceline, the Alumni Banquet, Centennial Parade, the football game between the "Bulldogs" and Warrensburg "Mules," the Homecoming Dance along with a number of teas, luncheons and banquets held by classes and organizations.

The annual Pep Rally, featuring the Coronation of the Queen, was held on Thursday evening, October 26, in the Pershing Building. Miss Johnson was crowned by football tri-captain, John Newcomb. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rush Johnson of Marceline, Kaye is a sophomore art major at the College and was sponsored by independent students. Attendants to the Queen were Donna Carlson of Dumont, New Jersey, sponsored by Sigma Sigma Sigma and Claudia Burkhardt of Huntsville, sponsored by Alpha Sigma Alpha.

More than 800 alumni attended the Friday evening Alumni Banquet in the Georgian Room of the Student Union. Every class from 1909-1967 was represented along with one member of the class of 1902, Mrs. Martha Sparling Hansen of 1502 Portola Avenue, Palo Alto, California and one member of the class of 1904, Mrs. Margaret Brewer McKasson of 104 North New, Kirksville. The class of 1963 had the largest representation with twenty members present. Many of the classes had more than fifteen in attendance. Alumni were seated according to year of graduation.

Highlighting the evening was an address by President Emeritus, Walter H. Ryle, entitled "Yesterday's Legacy; Today's Challenge and Tomorrow's Dreams."

Three Centennial paintings were presented by Centennial Chairman, Robert L. McKinney and accepted by Board of Regents President, James R. Reinhard. The paintings, the work of William E. Unger of the Fine Arts faculty, included the old Cumberland Academy, the original Baldwin Hall and a view of the total campus during the 1967 Centennial year.

Miss Kaye Johnson reigned as the 1967 Centennial Homecoming Queen. Miss Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rush Johnson of Marceline. She is a sophomore art major at the College and is a member of the College cheerleaders and the yearbook staff. Attendants to the Queen were Miss Donna Carlson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Carlson of Dumont, New Jersey, left and Claudia Burkhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Burkhart, 409 North Main, Huntsville, right.

Centennial Medals for meritorious service were presented to the six members of the College Board of Regents and all of the living former members of the Board.

State College President F. Clark Elkins welcomed the alumni in attendance and read a resolution which had been passed by the Board of Regents commending President Emeritus Walter H. Ryle, Director of the Centennial and Robert L. McKinney, Centennial Chairman, for their efforts in carrying out this year-long observance. R. Russell Harrison, Director of Alumni Activities at the College, served as toastmaster for the evening.

The first meeting of the National Alumni Association and an alumni dance followed the banquet.

The parade on Saturday morning featured 102 units, including thirty floats carrying out the theme of "Centennial—Past, Present and Future." Forty-two bands, including the State College "Marching 100", participated in the parade.

Numerous luncheons were held on Saturday including the Fine Arts Luncheon which honored outstanding alumni and former faculty members of the Division. Coach Marv Braden's "Bulldogs" were edged by the Warrensburg "Mules" 9-0 in the Homecoming game held in Stokes Stadium Saturday afternoon with an estimated 10,000 fans in attendance. The annual dance for alumni and students held Saturday evening closed the official festivities. Numerous organizational banquets and Sunday morning breakfasts were held.

Alumni were housed in motels as far away as ninety miles from Kirksville.

Souvenir Plates Now Available At Alumni Office

The long awaited centennial souvenir plates have arrived. The first shipment came from the Wedgewood firm at Barlaston, Stoke-on-Trent, England in mid-February and are available in the Alumni office.

The arrival of the plates came three years following the announcement of a contest for a design. The competition, which was open to students, faculty, staff and friends of the college, was first announced in the Index on January 27, 1965. As announced the contest closed on May 31, 1965 with the selection to be announced by the judges not later than June 30th the same year.

The prize winning design was submitted by Mr. Charles Elam, Admissions Officer of the college. Subsequent to the selection the design was modified by Mr. William E. Unger of the Fine Arts faculty and some slight changes were made by the Wedgewood firm in the production process.

The souvenir plates, which are expected to become collectors items, feature likenesses of past presidents of the college arranged in a circle with dates of their terms as president. Also shown is Old Baldwin Hall, the familiar statue of Joseph Baldwin and Walter H. Ryle Hall. Printing in the center of the plate along with a ribbon encircling "100th Anniversary" is in purple. Other lettering and pictures are executed in black. A three-sixteenth gold band trims the 10½ inch plate which is basically white. The back stamp states "In commemoration of The State Teachers College Centennial 1967. The design was adapted from a prize winning drawing by C. Elam, Revised by W. Unger." The manufacturer's insignia is also shown.

It had been expected that the plates would be available during the centennial year but difficulties experienced by the manufacturer in producing an acceptable sample extended the delivery date.

The limited quantity of plates is available on a "first come" basis to alumni and friends of the college. An order blank is reproduced elsewhere in this issue of the Nemoscope for the convenience of those who wish to order these beautiful souvenirs of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the college.

The Centennial Plate

A few souvenir items of the 1967 centennial are still available according to Robert L. McKinney, Chairman of the Centennial Committee. The items remaining are some souvenir pocket pieces and a very few miniature reproductions of the lamp of knowledge.

There are also postcards reproduced from a painting of the campus showing it as it was during the centennial year. Those former students and friends of the college who wish any of the souvenirs should act quickly according to the committee chairman.
