SUMMER
1963

President's Corner

There are seven divisions in the Administrative Organization of our College and the blue print calls for two other administrative divisions, the Division of Student Affairs, and the Division of Institutional Research and Field Studies. Commencing on August 1, 1963, we shall implement the Division of Student Affairs. The Head of the Division will be known as Dean of Student Affairs.

Mr. Henry M. Boucher has been appointed to this important position. He is an alumnus of our College and is a native of Northeast Missouri, having been born and reared in Randolph county. He received his Bachelor of Science in Education degree from our College in 1931 and his Master's from the University of Missouri in 1936. He has done additional graduate work since receiving his Master's degree. Mr. Boucher is an experienced schoolman. He has taught in the elementary schools, served as elementary principal, junior high school principal, high school teacher and as superintendent of public schools. When appointed he was superintendent of the public schools at Kahoka where he has been for the past five years. He was also a member of the Board of Regents of this College, a place he has filled since 1960.

The Division of Student Affairs will have supervision and administration of all student activities on our campus. This Division has many important responsibilities and duties such as the supervision of the student loan funds, the housing of students, the supervision of fraternities and sororities, the Homecoming activities, student labor other than College work, student social activities and discipline problems along with many others.

The Division will be temporarily housed in Kirk Memorial building. The implementing of this Administrative Division will be a decided benefit to both students and faculty. Problems relating to student activities have grown immensely as our student body has increased over the past few years from a few hundred to nearly 4,000.

I feel that we are extremely fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Boucher, who as an experienced schoolman has successfully dealt with student problems for many years. Dean Boucher deserves the cooperation of everyone as he proceeds to organize and implement the task that has been given to him.

CORNERSTONE LAYING FOR RYLE HALL

Cornerstone laying ceremonies for the new Teachers College dormitory, Ryle Hall, were held at 2 p.m. on Thursday, May 23. The afternoon's events began with a procession by members of the senior class, faculty, and the Board of Regents from Kirk Building to the site of the dormitory.

After the College Band, under Conductor Thomas Duden, played the National Anthem, The Rev. Marvin Fortel of First Methodist Church gave the invocation. The Honorable P. M. Marr, president of the Board of Regents, introduced distinguished guests at the ceremony.

The cornerstone laying address was given by the Honorable Hubert Wheeler, State Commissioner of Education. A graduate of Southwest Missouri State College in Springfield and the University of Missouri, Mr. Wheeler taught and served in various administrative school positions in several Missouri communities before becoming the state's first Commissioner of Education in 1947. For his work in this position, Commissioner Wheeler has been cited by the University of Missouri for distinguished service to education.

Martin B. Dickinson, Grand Master of Masons in Missouri, was in charge of laying the conerstone. After earning an A.B. degree from the University of Kansas, Mr. Dickinson received an LL.B. from the University's School of Law, where he currently serves as a lecturer on legal ethics. He is a member of the American, Missouri, and Kansas City Bar Associations and has many honors on his Masonic record.

Singing of the college song "Old Missou," directed by Dr. Stephen Hobson, and a benediction by Rev. Fortel concluded the program.

When Ryle Hall opens officially in the fall, it will be the largest building on the Teachers College campus. A five-story brick building in Georgian style architecture, the dormitory contains a total square footage of 128,737 feet. It will house 613 women.

The dormitory contains 285 sleeping rooms, designed in suites of two, separated by a bath. All of these rooms will be painted in pastel colors, and the baths are of ceramic tile. The rooms are furnished in early American style, with twin beds, study desks, chests of drawers, and lounge chairs. The building also contains five recreation lounges, a large library room, and a music room. There are four apartments for house mothers' residences.

The main entrance to the dormitory leads into a large formal reception lounge, which is fully carpeted and partially paneled. The building's lower floor features a modern dining room, which will seat more than 400, and a smaller private dining room. Modern stainless steel equipment is featured in the large kitchen and serving area.

The work order for this $2,135,592 building was issued on April 20, 1962, and work began shortly after that time. Thomas Construction Company of St.

Joseph is the general contractor for the building, with the electrical work having been done by Osborn Electrical Company of St. Louis. Plumbing is by Industrial Plumbing and Heating Company of St. Clair, kitchen equipment by Southern Equipment Company of St. Louis, and furniture by Chapman-Young Furniture Company of St. Louis. Architects are Pearce and Pearce of St. Louis.

Commissioner Wheeler's address appears on the following page.

ENGAGED IN HISTORICAL RESEARCH

Dr. P. O. Selby, who retired from the deanship of the College in September, 1960, has kept busy during the past three years in historical research, much of it related to the history of the College. In 1962 the College published his book on the Board of Regents in which the biography of each man who has served on the Board since 1870 is given. He collected biographies of 123 deceased faculty members and this the College published in March, 1963, a book of 80 pages. Copies of either of these publications are available for the asking.

In the summer of 1962 Dr. Selby made a study of the "Battle of Kirksville" which the Nemoscope published. In the winter of 1963 he collected facts about the Coal Mining Industry in Adair County which was printed serially by the Kirksville Daily Express. The Nemoscope is planning to print a cut-down version of this research.

Dr. Selby is investigating and hopes to complete a number of local biographical studies. However he found that there was no index to local newspapers and he is therefore busying himself on a chronology of Adair County happenings since 1880 as found in the newspapers in our Library. He estimates that this will involve cataloging 5,000 items. Dr. Selby is also collecting materials for the Missouriiana Library and has added 1,200 items since January, 1962. He is soliciting high school yearbooks, local directories, and telephone books from any point in Missouri and thinks the Missouriiana Library is a good place to deposit family trees, local histories, and records of state-wide church, lodge, and business associations.

The Continuous Surge Forward in Education

We live in a bright and shining, highly productive and glorious new nation. As individuals and as a nation, we are guilty at times of not remembering our great heritage. It has been only 186 years since the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776. Some of us here have lived through almost one third of our nation's history, some more than one third, and some only a few years.

As we meet today on this fine campus of one of our state colleges, we are mindful of our inheritance. We must also be dedicated to the ideals which have made our nation great. We must leave to those who follow us an even greater opportunity to perpetuate this land of the free than was left to us by those who have gone before. The future will demand as much of us as does the present, and, as did the past.

A review of history tells us that people have always looked to the future with both fear and hope. In some eras, one of these may have been more dominant than the other. But most of the time, the reason for both was one and the same. So it is today.

Man's progress in the various fields of knowledge has led him to a position where he can destroy civilization, or he can make of the earth a garden spot for all mankind. Even though the struggle will be a long and laborious one, I choose the optimistic picture for the future. Our hope for the future of mankind is the same as it has always been. It is in education for the masses

by

Hubert Wheeler

State Commissioner of Education

throughout the world in order that there may be common understanding.

We can safely say that one of the high ideals of our nation has continuously been rooted in a program of education. As in other facets of our growth and improvement, we have followed the practice of doing what a free people thought best for the period in which we live. It has been difficult for some to discard the outmoded in order to plan and construct for the future. Many false, and sometimes foolish, arguments have been made in opposition to progress.

Not long ago I read what one of the London newspapers had to say when that ancient city was considering street lights for the first time:

1. It is against the divine plan because God ordained that the day should be half light and half dark.

2. Doctors object because people will stay out late, lose sleep and catch colds.

3. The police object because it will scare the horses and embolden the criminals.

4. The citizen will become accustomed to the lighted street and thereby be robbed of the restful pleasure of the glow of his light in his own room.

There are those today who try to hold onto the outmoded past in education. There are the critics who know of a better way at less cost. But the growth and improvement has been remarkable.

I. When I started to school, the elementary school had not yet been accepted and financed as a common school in that some of the children did not go and others did not attend the full term. At that time, the school year was short. In rural areas, many districts had no more than six months. The children old enough to work on the farm might attend only four months.

World War I showed our illiteracy rate to be far too high, and so Missouri passed its compulsory attendance laws in 1919. The elementary school became a "must" for all. At first, people doubted that they could afford the long term and the well qualified teachers.

II. After this big step in elementary education, came the move for four years of high school for youth who wanted to attend. New curriculums were proposed to meet the needs of a varied high school population. The whole nation was discussing the ability of our economy to finance such a venture. There was the usual opposition. It gradually weakened, and we have only recently achieved this second goal. Much needs to be done yet to provide a good school with competent teachers for every high school youth. But I think we all agree that the second great step forward has been made. The high school is now a common school. It is available to all, free to the boy or girl. Our nation is stronger by far, more able to meet its domestic and world commitments because of its high school program.

III. The third big educational era is now upon us. It is the offering of a college education to every youth in America who can meet acceptable standards and who may thereby improve his lot personally and add strength and vigor to his nation and to the world. You know of the predicted increase in college enrollments for the future. A number of ways will, I am sure, be provided to care for the varying capacities of our youth, consistent with their ability, and the needs of the nation and society in general.

Institutions by the hundred—such as the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College—have made strides forward in the past ten years that would not have been dreamed of when Dr. Ryle became President of this institution 26 years ago. Under the leadership of the President and the Board of Regents, not only has the instructional program here been greatly strengthened, but, as is quite obvious, the physical plant continues to be expanded and modernized. In recent years, in addition to other plant improvements, there have been constructed a new Science Hall (1955), Industrial Arts Building; Home Management House (1956), the new Health and Physical Education Building (1958), and a number of student residence halls (about seven). Today we are laying the cornerstone for another fine dormitory. These additions typify the growth in our better institutions of higher education. However, "the past is prologue" and, without a doubt, the next ten years will bring phenomenal advancements and improvements on every level of education from kindergarten through the university.

IV. How shall we view the future? Must progress be based on fear? Can we hope for unity among the great powers of the world? Is there to be justice and a peaceful solution for the hitherto sleeping peoples of the earth? Can conflicting ideologies be resolved before the world's atomic power is loosed in war? How can we decrease crime and poverty and ignorance and so many of our impediments to world order as the earth—at its present rate of increase—doubles its population every 35 years?

It seems reasonable to conclude that the best solutions to these problems will be taught to our college youth by the best minds of our country who serve as instructors in our colleges.

I repeat: Our hope for the future lies in adequate education for our nation and for all peoples of the earth.
