President's Letter

I wish I could visit with each of you personally. It would be wonderful if I could have this opportunity. Naturally, it is not possible.

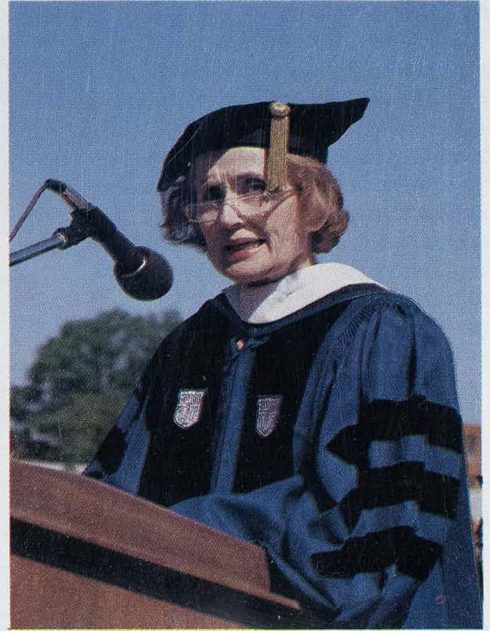

I do, however, want to thank many hundreds of you for your calls, your letters and your greetings. I also thank those of you who have been encouraging prospective students to attend Northeast. These prospective students have written about your support in their applications for admission. We have a very loyal alumni group, and I am proud to be associated with your University.

There are many who deserve special recognition but they would not want to be singled out. Let me just say in closing that each of you is very special. Again, I thank you for your words of encouragement and support.

The new Alumni publication brought an additional surge of pride to me. I am very proud of what the University has become, of what it has accomplished, and of its perspective for the future.

In addition to that my pride is enhanced by that which the University has always meant—the first Teachers College west of the Mississippi with a philosophical heritage that stretches from Joseph Baldwin through his teachers to their teacher, Pestalozzi. (How can we forget our History of Education course!!)

But there is another purpose in my writing. In my new position I am actively seeking qualified teachers—men and women, professionally active and retired—who would be interested in exciting opportunities teaching on United States Navy ships and installations around the world. Anyone so interested should contact me about these opportunities.

Please accept my best wishes for your continued success and for that of the University.

Sincerely,
Bob Rothschild, Ed.D.

Thanks for the Alumni book [The President's List] I received. I have been gone from Northeast Missouri so many years that there are few people there now that I know. However I am happy to keep informed about NMSU and the great work being done there.

Yours truly,
Everett T. Diehl ('29)

I was excited to see the inspirational article on Bill Holper in the recent Northeast Review . . . I was Bill's work-study student the fall and winter before he passed away.

Since receiving my associate degree in Accounting from NMSU, I received my B.S. in Accountancy from Northeastern Illinois in Chicago. My husband is on to me to take the C.P.A. exam, and Bill's words of encouragement also haunt me! Someday. . .

During my time there, I helped Bill in his effort to raise money for C.F. [cystic fibrosis]. I am disappointed that I did not keep a copy of the lengthy story he had written about his life. I am wondering if you may be able to get a copy for me.

We think often of our days at NMSU and feel deeply indebted to the school, for our education and also because Paul was a Pershing Scholar and we were able to live in married student housing in exchange for room and board for a single student. Our parents told us we would Fund; and fifty dollars as my second installment towards the Kohlenberg/Towne Lecture Series.

Also please find enclosed a matching gift from my employer, the May Department Stores Company.

Sincerely,
Howard Burkemper ('78)

Finally I have a few minutes to write and thank you for our copy of The President's List. It is a striking publication and we are proud to have been included. It had to be a monumental job for you and your staff but all the hard work seems to have come to a fitting end.

Sincerely,
Mary Preisack

Thank you for the lovely poster of NMSU campus, focusing on the Baldwin statue.

The soft focus effect of pink flowers in the foreground set off this nice scene.

Thank you for sending me a poster.

Sincerely,
Mildred [Mrs. C. R.] Hooper ('37)

Please accept this belated thank you for the beautiful calendar of a tree on the campus of NMSU. My husband framed it for me using a border of one of the colors in the picture and a gold frame. It means so much to me as I spent most of my school life there from the age of 4 years to 22 years when Dr. Kirk handed me my diploma in August 1922.

We, my husband and I, met with the Alumni in San Diego a few years ago and heard the chorus sing when they were out here a few years ago. I always read your paper when it comes and have fond memories of Kirksville and NEMSU.

Sincerely
Mildred Paine Helm ('22)

I am finally answering your summer appeal for scholarship funds; as you can see, I have made an art form out of procrastination.

I prefer that the enclosed contribution be earmarked for the Vincent Price fund for theatre students, a scholarship J.G.

The [University] . . . must have the stability of the college, the wide awake aggressive spirit of the theorist, the zeal of the experimenter, the common sense of the practitioner, and the inspiration of the artist. With all the world, and all time as its field of observation, the [University] should collect, classify, embody and teach . . . to teach in theory and embody in practice all great educational principles and important educational methods. . . . The [University] must henceforth be the exponent of educational progress, as we make the [University], such all schools must tend to become.

look back on our days there as the best ever, and so far we have, much to our amazement!

Sincerely,
Rita Swales Shultz ('85)

Thank you and Dr. McClain for the handsome President's List which I recently received. Reading through it made clear to me that I'd like to do a little more to assist my alma mater.

Please find enclosed a check for two hundred and fifty dollars. I would ask that you divide it in the following manner: One hundred dollars to enroll me as a life member of the Alumni Association; one hundred dollars to the Development

Severns told me about recently.

I have been living in New York City for five years now, and just accepted a new position as training manager for a law firm. It seems my teaching degree is proving to be much more valuable than I had expected when I made the decision not to go into secondary education. My love of journalism was slowly whittled away by the East Coast lack of ethics. . . . I have since become heavily involved on a volunteer basis with the American Museum of Natural History, and hope to start on my master's in anthropology next fall. In the meantime, the corporate world has been quite an enlightening experience.

I have followed with great interest NMSU's recent growth and development. I find it amazing that an undergraduate degree earned seven or eight years ago can actually increase in value, since it seems NMSU's increasing status is benevolently retroactive.

Good luck in gathering support from other graduates who have met with a modicum of financial success. I will try to keep NMSU in mind as I make my charitable allocations each year.

Sincerely,
Deb Wheeler ('81)

Received the book The President's List and have enjoyed reading through. That is a wonderful production and know it took many hours. You are to be commended for compiling it.

Much progress since 1968. Think it was March, 1968 when I received the information about joining the Alumni Organization. To become a life member send a $25 Series E Bond, which I did.

Then in March 1972 retired and moved to Kirksville. Think my annual contribution started with $50 and has progressed to over $2,000. Now you know I am proud of NMSU.

Sincerely,
Marian Morelock ('31)

Considering that I received my B.S. in education from NMSU in 1964 and my M.A. in English from NMSU in 1967, I have been a long time in getting around to becoming a lifetime member of the NMSU Alumni Association.

These days, though, with wonderful news about NMSU being broadcast far and wide, (Money, U.S. News & World Report just to name a couple of places I have read very gratifying words about NMSU) I feel inspired to join the Association as my way of giving all of you there a pat on the back. Thank you for the reputation NMSU is enjoying, and please use the money I am sending now and the money I will be sending again in 1988 and 1989 to keep NMSU on top.

The good word I have been receiving here on Guam regarding NMSU is not just "in general" either. Among my reference works is the Bedford Guide for College Writers, prepared by NMSU's Shirley Morahan. I feel confident that Ms. Morahan is one of the people who is responsible for the current status NMSU enjoys.

Thank you. I feel privileged to have received my degrees from NMSU. I have completed my residency requirements at the University of Missouri in Columbia for the Ph.D. in English but still have a long way to go before I will be finished with everything entailed in obtaining the terminal degree. Reflecting on the reputation of NMSU bolsters my confidence in my ability to push ahead in order to eventually obtain that degree.

Sincerely,
Sarah A. Schafer ('64)

Please forgive this delay in thanking the university for the gift of the calendar. I misplaced your note and just found it today.

I am extremely pleased to have the calendar—not only is it useful but the picture emphasizes Joseph Baldwin's contribution to the university and that is especially appreciated by me. I am very happy to be able to claim Joseph Baldwin as an ancestor and for many years have been a bit resentful toward the university because of the lack of recognition he received. Needless, to say, I am very proud of him and also of the university.

I wish the university continued success and again thanks for the gift.

Sincerely,
Jenifer M. (Warnock) Sellers ('44)

NMSU had contacted our son about going to your school and offered him a scholarship. He decided to go to another nationally ranked University instead. We were so impressed with Northeast that we asked to remain on your mailing list. Please use the money enclosed for the purpose of recruitment of top students. Many thanks to your wonderful staff. We are hoping Ed yet will consider Northeast.

Enclosed is a check for $25.

Hello. Please find a check for $12.50 for my final payment to the NMSU Development Fund. It is supposed to go to Women's Athletics. Keep calling and I'll keep donating.

I enjoyed the premier issue of Northeast Review. Bonnie Neuner's letter was a reflection of me; I too went to UMC after my years at Northeast and I was glad that I chose to do my undergraduate work at NMSU.

I want to thank you for your help in locating the address of my college friend. (Now I hope she answers my letter!)

Recently I talked to a student volunteer from the Tel-Alumni annual campaign. I must say that she wanted to talk to me because of our common interests. Despite my current employment status, I shall be making a gift to the NMSU Development Fund. Small as it may be, it's the least I can do since Northeast gave me so much and now it's my turn to give in return.

Thanks so much.
Alicia Wells ('82)

I graduated from NMSU in May '78 with a BSE in PE & Health. I would like to become an annual member of the alumni association. Please find enclosed 15,000 lire in cash. I'm sure it's a bit irregular to have cash sent in but I'm presently living in Trieste, Italy, coaching American football for the Muli Trieste. I'm paid in lire & therefore, American cash is not available to me at the present time.

I have coached football here in Italy now for 2 years and am somewhat out of touch with the states & NMSU. My parents received a copy of the Northeast Review & sent it to me. It was great to read about NMSU even though the 'Dogs lost to CMSU on Homecoming. I've many fond memories of Kirksville and I hope to return for a visit sometime in the near future.

It's great to hear about NMSU's new standing in the academic community. It makes me proud of the 'ol alma mater. If I can ever be of help in any way please feel free to call on me.

selected for inclusion in this edition.

"The primary parameters used to identify colleges for inclusion are the percentage of freshmen who scored 600 or over on both the math and verbal sections of the SAT or 26 or over on the ACT, the percentage of freshmen who scored over the national average on the respective tests, and the percentages coming from the top half and the top tenth of their high school class," writes editor Karen Hegener. "We feel that these criteria bring together national and local factors that balance each other. No one of these criteria outweighs any other, and others are used when the figures are not decisive."

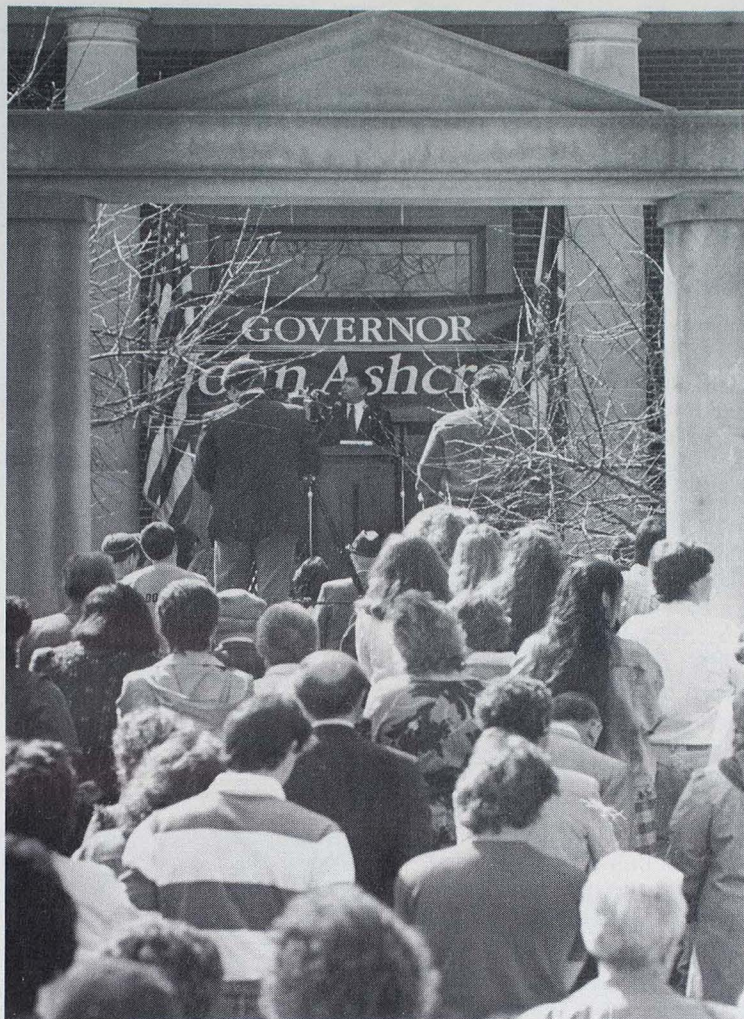

The figures presented for the institutions profiled in Peterson's Competitive Colleges are percentages from the fall 1987 semester. Those numbers show that NMSU had 39 percent of its 1987 freshman class from the top tenth of their high school class and 96 percent from the top half. Forty percent scored 26 or above on the ACT.

Encore, Encore!

The NMSU Wind Symphony has been selected to perform at the 1989 College Band Directors Association biennial national conference at the University of Texas-Austin. The Symphony's performance will be the second for the Band Directors Association.

Because the Association meets every other year, only nine or 10 bands are selected for each conference and they are rarely invited to perform twice in such a short period of time. The University Wind Symphony performed at the 1985 national conference in Boulder, Colo. Dan Peterson, director of bands at Northeast, knows of only three other bands that have been selected to repeat performances in such a short period: the University of Michigan, the University of Texas-Austin and Louisiana State University.

Campaign Trail

Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft announces his bid for re-election on the steps of Kirk Memorial. The Kirksville campus was one of the stops on Ashcroft's two-day, 10-city tour in March. "I'm pleased to be here at Northeast Missouri State University this morning.

Since we came here in 1985 to sign the bill designating this institution as Missouri's liberal arts university, Northeast's value-added program has brought national acclaim to this campus and to our state. Your work has made us all proud," Ashcroft said.

Group Therapy

Dr. William Glasser delivered a one-day seminar on reality therapy in Baldwin Auditorium. His seminar was sponsored by the Division of Education, Kirksville's Transitional Care Center and Laughlin Pavilion. Glasser is a world renowned psychiatrist and founder and president of the Institute for Reality Therapy in Los Angeles.

A Piece of the Rock

Student and alumni members of NMSU's Delta Chi chipped in to literally buy a piece of the rock at an auction of fraternity memorabilia during the 10th anniversary of the fraternity's chartering. The 100-pound red-painted boulder which sits in front of the former fraternity house on Osteopathy Street, netted $525. Proceeds from the auction were contributed to the Delta Chi housing fund.

The auction was just one of the weekend's events. Fraternity National President Larry Audlehelm delivered a speech to the nearly 175 Delta Chi members, alumni, family and friends attending the chartering banquet. Larry Nothnagel ('79), one of the chapter's founding fathers and a member of the national fraternity's Board of Regents, also spoke at the banquet.

And during the weekend, the fraternity not only awarded Joe Crabtree ('40) the chapter's Outstanding Alumnus Award, they also renamed it The Crabtree Award to honor him for his decade as alumni adviser.

Taking a Bite Out of Crime

The Northeast Area Criminalistics Laboratory, located in Pershing Building, received a $94,750 grant from the U.S. Bureau of Justice Assistance through the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1986.

The state of Missouri received more than $3.5 million of the federal funds which were allocated by the Missouri Department of Public Safety. The funds granted to the Northeast Lab are being used to improve lab services in an effort to help northeast Missouri criminal agencies control drug and narcotic problems.

Matt Eichor, who serves as director of the lab, director of the University's Justice Systems program, and is a professor of science and social science, said the funds have been used to purchase a gas chromatograph mass spectrograph, a conventional lab microscope and accessories for an existing Fourier transform infrared spectrophotometer. The balance will be used to assist operational costs.

Eichor said the new equipment will make the lab's capabilities comparable to any lab in the country. The lab has done analyses for every city and county in Missouri within 80-90 miles of Kirksville since its inception on the University campus in 1973.

Eichor said the equipment helps achieve the University's mission of public service by providing better service to the region.

Coming Home Victorious

Those taking part in Homecoming '88 will celebrate the theme, The Colors of Victory, Oct. 7-8. The Classes of 1938, '48, '58, '68 and '78 will celebrate their reunions. The Bulldogs will take on conference foe Southeast Missouri State. More information about Homecoming '88 will appear in the fall issue of Northeast Review.

State Scholars

Some of the state's brightest students are enrolling at NMSU this fall on scholarships awarded by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and the Department of Higher Education.

In 1985, the Missouri Legislature created the Teacher Education Scholarship Program which provides $2,000 scholarships to top-ranking high school seniors who plan a career in teaching. Thirty-five of this year's recipients will be Northeast students.

The Department of Higher Education administers scholarships to Missouri students who rank in the top three percent on the ACT or SAT college entrance examinations. More than 120 of these scholars will enroll at NMSU in the fall.

Spring Speaker Sojourns

Students, faculty, staff and the Kirksville community had the opportunity to hear several speakers on campus this spring. The Issues in Business forum brought Joseph Ciardiello, director of real estate for McDonald's, to campus in February.

The Language and Literature Division brought Memphis State University's Michael and Suzanne Smith Osborn to speak about topics ranging from network television documentaries to gender in advertising.

The Science Seminar Series featured a two-day residency by ethnobotanist Wade Davis of the New York Botanical Garden. Davis is the author of the horror film, The Serpent and the Rainbow, directed by Wes Craven (A Nightmare on Elm Street). Davis' main seminar was titled, "Using Toxic Substances for Psychocontrol (Zombies) in Haitian Culture."

And the first speaker for the Kohlenberg-Towne Lecture Series in the Division of Social Science was Richard Sullivan. The Lecture Series, established to recognize the combined 75 years of service by Gilbert Kohlenberg and Ruth Towne, will annually feature an internationally recognized scholar from the broad social sciences area. The Lecture Series has been made possible through contributions from alumni of the Division of Social Science.

Koop at NMSU

Dr. Steve Thompson ('84) receives a congratulatory handshake from U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop following the 152nd convocation of the Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine. Thompson was one of 21 former Northeast students who earned a Doctor of Osteopathy degree from a graduating class of 118 students. Koop addressed the ethical imperatives of new physicians in his speech, delivered before a crowd in Stokes Stadium, June 6. The ceremony was the first KCOM has held outside.

British Briefing

Two businessmen and one educator traveled from England to the Northeast campus to discuss the University's assessment program. Laing Barden, director of Newcastle Polytechnic; J.W. Gritton, director of the Northern Regional Management Centre; Mark Bandas, director of business placement at NMSU; David Rector, director of NMSU's computer services; Mac Stephenson of the Management Centre; and President McClain discuss the University's mainframe computer facilities. The Management Centre develops business and management competencies. The visitors wanted to study the developments in the assessment of competence and skills acquisition at Northeast.

Principal Calls for Grassroots Approach

Last September, you might have watched The George McKenna Story on network television, starring Denzel Washington in the title role. But the more than 450 guests at the 31st Baldwin Lecture, Feb. 29, had the chance to hear the George McKenna story from the proverbial "horse's mouth."

McKenna, a high school principal, is nationally recognized for leading the transformation of George Washington Preparatory High School in Los Angeles from a gang-run, drug-ridden urban school to one from which 70-80 percent of its 2,900 students now enter college upon graduation.

His success has gained him national attention, including a reference in Gov. Michael Dukakis' Democratic presidential nomination acceptance speech.

McKenna told the Lecture crowd that the excuses for the tenuous state of education, such as poverty, single-parent and "latchkey" homes, cultural, ethnic and language barriers, are "victimizing the victim." McKenna charged that the "phony excuses" will continue until the idea is accepted that "education will work when the educators provide education for the educatees."

"If we, as public school educators, can continue to demand that the children who come to us must be pre-educated in the home, in these Ozzie-and-Harriet environments that no longer exist, as a prerequisite before they come to school. . . if we can get away with that kind of illogic reasoning, then all of the physicians of the world can also demand that all their patients be well before they come for medical treatment because they don't handle sick people," McKenna said. "And it is my fundamental belief that no matter who is to blame, we, as educators, should accept responsibility, which is different from blame."

McKenna also maintains that the public schools aren't victims of society because the public schools form the values of society.

"Don't we have the ultimate power to take, by law, the children from the homes for 12 years and run the most legal dictatorship you will ever find in any society? . . . They're in their most vulnerable position, childhood, and our job is to shape their minds and their values."

McKenna believes public schools should "resurrect the harm" done by society by reshaping the values of society. And this reshaping must come from each individual teacher in a grassroots approach to education. Schools can reshape society by not allowing the best teachers to instruct only the best students, and by not allowing teachers to give up on students who have difficulty learning.

"The drop-out rate is high enough as it is," McKenna said. "Why, now, have a statistic for the 'push-out' rate?"

. . . the public schools aren't victims of society because the public schools form the values of society. . . public schools should "resurrect the harm" done by society by reshaping the values of society. And this reshaping must come from each individual teacher in a grassroots approach to education.

McKenna said schools also need to bolster support among colleagues, encouraging teachers to watch each other teach. Schools should bring in parents as active participants in their children's educations, requiring such participation if necessary. Values education should be instituted in schools, encouraging volunteerism and non-violence. Schools should set attainable, measurable goals and be accountable to those they serve. Students should be taught the basic skills of writing, speaking, reading, listening, thinking, studying and test-taking in every content area, and every subject should reinforce every other subject.

McKenna holds a bachelor's in mathematics and a doctorate in education from Xavier University. He also earned a master's from Loyola University. McKenna has worked in the Los Angeles Unified School District as a mathematics teacher and as an engineer for Northeast American Aviation on the Apollo Moon Shot Project. While continuing his education at Loyola University Law School, UCLA and Caliifornia State University-Los Angeles, he taught at the secondary and college levels, and he moved through the ranks of secondary school administration.

McKenna is president of the Council of Black Administrators of the Los Angeles City Schools and is active in the Los Angeles Brotherhood Crusade, the Union League and the NAACP. He is the founder and president emeritus of the L.A. Alliance of Black School Educators and is a faculty member at California State University-Los Angeles.

Time and People magazines, The Wall Street Journal, Los Angeles Times and The Christian Science Monitor are a few of the publications which have featured McKenna. He has appeared on the CBS Evening News with Dan Rather, The Merv Griffin Show, Hour Magazine and a documentary film, "Chaos to Calm," produced by the California State Attorney General's Office.

Northeast's Baldwin Lecture series is named in honor of Joseph Baldwin who founded the University in 1867 and served as its first president. The series was initiated 31 years ago by former President Walter Ryle. Speakers chosen for the lecture are recognized leaders in the field of education.

Alumni in the News

David Allen ('57) received the Meritorious Service Medal for his 35 years of duty in the U.S. Army and Army Reserve. Allen retired as command sergeant major from the third battalion Army Reserve in Quincy, Ill., last November, after achieving the highest rank possible for an enlisted soldier. Wetrich teaches at Moberly (Mo.) Junior High, and Moore teaches at Macon County R-IV Elementary. They will compete for the state awards at the MAHPERD convention in November.

Obituaries

◆ George Bunney, husband of former Board of Regents President Mary Alice Bunney ('38), died March 22, 1988, at Salt River Nursing Home in Shelbina, Mo.

Bunney was born Dec. 16, 1907, in Foolsland, Ill., to George G. and Mary Wilson Bunney. He married Mary Alice Drennen in Monroe City, Mo., June 22, 1935. A graduate of Shelbyville High School, he served in the U.S. Army in North Africa and Italy, and later in the South Pacific during World War II. He was associated with the Shelby County Family Services for 30 years and served as a technician for the Shelby County ASC for 25 years. He was a member of the Shelbyville United Methodist Church and of the Shelbina AF & AM Masonic Lodge #228.

During his memorial service, the minister remarked about Bunney: "If one listened carefully, there was a note of humor as he spoke. There was a firmness in his handshake that expressed his friendship. There was a smile and a twinkle in his eye each time he greeted me at the door. And we always found something in common to talk about."

Bunney is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mary

Hazelrigg ('69), son-in-law, Ray Hazelrigg ('69) and grandsons, Dennis and Brian Hazelrigg, all of Brookfield, Mo. One sister, Mrs. Harold Mangold of Ellisville, Mo., also survives.

During his wife's tenure on the Board of Regents, 1963-75, Bunney was known as the seventh member of the six-member Board. Mrs. Bunney was the first woman to serve on the governing board. The Bunneys established the George and Mary Alice Bunney endowed scholarship at the University in 1978.

◆ Professor of Exercise Science Max Cogan died Jan. 7, 1988, from a heart attack after boarding a plane at Kansas City International Airport en route to a professional conference in Florida. Cogan, born July 14, 1928, in New York City, was 59.

Cogan received a bachelor's from Central Connecticut State College where he played varsity tennis and basketball, participating twice in the national small college basketball championships. He was voted the Outstanding Athlete in his high school and college graduating classes.

From 1951 until 1953, he served with the U.S. Army as a research analyst and as educational supervisor of North Korean prisoners of war. He later earned a master's at New York University and a doctorate at Columbia University's Teachers College.

Before joining the Northeast faculty in 1966, Cogan taught in the Smithtown, N.Y., public schools, and at the Barnard School for Boys. He was also a recreation leader for juvenile prisoners in the New York City Department of Corrections.

Between 1955-66, he coached basketball, baseball, track and field, cross country, tennis, soccer and fencing. He worked as a tennis professional at the Colonial Heights Tennis Club in Yonkers, N.Y., and at the Dorset Field Club in Vermont. He was also a master tennis clinician for the Life-

Dr. Frederick "Fritz" Lauer ('50) receives a plaque in recognition of outstanding contributions and service to the NMSU Division of Science from Don Walker ('50), associate professor of chemistry. Lauer was honored at a luncheon this spring on the Northeast campus. A recently retired dentist, Lauer owns the Mid-America Denture Clinic in Mt. Vernon, Mo. He is a 1956 graduate of the University of Missouri-Kansas City dental school. Lauer has been a member of the NMSU Board of Governors since 1986. He and his wife, Grace, now live in Raytown, Mo. They have two children.

Although Friday the 13th is sometimes thought to be an unlucky day, such was not the case at Northeast on Friday, May 13. Commencement exercises held that day in Stokes Stadium marked the 118th spring commencement at Northeast and the conferring of more than 900 undergraduate and graduate degrees.

Juanita Kreps, former U.S. Secretary of Commerce and the current James B. Duke Professor of Economics at Duke University in Durham, N.C., presented the commencement address to a packed audience of graduates, faculty, family and friends. Kreps stressed that we spend a great deal of time "preparing for those disasters we are told will soon overtake us.

"Yet today's events are the best answer to that gloomy philosophy. For if you really believed things were that bad, why would you prepare as well as you have?"

Kreps asked the graduates to decide what work they wanted to do and to consider what they will do and will not do in the pursuit of professional success, warning that shortcuts and compromises exist. She stated that it is up to the individual to measure his or her own achievements and define success and happiness.

"The learning you carry away from here will make a vast contribution to your life's work if you will allow. For it is to the enhancement of life and work, far more than the training for a career, that a liberal education is directed."

Kreps pointed out that Americans educate a larger proportion of youth than any other nation in the world. "From this reservoir of trained intelligence we hope to find the brains that will keep us alive," Kreps said.

". . . Know then that your education is not a guarantee of success, but it is a base on which to build a career in business and the professions, and the arts and the sciences. And for those of you who wish to succeed and to accept the responsibilities that go with success, you have come the first step," Kreps said.

Kreps received her bachelor's from Berea College, a master's and doctorate from Duke, and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. In 1972, she was named the James B. Duke Professor of Economics, and in 1973, University vice president. She served as Secretary of Commerce from January 1977 to December 1979 under the presidency of Jimmy Carter. She was the first woman and the first economist ever to hold the cabinet post.

She serves on the boards of several corporations including American Telephone and Telegraph Co., Chrysler Corporation, Citicorp/Citibank, Deere and Co., J.C. Penney Co. and RJR Nabisco.

Currently a director of the Council on Foreign Relations, Kreps was the 1983 vice president of the American Economic Association. She is a former chairman of the Commission on Academic Affairs of the American Council on Education and of the Board of Trustees of the Educational Testing Service. She is a former member of the Council of the American Association of University Professors, former president-elect of the American Association for Higher Education and former vice president of the Gerontological Society.

Five Northeast faculty members were honored with emeritus status during the commencement ceremony:

Elizabeth Evans, assistant professor emeritus of education; Kenneth Gardner, assistant professor emeritus of exercise science; Laura Hulse, associate professor emeritus of business education; Dale Jorgenson, professor emeritus of music and head emeritus, Division of Fine Arts; and Dale Schatz, vice president emeritus and professor emeritus of education.

Faculty Features

Susan Shoaff, associate professor of art, was recently named Associate Dean for Graduate Studies. She assumes responsibilities, July 1. Shoaff replaces Ruth Towne, professor of history, who was appointed graduate dean in 1983. As associate graduate dean, Shoaff will administer and coordinate eight University graduate programs.

Shoaff began teaching at NMSU in 1980, and has served as the University's Undergraduate Council chair for the past three years. She received her bachelor's and master's from Florida State University and her doctorate from North Texas State University. Her professional affiliations include the Missouri Art Education Association, the National Art Education Association and the College Art Association. Shoaff is president-elect of the 400-member Missouri Art Education Association for 1988-89. She will serve as president from 1990-92.

Jeff Romine, ('74) assistant professor of accounting, was recently invited to serve on the American Institute of Certified Public Accountant's (AICPA) national Relations with Educators and Students Subcommittee. Romine has been a member of AICPA and of the Northeast faculty since 1976.

The eight-member subcommittee will establish and maintain relationships with administrators and faculties of accounting programs nationwide, as well as encourage a flow of qualified people into the accounting profession by promoting student interest in careers as CPAs. Romine is one of four academicians serving a three-year term on the committee.

Romine holds a bachelor's degree from Northeast and a master's from the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Jim Barnes, professor of English, has been included in the recently released Harper's Anthology of 20th Century Native American Poetry, published by Harper & Row.

National Exposure—President Charles McClain was one of a six-member panel on institutional effectiveness featured on a national teleconference sponsored by the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges, March 24. Panelists who appeared live via satellite from Washington, D.C., were: Gregory Anrig, president, Educational Testing Service; Rafael Cortada, president, University of the District of Columbia; Patricia Cross, professor, Graduate School of Education at Harvard University; Charles McClain; Kay McClenny, AACJC Board of Directors and assessment specialist; Michael Castle, Governor of Delaware. Also pictured is Dale Parnell, president and chief executive officer of AACJC, who moderated the panel discussion.

More than 15,000 people nationwide participated in and viewed the teleconference.

In his preface, editor Duane Niatum writes: ". . . I have brought together the work of thirty-six poets who attest to the health of both the Native American spirit and American literature. Within these pages you will find poems by several of the most widely read and respected Native American writers as well as a generous selection of poems by new and young writers who are pushing American art and literature in new directions. Together these poets constitute a powerful force in the American literary tradition—one far older, given the oral tradition, than the present republic yet in full-voiced, radiant bloom."

Barnes, a member of the Northeast faculty since 1970, also had his fifth book of poetry, The La Plata Cantata, accepted for publication by The Purdue University Press.

Jenny Morlan, temporary assistant professor of art, has had a painting accepted for a national juried exhibition at Viridian Gallery in midtown Manhattan, N.Y. Her painting was selected from 600 entries by the Whitney Museum of American Art to be one of 32 works of art to be shown at the exhibit, June 29-July 16. The Viridian Gallery is located on West 57th Street, near the Museum of Modern Art.

Hugh Moore, associate professor of English, has been named a consultant to the Commission on Supervision and Curriculum Development in the English Language Arts of the National Council of Teachers of English. Moore has been a member of the Northeast faculty since 1963.

David Williams, assistant professor of communication, is serving as North American program coordinator for a colloquium on argumentation. The colloquium will be held Aug. 7-11 in Venice, Italy. Scholars from the U.S., the Netherlands, Italy, Finland, Morocco, Germany and France will participate. Williams will be responsible for soliciting and selecting papers from American argument scholars.

Faculty Books

◇ Columbia University Press has published the book, The Cold War Begins in Asia: American East Asian Policy and the Fall of the Japanese Empire, written by Marc Gallicchio, assistant professor of history. Gallicchio, a first-year faculty member at Northeast, earned a bachelor's and doctorate from Temple University, and a master's from Penn State.

◇ Humblot & Duncker publishing company of Berlin accepted for publication Maren Partenheimer's book, Die Tragweite Goethes in den Naturwissenschaften. Partenheimer, a second-year assistant professor of German, earned a bachelor's at the University of California, and master's and doctoral degrees at the University of Utah.

◇ In February, Waveland Press published an interpersonal communication textbook titled The Road Trip: An Interpersonal Adventure, co-authored by Randi Nevins, instructor of communication.

Presidential Presentation—University President Charles McClain presents Herman Wilson, professor of English, with a framed certificate from the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) Professor of the Year competition. Wilson represented Northeast in the 1987-88 national competition. He has been on the English faculty since 1968.

Candid Conversation—Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Huenemann visit with 1987-88 Fellowship holder Debbie Lindblom during a reception in Dr. Huenemann's honor, Feb. 19. The Language and Literature Division established the C. V. Huenemann Fellowship in 1987 to recognize the contributions Dr. Huenemann made in the development of the graduate program in English during his tenure at the University, 1956-1981. The Fellowship is awarded annually by the English faculty to the English master's candidate considered to be at the top of the class in academic achievement and professional promise. The recipient is offered a full-time one-year teaching appointment in English upon completion of his or her master's degree. Priscilla Riggle of Elk Grove, Ill., received the second C. V. Huenemann Fellowship. Mr. and Mrs. Huenemann live in Holts Summit, Mo.

The Making of a Corporate President

Two very important things were founded in 1867: the North Missouri Normal School in Kirksville, and Mallinckrodt in St. Louis. The North Missouri Normal School is now Northeast Missouri State University. Mallinckrodt is now Mallinckrodt Inc. The North Missouri Normal School was the first normal school in Missouri and one of the first west of the Mississippi River. Mallinckrodt was reportedly the first chemical company located west of Philadelphia. But the two have even more in common. They both share a piece of Ray Bentele ('60).

Raymond F. Bentele was born in Macon, Mo., Nov. 22, 1936. He served in the United States Army from 1954-57 during the Korean War. He then returned to attend Northeast and earned a spot in the first class to graduate with accounting degrees.

Bentele said that creating a professional degree program in accounting was "not a bed of roses for the first accounting students." Nonetheless, he found Eugene Croarkin ('49), Ruth Towne ('39), and the late Ralph Monay and Pauline Knobbs ('24) inspirational teachers who left a good impression on him.

But Ray Bentele created another "first" before he graduated with the first accounting degree. He helped create that momentary group in NMSU history acronymically called the B.B.W.C.'s. Those who attended Northeast between 1958 and 1970 might remember this group, called "B.B.'s" for short. Those who have ever visited the famous Tap Room located under the Travelers Hotel have probably noticed a wooden sign which simply reads, "B.B.W.C.'s." What was the B.B.W.C.'s? According to an article in the Oct. 15, 1958, issue of the INDEX, "A new organization formed purely for the social enjoyment of its members has appeared on campus this fall." They had official jackets, a pep song, meetings and social functions, and Ray Bentele of Macon, Mo., was its president.

Thirty years after the founding of the

B.B.'s, Bentele still holds fast to the "sacred vows of secrecy" its members swore to uphold. He still won't reveal the meaning of those four letters, but he will tell a little bit about the men who formed the organization.

The founding of the B.B.W.C.'s was in many ways a result of the Korean War years. A lot of men, like Bentele, were entering college after serving in the Armed Forces. Some of those veterans joined traditional social fraternities on campus. Others didn't feel comfortable pledging with other men several years their junior. And although the B.B.'s membership roster included a few fraternity men, many of its members found it to be an alternative to Greek life.

The B.B.W.C.'s had a 21-member limit and three basic requirements for membership: members must be bachelors; at least 21 years old; and be in good academic standing at Northeast. Bentele described the B.B.'s as no favorite to the administration at Northeast because they were "independent, off-campus and not chartered." Because they weren't a chartered campus organization, in fact, they had to "manipulate" an entry into the 1959 Homecoming parade. The group located an "old, decrepit truck" in Macon, a still, a bathtub with iron legs, an outhouse complete with a moon-shaped cutout on the door and crock jugs, most of which were filled with "the real stuff," Bentele said. Members of the B.B.W.C.'s rode the float clad only in bib overalls and hats on what Bentele said was "probably the coldest Homecoming day on record." The float, titled "B.B.W.C.'s Brew School Spirit," won one of the top awards that year. But the guys were frozen by the end of the race, the truck nearly died several times and it was tough to find any B.B.'s still at the football game to accept the award.

Renegades at times, most of the members were good students active in other campus organizations. They attended all out-of-town football games, and even composed a cheer still echoed at games. It was George Nelson ('59), a member of the B.B.'s, who penned those famous lines of "Big Purple Team":

*Bulldogs, Bulldogs, Bow-Wow-Wow,
We got the steam.*

*And we will fight, fight, fight
And never say die,
Onward to victory.*

George and his brothers, Al ('61) and Rich ('63), were all members of the B.B.'s. But their greater claim to fame was the fact that Ozzie and Harriet were their aunt and uncle, and yes, Ricky was their cousin.

Today, George and his wife, 1957 Homecoming Queen Judith Paradise ('59), live in Quincy, Ill. He is a history teacher and soccer coach at Quincy High School. Judith is an academic adviser at John Wood Community College. Al is an athletic director and physical education teacher in Margaretville, N.Y., where he and his wife, Carolyn, live. And Richard is a field producer/director with CBS Sports. He and his wife, Joanna, live in Pasadena, Calif.

Bentele has come a long way from his presidency with the B.B.W.C.'s. Today, he is president and chief executive officer of the $650 million-a-year Mallinckrodt Inc. Engaged in development, sales and distribution of medical products, flavors and fragrances and speciality chemicals, Mallinckrodt operates internationally with more than 5,500 employees.

Mallinckrodt has flourished with Bentele at the helm. He fought off a hostile takeover attempt and agreed to a purchase by Avon Products Inc., who sold Mallinckrodt to International Minerals and Chemical Corp. A June 27, 1988, feature in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch calls Bentele a "survivor" who has kept Mallinckrodt intact. In the Post article, Bentele said: "Keeping our team together was a challenge. There was tremendous anxiety and doubt during the periods when we were changing owners. We did the maximum we could in communicating with our people."

Only the fourth CEO in Mallinckrodt's 121-year history, Bentele must be doing something right—Mallinckrodt now holds the key to the success of its parent company.

When Bentele left Northeast, he became a Certified Public Accountant and joined a major firm until 1965. In 1962, he married Mary Edith Cox, also a 1960 graduate of Northeast. He then joined a savings and loan association as treasurer and controller before moving to Mallinckrodt as a financial analyst in 1967. He was controller from 1971-77, vice president for financial administration from 1974-77, vice president for the international group from 1977-78, senior vice president and group executive for international group and food, flavor and fragrance group in 1978 before becoming president of the corporation. In 1979, he added chief operating officer to his title and in 1981, became chief executive officer. In 1986, Mallinckrodt merged with International Minerals and Chemical Corporation and Bentele became senior vice president for that organization in addition to his positions with Mallinckrodt.

Bentele's professional affiliations include a second stint as director of the Chemical Manufacturers Association, director of Centerre Bank, a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and a past officer and director of Avon Products Inc.

He is director of the Arts & Education Council of Greater St. Louis and a member of Backstoppers and Civic Progress. He is on the executive board and national council, past commissioner and currently vice president of the St. Louis Area Council for the Boy Scouts of America. Bentele is active in the United Way of St. Louis and a member of the St. Luke's Hospital board of directors. He is the past director of the Regional Commerce and Growth Association and a past member of the St. Louis University President's Council and the Rockefeller University Council. This spring, he helped Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft kick off his re-election campaign by chairing the St. Louis fundraiser held at the Adams Mark Hotel.

Ray and Mary Bentele are members of the John R. Kirk Society and honorary life members of the Alumni Association at Northeast. Bentele delivered the spring commencement address to the Class of '82. This past spring, he delivered the keynote address at the first Presidents' Banquet (see sidebar). Although he has witnessed the vast changes in the University over the years with a few mixed emotions, he sees many blessings.

"There's a need nationally, in the state and regionally, to produce graduates who are better qualified to compete in a world, particularly in this country, where we tend to be falling behind, unable to compete with graduates and students from other lands. I think that's the main 'good' coming out of [Northeast's] program," Bentele said.

"I've had the opportunity, in traveling the world a lot, to spend time in places like Japan and Korea, Germany, Switzerland and England. And I've not made a study of it, but I've certainly talked to a lot of other parents in those countries and have known their children. And I've heard them speak of their problems with their university systems. I hope we inspire quality organizations, such as NMSU, but I also hope we support general academic achievement in schools.

"The value of a degree from this school has been greatly enhanced. . . . That has real merit. It's put it [NMSU] on the map. It's recognized as a leader."

—Michelle Terhune-Yost

Presidents' Banquet

Leadership was the apt topic of Ray Bentele's address to the leaders of NMSU's chartered organizations. Following are excerpts from his speech:

"There was an ad in the Wall Street Journal a few years ago by a large corporation called United Technology. I don't remember what the ad was really about, but I will never forget the headline. It said, 'People don't want to be managed, they want to be led.' People seek leadership. They want to join in the pursuit of goals and values that they perceive as worthwhile. And while no one can deny that competent management is essential to any organization or effort, it's the leaders in this world that provide visionary inspiration, motivation and direction. Leadership generates an emotional connection between the leader and the led. Leadership attracts people and inspires them to put forth incredible efforts in a common cause. Leaders shape the culture and values that distinguish their organizations from all others.

". . . Some people say that born leaders have that mystifying characteristic of charisma engraved in them. But I think that leadership traits can be developed in those of us who are not innately charismatic. Certain behaviors, though, can be spotted in all great leaders. And if you know what those behavior patterns are, and you could learn them, pick them up and refine them, you could strengthen your own leadership skills.

". . . Perhaps Thomas Wolfe was correct when he said, 'If a man has a talent and cannot use it, he has failed. If he has a talent and uses only half of it, he has partly failed. If he has a talent and learns somehow to use the whole of it, he has gloriously succeeded and won a satisfaction and a triumph few people ever know.'"

Student Standouts

On Capitol Hill

◆ Sophomore Anne Ware represented Northeast at the 19th Annual Student Symposium in Washington, D.C., in March. The Symposium is sponsored by the Center for the Study of the Presidency.

The theme of the Symposium was "Congress and the Presidency in Economics and Foreign Policy: A Bicentennial and Quadrennial Appraisal." Speakers included Chief Justice Warren Burger, Secretary of the Treasury James Baker and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan.

Ware, a political science major, is from Muscatine, Iowa.

◆ Junior Craig Mackaman is one of 21 students nationwide selected by FBI Director William Sessions to participate in the agency's summer Honors Internship Program. More than 300 students applied.

The program exposes outstanding college undergraduate and graduate students to the FBI to promote their future interest in the agency as special agents or as technically trained support employees. Sessions appoints students to the program based on academic achievement, interest in law enforcement, and life and work experiences. Each applicant undergoes an extensive background investigation, physical examination and a drug screening test.

Mackaman is a justice systems major from Marshalltown, Iowa. He is working at the FBI's headquarters in Washington, D.C., this summer.

◆ Sophomore media communication major Michelle Blotevogel is currently attending the Institute on Political Journalism at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

Blotevogel, the student representative to the NMSU Board of Governors, received a full-tuition scholarship worth more than $1,400 and the Charles Edison Memorial Scholarship, which covers the $500 special events fee for the program.

The Institute, which was started in 1985, is designed to provide classroom instruction as well as hands-on experience through an assigned internship. Blotevogel will receive six hours of college credit by attending Economics in Public Policy and Ethics and media classes. She will also intern with Senator Larry Pressler (South Dakota) and attend weekly meetings with a panel of professionals representing all media fields.

Blotevogel is from Carrollton, Mo.

Creative Coups

◆ Senior advertising design major Jeff Thomas won first place in the annual Anheuser-Busch Inc./Soulard Mardi Gras Association Poster Art Contest. Thomas was awarded $500 for his winning entry at a ceremony held at the Anheuser-Busch Tour Center in St. Louis.

More than 50 people entered the contest, which was open to all artists, designers, illustrators, college and university faculty and students. The second place award went to a professional artist in St. Louis.

Some 5,000 copies of Thomas' illustration were printed for use as the official Soulard Mardi Gras poster for 1988. Thomas signed and numbered 100 posters to be sold to private collectors. The original hangs in the Anheuser-Busch Tour Center.

◆ Three NMSU students won top awards and six others won honorable mentions in the 1988 Missouri Governor's Employment of the Handicapped Poster Competition. The theme was "Employment: Passport to Dignity."

Junior business administration major John Melton of Union, Mo., won first place in the statewide competition and honorable mention in the national President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped poster competition. The award established Melton's design, a personalized Missouri car license plate for handicapped labor, as one of the top three in the nation. Each state submits one design for the national competition. Melton's poster was exhibited at the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped's annual meeting in Washington, D.C., during May.

Junior art major Laura Borderwick of Blue Springs, Mo., won second place in the state competition, and sophomore art major Mark Schepker of Maryland Heights, Mo., won third place.

Six NMSU students received honorable mention in the Governor's competition: sophomores Steve Barr of West Des Moines, Iowa, Steve Brenner of Poplar Bluff, Mo., and Scott Fader of Bridgeton, Mo.; junior Kim Guthier of St. Louis; and seniors Jerry Dwight of Ottumwa, Iowa, and Rich Teson of St. Charles, Mo.

◆ Senior Mike Gillum's untitled black-and-white photograph won fourth place in the Eighth Annual College Photography Contest sponsored by Photographer's

Forum magazine. The competition included more than 18,000 entries.

Gillum's photo and the first, second and third place photos were published in the May issue of Photographer's Forum, and will be published in the Best of College Photography Annual: 1988.

Judges for the contest were: Fred Hutton, chairman of the photography department at the Art Center, College of Design; Joe Deal, chairman of the art department at the University of California-Riverside; and Stacy Geiken, instructor of photography at the Brooks Institute of Photography.

Gillum is a photography major, formerly of Bowling Green, Mo.

The Foreign Legion

◆ Sophomore business administration major Steve Kalfus was selected for the German department internship at the Hermes Insurance Company in Hamburg, West Germany. Kalfus is from Kirkwood, Mo.

Senior German major Kirk Arnold was awarded a scholarship to attend a summer program and serve an administrative internship from the Christian-Albrechts-Universitat in Kiel, West Germany. Arnold is from Centralia, Mo.

And junior German major Chris Ringwald of St. Charles, Mo., was presented one of three Grawemeyer Awards of $1,500 for undergraduate research in Germany. The award funds in part attendance at The Mind and Nature Conference for the Future of Human Civilization in Hanover, West Germany, and study at Christian-Albrechts-Universitat in Kiel, West Germany.

◆ May graduate Marc Jackson received the 1988-89 American Association of State Colleges and Universities/Taiwan Scholarship, which covers books and tuition for a year of study at the Mandarin Training Center, Taiwan Normal University in Taipei, Taiwan.

The Ministry of Education in Taiwan offers the scholarship which is administered by AASCU. Jackson is one of 15 students chosen from applicants nationwide to participate in this year's program.

He is the second NMSU student to win the scholarship. Susanna Acosta ('87), recipient of the 1987-88 scholarship, is presently studying in Taiwan.

Exploring the Chinese language and traveling to mainland China are two things Jackson is looking forward to. He plans to attend graduate school and study U.S./East Asian relations, specifically China. He is planning a career with the foreign service.

Jackson earned a bachelor's in history in May. He is from O'Fallon, Mo.

Research Review

◆ Thirteen NMSU students had abstracts included in the Second National Conference on Undergraduate Research at the University of North Carolina-Asheville. More than 500 students nationwide presented their research at the April conference. Following is a list of Northeast students and their faculty mentors:

Kenneth Carow (senior, St. Louis): Jason Lin, Business and Accountancy

Lucy Grelle (junior, St. Louis): Garry Gordon, Fine Arts

Jason King (junior, Canton, Ill.): Gordon Franke, Science

Kelly Knock (junior, Mediapolis, Iowa): Michele Martel, Social Science

Kristi Lowenstein (senior, Clinton, Iowa): Austin Jay, Science

Richard Marshall (sophomore, Smithville, Mo.): David Groh, Science

Gregory Meier (senior, St. Louis): Jason Lin

Lorinda Meyer (senior, Independence, Mo.): Michele Martel

Bernice Michaels (senior, Addison, Ill.): Kenneth Fountain, Science

Lynate Miles (senior, Warrensburg, Mo.): Robert

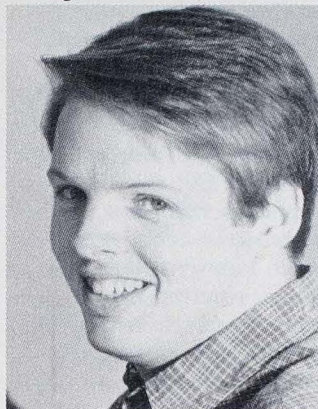

Graber, Social Science

Mary Plassmeyer (sophomore, Freeburg, Mo.): Joyce Hearn and Patrice Thomsen, Family Sciences

Jon Salmon (junior, Washington, Ill.): Kenneth Fountain and Kenneth Carter, Science

Ann Tappmeyer (senior, Old Monroe, Mo.): Kenneth Fountain

Physics Fellow

John McNabb

Physics major John McNabb received a $17,000 graduate fellowship from the National Science Foundation. He will receive a $1,025 stipend for up to 12 months, and $6,000 for tuition per year during his graduate studies.

McNabb, who was one of four valedictorians for the spring 1988 class, earned a perfect 4.0 cumulative grade point average. He will attend Cornell University in the fall, but was also accepted at Stanford, Princeton and Texas Tech.

McNabb is from Queen City, Mo.

Piano Forte

Paul Higdon, who earned bachelor's degrees in music and marketing at spring commencement, was awarded first place at the Collegiate Artist Piano Competition at Western Illinois University in February, and first prize at the 1988 Collegiate Piano Competition at Arkansas State University in April.

In Macomb, Ill., Higdon was chosen from 12 contestants representing colleges and universities from the tri-state area. He received a $150 cash award and a performance in the master class given by Claude Frank of Yale University. He received $600 for his Arkansas performance, competing against students from Arkansas, Missouri and Tennessee.

Higdon has studied with David McKamie, assistant professor of music, for the past four years. He is pursuing a Master of Music degree from NMSU and plans to eventually earn a doctorate in performance.

Higdon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley P. Higdon of West Burlington, Iowa.

Gubernatorial Group

NMSU was well represented at the 1988 Governor's Leadership Forum, Jan. 6-7, in Jefferson City, Mo. Senior Steve Knuppel of Jacksonville, Mo., and juniors John Laurent of O'Fallon, Mo., Lori Payne of Vandalia, Ill., and Michele Sandberg of Cambridge, Ill., participated in the sessions which featured more than 20 speakers and discussion participants, including Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft. Students from each Missouri college and university were selected to attend.

Some of the participants included Al Quie, former congressman and governor of Minnesota; Sanford McDonnell, chairman and CEO of McDonnell Douglas Corp.; Arthur Mallory, former Missouri commissioner of elementary and secondary education; Larry Conners, news anchor for KMOV-TV in St. Louis; and Stanley Grimm ('54), judge of the Missouri Court of Appeals.

time Sports Education Project of the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

While at Northeast, he was active in the American Association of University Professors, holding several local and state-level offices. He also taught tennis for the Adair County YMCA. He published numerous articles and delivered presentations relating to body image, stress and tension control, motives for participation in physical education, quality instruction and curriculum innovation.

Cogan is survived by his wife, Nancy, and six children: Charles, Deirdre ('86), Elin, Dana, Tasha and Caitlin.

◆ Former music professor Roy Houser of Canton, Mo., died Dec. 23, 1987. Houser was born in Centerville, Iowa, Feb. 11, 1920. He graduated from Centerville High School and attended the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., where he earned a bachelor's degree. He taught and performed for 20 years at the Indiana University School of Music. He then taught at the University of Dubuque, the University of Colorado and Eastern Kentucky University before becoming an adjunct professor of music at Northeast.

Houser is survived by his wife, Kathryn Buban Houser ('74), of Canton, Mo. She is an assistant professor of business education at Culver-Stockton College in Canton. He is also survived by his sons, Walter Houser of Silver Springs, Md., Thomas of Boston, and stepson Stephen John Knorr of Centerville, Iowa.

◆ Charles Kauzlarich ('35), former head of the Division of Business at Northeast, died Nov. 2, 1987, in his Kirksville home following a prolonged illness. Born April 7, 1914, in Novinger, Mo., he earned a bachelor's degree in business education at Northeast and a master's and doctorate from the University of Iowa. He was head of the Division of Business from 1954 until his retirement in 1976, when he was bestowed the titles of Professor Emeritus of Business and Head Emeritus of the Division of Business. He is survived by his wife, Laura Angela Smart ('41) of Kirksville; sons Vance of Germantown, Md., and John W. ('69), D.O., of Pensacola Beach, Fla.; a brother, Joe, of Waterloo, Iowa; and a sister, Eva Lintner ('30) of North Kansas City.

◆ Former Professor of Social Science Education Pauline Knobbs ('24) died Nov. 8, 1987, in Kirksville Manor Care Center where she had been a resident since Oct. 26, 1987. Born Sept. 11, 1903, in Palmyra, Mo., Knobbs graduated from Palmyra High School and received her bachelor's degree from Northeast in 1924. She earned a master's and doctorate at George Peabody College, teaching Army Air Corps classes from 1943-44.

Knobbs taught at Kirksville Junior High School and Kirksville High School where she was head of the social science department. She joined the Northeast faculty in 1939, teaching at the University until her retirement in 1974. During her tenure at Northeast, she helped establish the University archives. She received the title Professor Emeritus of Social Science Education upon her retirement.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Dr. Wallace Knobbs, Dec. 18, 1940.

SCHWENDEL-LINCOLN COLLECTION BEGINS ITS 10TH YEAR

Ten years ago, the Schwengel-Lincoln Collection was dedicated during ceremonies on the NMSU campus. The collection of Abraham Lincoln memorabilia had been donated by Fred ('30) and Ethel ('30) Schwengel of Arlington, Va. And for a decade, students, faculty, staff and visitors to the University have reaped the rewards of the increasingly more valuable collection housed in Pickler Library.

In addition to the collection, the Schwengels sponsor the annual Lincoln-Schwengel Contests at Northeast, featuring art, essay and oratory contests in high school and collegiate divisions of competition.

Schwengel, who served five terms in the Iowa House of Representatives, eight terms in the U.S. Congress, and has been president of the U.S. Capitol Historical Society since 1962, donated his collection to Northeast because he first learned about Lincoln while a student here.

At the dedication in 1978 Schwengel said, "It's also an opportunity to give back something to an institution that gave me so much."

And the Schwengels continue to add to the collection of more than 3,000 items to keep the 16th president alive at their alma mater. When they visited the collection during this year's Schwengel-Lincoln Contest, for example, they added an 1865 rare book to the collection; one Schwengel's friend, poet Carl Sandburg, had recommended several years ago. It was Carl Sandburg, an ardent admirer of Lincoln, who piqued Schwengel's interest in the former president when the two met in 1928. His admiration for Sandburg and Lincoln have prompted him to work on his current book in progress, tentatively titled, "My Experience with Abe and Carl," and subtitled, "Lincoln for the Year 2009."

Why 2009? That year marks the 200th anniversary of Lincoln's birth. It was Schwengel who authored the bills to commemorate Lincoln's 150th anniversary, the 100th anniversary of the Civil War and the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's first and second inaugurations. Schwengel calls the 150th anniversary celebration, "the greatest session of tribute by a man, for a man, by anyone in the world."

It was Schwengel's friend, Democrat Sam Rayburn, who requested that Congress put Republican Fred Schwengel in charge of the Lincoln celebrations. His selection marked the first time Congress had elected a joint committee head from the minority party. As Schwengel said, "It pays to be friends with the Democrats."

Schwengel, who is also president of The Republican Heritage Foundation, authored the recently released book, The Republican Party: Its Heritage and History, published by Acropolis Books Ltd. The Republican Party is available through The Republican Heritage Foundation Inc., 200 Maryland Avenue, N.E., Suite 301, Washington, D.C. 20002. The next issue of Northeast Review will carry a review of this highly acclaimed history of the 130-year-old party.

NMSU Hosts NCAA Division II National Golf Championships

University of Tampa won its second straight NCAA Division II Men's Golf title at the NMSU-hosted tournament, May 20, at Marriott's Tan-Tar-A Resort and Golf Club in Osage Beach, Mo.

The Spartans of Tampa were led by Jeff Leonard, the defending 1987 individual first-place medalist. Leonard's victory went into the record books since he is the first player to capture two consecutive Division II crowns.

Host NMSU finished 14th as a team behind an 11th place individual finish by junior J.P. Velasco. Velasco and teammate, junior Dan Mulhearn of Chicago, Ill., were elected to the NCAA All-District team for district 5. Northeast Coach Bill Richerson, head of the Division of Health and Exercise Science, was selected district 5's Coach of the Year. Velasco, of Santiago, Chile, also became the first NMSU golfer to be selected to the NCAA Division II All-America first team. He had been selected to the second team the two previous years.

In 1985, the Golf Coaches Association of America initiated the East/West Match which was played the Monday before the start of the Division II tournament. The coaches selected 12 players from the All-District teams for the East team and 12 players for the West team. Velasco and Mulhearn competed for the West team but were defeated by the East.

The tournament marked the first time Northeast has hosted a men's national championship. In March 1982, the University Natatorium was the site for the first-ever Division II Women's Swimming and Diving Championships which were broadcast on ESPN cable television.

Northeast has competed in the last three national golf tournaments, finishing 16th in 1985, 14th in 1986 and 12th in 1987 in Columbus, Ga.

Guy Curtright's Major League Baseball Record Broken by Benito Santiago

When Benito Santiago of the San Diego Padres broke the modern record of a major league baseball rookie batting streak, he erased a 44-year-old mark held by Guy Curtright ('34), former Northeast player.

Curtright hit in 26 straight games as a 1943 rookie for the Chicago White Sox. Santiago shattered that record in a game with the Houston Astros, Sept. 25. Santiago's streak was halted at 34 by the Los Angeles Dodgers, Oct. 3.

As an athlete in the early 1930s at Northeast, Curtright was a two-time all-MIAA football selection at guard and all-state choice once. Former Bulldog coach Don Faurot recruited Curtright to play football, even though he had not played before coming to college. Curtright was picked twice for the all-MIAA basketball team and led the Bulldogs in scoring four seasons. He also lettered four years in baseball.

He played 14 years of professional baseball, four of them with the White Sox. After retiring from baseball, he spent 24 years as a high school coach in the Chicago area.

Curtright is a member of the NMSU Athletic Hall of Fame and a charter member of the Illinois High School Baseball Coaches Hall of Fame. He is now retired and living in Lakewood, Colo.

Lady Bulldogs Place Fourth in National Tourney

In what was predicted to be a season for rebuilding, the Lady Bulldogs finished fourth in the NCAA Division II National Softball Championships and posted a 35-14 overall record for this year, breaking the NMSU record for number of wins in a season.

Despite a disappointing third-place finish in the MIAA tournament this year, the Bulldogs received an at-large bid to the NCAA Division II South

Regional in Lakeland, Fla., where the team posted a 3-1 record to win the title. The Bulldogs had to settle for fourth at the final four tournament in California, losing to eventual national champ California State-Bakersfield and California State-Northridge.

Lady Bulldog Coach Tarry Parrish ('74) was chosen the MIAA and Central Region Coach of the Year. Senior pitcher and third baseman Deb Weno of Iowa City, Iowa, was MVP of the MIAA Conference and was selected to the NCAA Division II All-America first team. Weno led the Bulldogs this year in batting average (.304), hits (38), RBIs (27), total bases (66), ERA (0.87), shutouts (9), and innings pitched (177). She ended the season with a 17-9 record from the mound with 95 strikeouts. She set nine new University records during her four years on the team.

Freshman shortstop Trisha Horn of Bloomfield, Iowa, was selected to the MIAA first team and the South Regional all-tournament list. Pitcher Keitha Pickrell of Ottumwa, Iowa, was the MIAA Freshman of the Year and on the Central all-region first team. Junior outfielder Sherry Thompson of Ottumwa was voted all-league and Central all-region second team. Junior second baseman Andrea Bambrough of Madison, Wis., was selected to the MIAA and NCAA Final Four all-tournament teams. Sophomore third baseman Jennifer Fields of Milan, Mo.; freshman first baseman Trish Lillygren of all-tournament team. Junior outfielder Joann Ruddy of Ottumwa made the MIAA first team.

Kansas City, Mo.; and Robin Houseman of Muscatine, Iowa, were on the South Regional

ALL-AMERICAN—GTE's Don Atteberry presents Bulldog senior Kristin Lesseig with an award for her selection to the 1987 GTE College Division Women's Academic All-America At-Large Team. The team was selected by the membership of the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

Lesseig, a member of the Bulldog women's golf team and a 1988 spring graduate in physics, is the first member of an NMSU women's athletic team to be chosen to one of the GTE/CoSIDA All-America first teams in any sport. Athletes competing in cross country, track, golf, fencing, field hockey, gymnastics, ice hockey, lacrosse, riflery, skiing, soccer, swimming, tennis, volleyball, water polo and wrestling are eligible for the Academic At-Large Team. They must be regular performers or top reserves with at least a 3.2 cumulative grade point average. They must also have completed one full academic year at their current university or college.

Lesseig is one of only 10 athletes on the women's At-Large first team. She has been the number one golfer for the Lady Bulldogs for the past two years. She finished 19th at the National Small College Invitational last year.

Lesseig is a Pershing Scholar and a member of Alpha Phi Sigma honorary scholastic fraternity at Northeast. She was one of 28 golfers from college and university division women's teams chosen to the National Golf Coaches Association Academic All-American team last year, and was one of only five college division players to make the Coaches Association list. She is the daughter of Samuel, associate professor of mathematics and computer science, and Dee Lesseig, assistant professor of nursing.
