President's Comments

I continue to be impressed and encouraged by the fierce loyalty of Northeast graduates. Hardly a day passes that this meaningful fact isn't brought to my attention. Many of our new students in 1978 will be sons and daughters of alumni or brothers and sisters of alumni. As we examine the concept of limited enrollment, we want to give priority consideration to applications for admission of those students who have a hereditary tie to the school. This will be a part of the answer to the question, "Who should come to Northeast?"

Additionally, we think the following persons can benefit by attending Northeast:

- a. those who will most benefit others later in life;
- b. those who will benefit most from Northeast's particularities;
- c. those who will contribute most to other students;
- d. those who are the most qualified;
- e. those who have demonstrated the ability to do independent work, critical thinking, and serious intellectual endeavors.

Would you share your ideas with me about who should attend Northeast? I hope to hear from many of you so that we can include your thoughts and dreams in our plans.

Dear Russell:

On the list of missing alumni you have the name of Margaret Ruth Thomas '26—she lives at:

32 D. Molly Pitcher Blvd.
Whiting, N.J. 08759
(201-350-5263)

I've been meaning to write. Sina Cochran Vaughn (nursing instructor '1920's) gave me her address. Sina lives at:

39 Patterson Court
Creve Coeur, Mo. 63141

I think she was back for a reunion lately.

I've had letters from four friends and classmates since the winter '77 NEMOSCOPE came out. Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor:

This will inform you that my father, A. Dennison DeVilbiss, passed away this past September 20th.

I know that he was always appreciative of the education he received at Kirksville and that his experiences there provided a lifetime of fond memories.

Sincerely,
CDR Robert J. DeVilbiss

Dear Mr. Harrison:

I delayed requesting these memberships because I wanted the membership cards to arrive near Christmas.

Also, I do need one more membership application. As you can tell, seven of my twelve children have attended NMSU.

Thank you for your efforts. I sincerely believe that home ties and education are a great influence in maintaining stability in family affairs, even though some times by long distance media.

May God bless you and yours.

Dear Editor:

I have long received the paper—how I do not know as I never before joined the Alumni Association. I have always enjoyed it and decided it was time I subscribed.

I graduated in 1927 and wished I could have attended the 50 year meeting this fall but couldn't.

In 1928 I married W.D. Buckner and have lived in several places since, but the last 40 years in Garden City, Mo. Mr. Buckner died last February. I was unable to keep and attend to our property in Garden City so I sold it and moved recently to John Knox Village in Lee's Summit. Here I am comfortable but very lonely, for a time at least. I am getting toward 80 years old and was not able to care for as much property as we had.

When I graduated I was Elizabeth Lane Ellett.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Buckner

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Sincere thanks for the fine paper you sent from Kirksville. I enjoyed reading about my dear old Alma Mater. I graduated in August of 1970 with an M.A. in Elementary Guidance.

My three summers at N.E. Missouri State University were indeed a memorable experience because I had some great men and women for my teachers—Dr. Goins, my special friend; Dr.

Wright and another gentleman whose name I can't remember.

Please give them greetings.

Gratefully,

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Thank you very much for sending me the NEMOSCOPE regularly. I am very interested in reading the NEMOSCOPE and other publications put out by the Alumni Office because leaving KSTC seventeen years ago I have been loving my alma mater.

President, Dr. Charles J. McClain, said: "I wish you were here." Now I would like to say "I wish I were there next Homecoming."

I have read the NEMOSCOPE News articles over and over. Of them the article on "Parents' Orientation helps Mom and Dad to cope" is very interesting to me. In which it mentioned that parents also receive a copy of "The College Adjustment Dictionary (For Parents only)." May I ask you to send me one copy of this booklet as soon as it is convenient for you? Although I am not a parent of a student at NMSU I am sure I will be in several years. Well, I'll close for now, and I hope to hear from you real soon. May Our Lord Bless You Always.

Sincerely yours

Dear Mr. Harrison:

I was pleased to note the article by Jeannette Lovern on the Kirksville Energy Awareness Program in the Winter 1977 volume of NEMOSCOPE. I commend you and Ms. Lovern for presenting such a fine article on an important activity for the University and the community.

I am pleased that the Ozarks Regional Commission has been able to assist Kirksville and the University with this project. We are very much concerned with the efficient use of our current energy resources and the provision of future energy supplies to ensure the economic well-being of the people in the five states that are members of the Ozarks Regional Commission—Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, and Oklahoma.

As an alumna of Northeast Missouri State University, I am especially pleased with the role that the University is playing in helping to meet our energy challenge. I look forward to the time when my schedule permits me to visit Kirksville to see for myself all that is being accomplished!

Sincerely,
Pat Danner,

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Enclosed find my check for annual dues in the NMSU Alumni Association. I would also like to share with my alumni friends some experiences I have had in the past year and I hope you will list them in the next NEMOSCOPE.

Crisis and change face universities, speaker says.

How a university can prepare its students to meet the modern-day crisis and change was discussed by Dr. Henry A. Bamman, well-known educator in language arts, at the 21st Baldwin Lecture held Monday, Feb. 27, at Northeast Missouri State University.

Bamman (B.S., A.B. 1946) is professor of education and director of reading education at California State University in Sacramento.

He told the 250 persons who attended the lecture that "We have survived major crises in this nation, and the current disenchantment of our people with Viet Nam, Watergate, desegregation, inflation, and a loss of faith in our schools only emphasizes the need for education to lead us out of crisis, as education has repeatedly done before."

American education itself is in a state of crisis, he said. Contributing factors to this crisis are declining enrollments, expanding physical plants, drastically reduced budgets for higher education and no place for new faculty members.

Despite these drawbacks, a renewed emphasis on general education showing that "all knowledge is related and cohesive" should help a university to meet its goal to prepare students for life.

"The greatest meaning in life is through productive work, and education should be a blend of utility and inspiration," Bamman said. "We must be honest enough to reaffirm that the realities of making a living have always been deep in the tradition of the liberal arts."

The skills to gain knowledge should come with an education as well as those needed to find a job.

When alternatives of the future are decided, he said, the decisions will be made by the people prepared by today's universities.

"What are we, in the colleges and universities, doing to prepare leaders to guide the education of the very young—the pre-school children, who in increasing numbers no longer enjoy the advantages of the intact family—and the masses of the aged, the retired, the bored, the infirm?"

To answer this question, Bamman called for a master plan of higher education in every state to define the roles of the community college, the four-year college and the university.

The curriculum of these institutions of higher education needs to be "designed to achieve a balance between self-expression and the cognitive skills of acquiring knowledge of selected academic areas" to educate a student for a rich personal life.

The language arts expert also asked for an increased emphasis upon all aspects of communication. More familiarity with all symbols including mathematics, computer science and visual symbols of television also should be encouraged.

"Every person has an unlimited heritage that resides in books, in television, in movies, in art, in music, and in drama.

But to gain access to that heritage, the individual must be initiated into a state of literacy, with a knowledge of what language can do for us and to us."

To teach that state of literacy should be the job of all professors, he said. "If gaining knowledge and understanding is a basic goal for the student in a particular college course, should not the specific tools of language that are peculiar to that content be of concern to the professor?"

The entire school system is responsible for literacy of young people, not just elementary, secondary or higher education.

Bamman suggested further that "No graduate of a university should be granted a diploma unless that individual gives evidence of basic skills of writing and reading."

In conclusion, Bamman said, educators of today are equal to the challenge of change just as they always were.

The Baldwin Lecture is held in honor of the founder and first president of the University—Joseph Baldwin. Prominent educators traditionally are invited to discuss issues confronting society in general and teacher education in particular.

Copies of Bamman's remarks and other Baldwin Lectures are available in hard-back edition through the University Publications Office, McKinney Center, Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville, MO 63501.

Alumni scholarship winners

Five sons and daughters of alumni of Northeast Missouri State University have been selected to receive 1978-79 Alumni Scholarships.

The number of applications was considerably larger the second year the scholarships were offered. Many of the applicants already had received the Regents Scholarships.

The Alumni Scholarship covers the cost of in-state tuition for the 1978-79 academic year at NMSU. The scholarship is renewable if the recipient maintains a 3.75 grade point average on a 4.0 scale and satisfactory progress toward a degree.

Winners must be high school seniors eligible to enroll for fall 1978 semester. In addition, they must have a B average and a superior record of activities while in high school.

The winners are:

Martin Jay Cannaday, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Cannaday of North Brunswick, N.J. Mr. Cannaday received his B.S.E. in 1950.

39 to visit Mexico

A tour bus with 39 students will travel South of the Border on June 17 through July 10 as part of the 13th annual Mexico Travel Workshop sponsored by Northeast Missouri State University.

The workshop is open to high school, undergraduate and graduate students as well as interested members of the community.

To enroll, a participant must complete registration by May 25.

The 24-day tour has been extended to 11 days more than previous tours, Walter H. Ryle IV (B.S.E., B.A. 1954; M.A. 1956), director of Latin American studies, said. The workshop also offers one more hour of academic credit or four hours of undergraduate or graduate credit.

The bus will leave Kirksville early on Saturday, June 17, to travel to Monterrey, San Luis Potosi, Dolores Hidalgo, San Miguel de Allende, Acapulco, Mexico City, Oaxaca, Ciudad Valles, Villahermosa, Cuernavaca, Taxco, Merida, Cancun and Puebla and will return on Monday, July 10.

The tour also will visit four major archeological sites at Teotihuacan, Monte Alban, Mitla, Palenque, and Chichen-Itza.

All tickets necessary for admission to historical and archaeological sites are included in the tour price of $570 per person. This fee includes round-trip transportation from Kirksville, hotel accommodations, and tuition and workshop fees.

For additional information, interested persons should contact workshop director, Walter H. Ryle IV, director of Latin American Studies, Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville, MO 63501.

Star Trek's Mr. Spock announces new movie

The Spaceship Enterprise may fly again if a Star Trek movie is made this summer, actor Leonard Nimoy told a crowd that packed Baldwin Auditorium on March 16 at Northeast Missouri State University.

Nimoy's lecture called "Spock and I" completed the 1977-78 Lyceum Series.

Nimoy will play the role of Spock again in a movie under negotiation is produced. He said he would hope that any new version would include the entire original cast.

If legal differences between himself and Paramount Studios are overcome, Nimoy said the film probably would be produced. The legal differences are over the income earned from the use of Nimoy's likeness for Spock dolls, games and other merchandising.

The popularity of Star Trek has increased despite the nine-year time lapse since the science fiction television series was produced in 1966-69.

One of the reasons Nimoy cited for its continued popularity is that science fiction as depicted in Star Trek is becoming fact. He was present at the dedication of the U.S.S. Enterprise Space Shuttle, a reusable space vehicle.

He also believes that the inhabitants of Earth are not alone in the universe, he said. "I'm convinced there's life on other planets. I have no other proof than the mathematics."

Another reason for the success of Star Trek is "it challenges the imagination of the viewer to do some thinking."

Nimoy himself had to use his imagination to portray the character of Spock. "...You can't exactly go to the library and look up books on Vulcans," he said with a smile.

While the series was made, Nimoy said every day for 12 hours during three years, he would have to assume the identity of the half-Vulcan, half-Human Spock.

Three years is the longest Nimoy, 47, said he has played any character. So Spock has had "a very deep and profound effect upon my life."

The lean six-foot actor received three successive Emmy nominations for his performance as Spock.

He developed the character as "a process of imagination and the help of the writers."

Because he helped to create Spock, Nimoy said that "Spock will always be with me."

Educator speaks at teachers meeting

Dr. Paul Greene (B.S.E. 1940), director of teacher education and certification of the Missouri State Department of Education, presented the main address at the spring meeting of the Northeast Missouri Teachers Association on Friday, March 3, at Northeast Missouri State University.

About 400 teachers attended the session despite inclement weather. Usually about 2,000 attend.

Greene discussed "School and Home Together; An Update on Education in Missouri" as related to the meeting's theme of "Stepping in Unison."

He talked about the changes in the education requirements for teachers.

The major aspect to affect teachers will be a requirement of a 2.5 grade point average on a 4.0 scale or a C+ B- average for anyone requesting certification as a teacher in Missouri after Sept. 1, 1982.

Greene also anticipated a change in the life teacher certificate to a renewable certificate every five years. More college credit would have to be earned for a teacher to update his or her certificate.

Portrait of emeritus faculty member dedicated

ARTIST AND HIS PAINTING--William Unger, University professor of art, unveils a portrait of Otho Barnett.

Otho Barnett, head emeritus of the Practical Arts Division at NMSU, was honored at a banquet of the Fifth Annual Industrial Arts Association of Missouri Conference held Saturday, March 4, at Northeast Missouri State University. About 200 persons attended the banquet.

A portrait of Barnett, also associate professor emeritus of practical arts, was unveiled. The painting will hang in the Industrial Education Building. The artist who painted the portrait is William Unger, University professor of art. Unger was commissioned through funds obtained from donations of practical arts alumni and friends of Barnett.

At the banquet, Barnett's long history of service to NMSU was recalled in the dedication ceremony narrated by Dr. Roland Nagel, head of the Practical Arts Division.

Barnett's career at the University began in 1939. He became head of the Practical Arts Division in 1942. In addition to those duties, he served as coordinator for the university building program for 15 years.

His first association with NMSU came as a student when he earned a B.S.E. in 1928. Barnett continued his education with an M.A. in 1938 from the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Before he worked at the University, Barnett taught at the Kirksville Junior High School in 1926 and at the Kirksville Senior High School from 1928-38.

When he retired from the University in 1968, Barnett had contributed more than 40 years to education, Nagel said.

Barnett and his wife, Martha, live at 1205 South Lewis. They have two daughters, Jane Barnett, assistant professor of physical education at the University; and Mrs. Mary Priebe of Burlington, Iowa.

Coordinator for the activities honoring Barnett was Duane Cole, University assistant professor of industrial education.

Lichty named as education leader

Dr. Elden A. Lichty, a 1928 graduate of NMSU, was presented a 50-year award by Phi Delta Kappa, professional education honorary, on Jan. 24 in Bloomington, Ill.

Lichty, professor emeritus of education at Illinois State University, received a framed certificate from the international headquarters and a Phi Delta Kappa pin with a 50-year attachment from Donald E. Melican, president of the ISU chapter of the fraternity.

Lichty previously has been honored for his part in the development of the public community college system in Illinois and for service to the Illinois State athletic program.

He served the Illinois Department of Public Instruction as a consultant for junior college programs and coordinated ISU programs for junior college teachers and administrators.

Lichty received the first "Stretch" Miller Friend of Sports Award in 1976 for meaningful support to the ISU athletic program. He was a member of the ISU Athletic Board from 1956-65 and was head timer for ISU basketball from 1947 to 1964.

He retired in 1969 after having served ISU for 24 years.

After he attended Northeast, he went on to earn his master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Missouri-Columbia.

New Regent named from Monticello

NEW REGENT--Hilburn Fishback (center), a farmer from Monticello, was recently sworn in as a Regent at Northeast Missouri State University. Also pictured are University President Charles J. McClain (left) and Sen. Norman Merrell of Monticello.

Hilburn Fishback, a Monticello farmer, is the newest member of the Board of Regents of Northeast Missouri State University. He was appointed to the post Jan. 30 to fill the remaining year of the unexpired term of the late William R. Quinn. Fishback was unanimously confirmed to the position by the Missouri Senate on Feb. 8.

Senate President Pro-Tem Norman Merrell, who sponsored Fishback's appointment, called Fishback "an excellent choice for the position and an individual who will have the best interest of both the students and state in mind."

He and his wife, Rose, had two daughters, Terry Lynn Fishback Ashford of Hutchison, Kan., and Jan Marie Fishback, a junior at NMSU.

Fishback has served on the Canton R-V School Board and the MFA Exchange Board. Currently he is president of the Williamstown Senior Citizen Housing and is active in many community activities.

Counselors give helping hand to high school seniors

by Cathy Dvorak

A university is a pretty scary place to a high school senior.

Helping him or her to cope with those expectations is the job of the high school guidance counselor and the college admissions counselor.

These two counselors work together to help high school seniors to become successful freshmen at Northeast Missouri State University.

At least two visits are made to area high schools—one in the fall, the other in the spring—Kent Farnsworth, NMSU director of admissions, says.

Kent and the rest of the admissions staff, Mary Meyer, assistant director; Holly Stelflug, counselor; and Scott Smith, counselor; assisted by Kathy Riley and Vicky DeWitte, two graduate students, present the facts and figures about NMSU in the fall to interested seniors. In the spring, they follow up with visits in which the counselors explain the differences between high school and college life.

"The object of the spring visit is to alleviate any fears," Kent says. "Most of the fears are based on misconceptions."

In February, Kent made a spring visit to South Shelby

High School in Shelby. He met with Becky Baker (B.S.E. 1970, M.A. 1971), guidance counselor, and Larry Mitchell (B.S.E. 1972, M.A. 1977), guidance counselor and coach.

South Shelby High School will graduate about 100 seniors this spring with 29 students planning to attend NMSU this fall.

One common misconception a high school senior has about college, Becky says, is the class schedule. It is not six periods in a row every day.

"You set your own schedule," she says. "you can work, you can goof off, you can sleep. Nobody tells you when to study."

A typical day is one in which a student has two or three one-hour classes with the rest of the day open for activities.

The decision on how to spend that time will determine how successful a student's college life will be, Kent says. Study time, recreation time and even sleeping time should be included in his or her schedule.

Residence hall living presents another adjustment to more freedom.

Students decorate their own rooms. The recently decorated residence halls dispel the myth of battleship gray rooms with beds all in a row.

Bed check does not exist at NMSU. Students have chosen their own hours through the Residence Hall Association, the governing organization of hall residents.

But with all this freedom comes responsibility, Kent and Becky say.

Even as freshmen, students must be mature enough to understand the degree requirements in their chosen fields.

At South Shelby High School, the guidance counselors explain how general education requirements are taken the first two years and more specialized courses are finished during the junior and senior years, Becky says.

Learning the options open to them—more than 100 majors and 20 certificate programs—is part of the responsibility a student must assume for himself or herself.

Financing a college education is yet another worry facing a high school senior and his or her family.

A visit from Wayne Newman, NMSU director of financial aids, helps future students to figure out how to pay for a college education. Newman travels to area high schools discussing the assistance available such as scholarships, grants and student employment prospects.

He will present his program to all students no matter where they will attend college, Becky says. In this way, he provides a service to the high school.

While the admissions counselor and financial aids director bring NMSU to the high schools, University activities for the area bring students to campus.

"I think the biggest asset of Northeast is letting us use its facilities," Larry says.

The Academic Festival offering recognition to students who are outstanding in seven academic areas, music events, and sports activities introduce high school students to campus, he says.

A campus experience shows a student more about college, Kent says, than any 30-minute presentation an admissions counselor can give.

High school students and their parents are invited to visit the NMSU campus at any time, he says. One of the counselors or a currently enrolled student will take visitors on a tour to see the facilities.

Contact with present students who sign up to be Student Ambassadors serves to orient prospective students sooner, Kent says.

In addition, new students also have the opportunity to meet their college professors. NMSU professors are well-qualified and friendly.

The myth that professors want "to flunk me out" is not true, Kent says. NMSU is a student-centered university so the faculty members work directly with students on any problem.

As NMSU graduates, Becky and Larry agree that they also have been able to share their own educational experiences with South Shelby High School students.

Through these conversations, their students have gathered realistic expectations of what NMSU is like.

Kent says that he also has frank discussions with prospective students about the advantages and drawbacks of NMSU.

The biggest advantage is that "The kids feel as if somebody really cares about them and I do, too," Becky says.

A preview of college life

Alumni can help high school seniors, too.

Lots of changes have happened to NMSU. Campus tours are available to interested alumni.

College requirements also have changed. Alumni can bring themselves up to date by requesting a current catalog.

If you can't come to NMSU, interested alumni may talk with the admissions staff on a high school visit. Check with the high school guidance counselor to see when an admissions counselor will come.

An estimated 450 high school students attended VIP Weekend on March 19-20 at Northeast Missouri State University.

During VIP Weekend, these students previewed college life at NMSU. They were invited because they had expressed an interest in attending the University.

The VIPs were admitted with an identification card to Games Room activities, Natatorium swimming, a Bean Bag Movie and meals in the Residence Halls. They stayed overnight in sleeping bags as guests of NMSU students living in the Residence Halls.

As part of the weekend, the students attended some University classes and a general information session about the University.

DEGREE REQUIREMENTS-- Kent Farnworth, admissions director at Northeast Missouri State University, discusses requirements for a degree program with Becky Baker, guidance counselor at South Shelby High School. NMSU offers more than 100 majors and 20 certificate programs.

HIGH SCHOOL VISIT-- Larry Mitchell(left), guidance counselor at South Shelby High School, meets with Kent Farnworth, admissions director at Northeast Missouri State University. Farnworth visits area high schools with current information on what's happening at the University.

Energy conservation gains momentum at University

by Cathy Dvorak

The team spirit of energy conservation at Northeast Missouri State University is catching on.

Utility consumption was down significantly on a square footage basis for fuel and electricity during the first three months of 1978.

"We need our people to keep conserving but we now are starting to see the excellent results of their efforts," Howard Morris, head of the Physical Plant Division, said.

Morris is chairman of the Energy Conservation Advisory Committee made up of 15 members representing students, faculty and staff. ECAC was established in fall 1977 when University President Charles J. McClain appointed the committee to determine campus energy priorities.

From the beginning, ECAC's goal has been to reduce total utility consumption at the University by at least 10 percent in calendar year 1978.

To kick off the year, the NMSU Board of Regents passed a resolution in January saying:

WHEREAS, energy conservation is a critical issue facing the United States, the state of Missouri, and Northeast Missouri State University; and

WHEREAS, energy conservation will help to avoid substantial energy cost increases at Northeast Missouri State University; and

WHEREAS, student participation in energy conservation prepares the students for a new lifestyle demanded by a changing world; and

WHEREAS, faculty and staff participation in energy conservation allows the use of limited resources for worthwhile education programs, rather than for energy expenses;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Board of Regents of Northeast Missouri State University hereby expresses support for the development of energy conservation measures on the University campus and urges campuswide participation in energy conservation efforts.

Also during January, ECAC ran a campuswide poster contest. Exactly 135 entries were received from students, faculty and staff.

Three students won the prizes of first place, $25 and an Energy Saver Sweatshirt; second place, $15 and an Energy Saver Sweatshirt; and, third place, $5 and an Energy Saver Sweatshirt.

The winning slogans were first place, "Energy Conservation depends on NMS-You," Lise Kerr, a freshman from Luray; second place, "No More Squandering Utilities," Terry Madsen, a senior from Kirksville; and third place, "Once It's Gone It's Gone," Dan Yager, a senior from Kirksville.

The orange Energy Saver Sweatshirts given as prizes started to be seen more and more during the energy awareness campaign. Warm orange sweatshirts with the ECAC symbol of heat, electricity and water conservation were selected to encourage heat conservation.

Heat conservation was the theme for the "Winter Survival Exhibition," a show featuring the "Layered Look" on Feb. 17. Tips were presented such as wearing two light long-sleeved sweaters that add 5 degrees in warmth because the air between them serves as insulation to keep in more body heat.

About 200 persons attended the show that asked University people to dress more warmly to stay healthy and comfortable in lower temperatures. Campus thermostats were lowered to save fuel used to heat buildings.

More than 200 persons saw the show because it had been videotaped by University Audio-Visual Services for viewing in the Student Union Building, classrooms and residence halls.

A highlight of the show was the "Unknown Layered Look" which turned out to be President McClain.

March became the time for University people to volunteer to help with the conservation efforts. Individuals and organizations were asked to donate their time to put up "Turn Off for NMSU" stickers on electrical switches and for other worthwhile projects.

Volunteering individuals or organizations received Energy Saver Sweatshirts for signing up first.

During March ECAC also declared an "Energy Emergency" because of the coal strike. Since 91 percent of the electrical energy generated in Missouri is produced by coal, many energy cutbacks were needed immediately.

SLOGAN CONTEST WINNERS--President Charles J. McClain of Northeast Missouri State University presented the awards of a campuswide energy slogan contest on Feb. 17 to students Terry Madsen (left) and Lise Kerr. The contest sponsored by the Energy Conservation Advisory Committee had 135 entries on energy conservation at the University.

University people helped and so did the Physical Plant Division. Air handlers used to circulate air were adjusted, water coolers on fountains were turned off, use of passenger elevators was restricted and exterior campus lighting was reduced. In addition, individuals turned off lights and reduced their personal energy consumption.

The University took another step forward in energy conservation in March when the Board of Regents voted to conduct a comprehensive energy audit of each major campus building.

The energy audit is a beginning to the installation of an automated control system which could enable major energy-using equipment on campus to be regulated from a central location.

Future plans of ECAC will deal with more electricity use reduction. A candlelight concert using no electricity and a hypothetical brownout in residence halls was planned for the spring.

The energy conservation effort is catching on. Energy conservation does depend on NMS-You.

NMSU ENERGY SAVERS--Circle K service club at NMSU was the first group to volunteer to help with the campus energy conservation effort. Members of the group put up "Turn Off for NMSU" stickers on light switches on campus. For their efforts, Circle K members each received an NMSU Energy Saver Sweatshirt.

ENERGY CONSERVATION TEAM--Members of the Energy Conservation Advisory Committee posed for this photo to be used on a poster asking for volunteers to join the energy conservation effort.

NMSU receives educational grant

Northeast Missouri State University has received $1,000 in a direct grant from Eastman Kodak Company's 1977 Educational Aid Program.

Kodak's direct grant was made on behalf of Benny C. Wood who was graduated in 1965 with a B.S. in Chemistry. Wood is employed in the Kodak Park Division.

Responding to the contributions made by college and university graduates to the company's business success, Kodak direct grants are awarded for each undergraduate or graduate year completed by those who receive degrees and join Kodak within five years of graduation.

The grants, awarded during the graduate's fifth year of employment, are made in the names of those employees who are using their academic training in the performance of their job duties.

Recipient schools are requested to distribute grant dollars to the departments indicated by a person's degree. Individual departments are asked to use the money for Kodak Undergraduate Scholarships and to select the recipients on merit.

Superintendent elected to A.A.S.A.

Dr. Gale Bartow (B.S.E. 1949, M.A. 1952), superintendent of schools in Blue Springs R-IV School District, has been elected to the Executive Committee of the American Association of School Administrators.

Dr. Bartow is the first Missourian in 20 years to be elected to the committee. He received the most votes in the election from the 20,000 members of AASA.

A special meeting of the Missouri State Teachers Association was held in his honor on Monday, Feb. 20, during the AASA meeting in Atlanta, Ga.

As a school administrator, Dr. Bartow is well-known to Missourians. He has served as superintendent of schools at Laclede; Braymer; Center; Independence; and Blue Springs.

His administrative experience has been applied through such educational organizations as president-elect of the Missouri Association of School Administrators; chairman of the State Community Education Advisory Committee; and past president and member of the Jackson County Administrators Association.

Dr. Bartow's contributions to education and to his community have been recognized through a Public Service Citizen Award, a Resolution of Commendation from the Missouri State Senate, a Rotary Club Community Service Award and a Mr. Blue Springs Award. He also was honored in 1974 during Gale Bartow Day sponsored by the Blue Springs civic clubs.

Mrs. Wick celebrates 100th birthday

by Mary Regan

Stella (Valora) Murphy Wickersham (KSTC-1896), possibly the oldest living alumna of Northeast Missouri State University, was honored March 8 at the Cainsville Christian Cottage by the greater population of Cainsville, Mo., with a party celebrating her 100th birthday.

"Mrs. Wick", as three generations of northwest Missourians have called her, enrolled in Kirksville State Teachers College in 1895. After one year of study she was offered a teaching position in Maryville and it was there her 80-year career in education began. Attendance at summer institutes for several years following netted her 90 credit hours and a lifetime teaching certificate.

For eight decades Mrs. Wickersham has held academic positions at Rockhold, Cain, Oakland, High Point, Cainsville, Modena, Mercer and the Mt. Moriah rural schools, in addition to maintaining the family farm for 20 years.

Mrs. Wickersham's attempts to retire after nearly 50 years of teaching were unsuccessful, and, at the prompting of school administrators, she was rehired twice. Her career ended formally one year ago when she held her last Sunday School class in Cainsville at the age of 99.

A woman of uncommon youthfulness and polish, Stella Wickersham still enjoys the company of former students and friends. But nothing delights her more than playing a good game of Scrabble, where she is reputed to be a serious contender and a stickler for correct spellings.

She has survived two husbands, John Fred Stanley and P.O. Wickersham, and has one daughter, Helen, of Cainsville.

"Happy Birthday, Stella Wickersham" from Northeast Missouri State University.

Community College names Building after NMSU graduate

A multi-purpose building at Colorado Northwestern Community College, Rangely, recently has been named in honor of Bernard F. Yaeger (B.S. 1940).

Yaeger played an important role in the establishment of the community college through work on the Rangely Junior College District Committee.

Originally from Missouri, he was born on March 1, 1919, in Glasgow. He attended public schools there graduating from high school in 1936. He continued his education at Northeast Missouri State University.

After service in World War II, Yaeger returned to the United States in June 1946 to study for his M.Ed. in School Administration from the University of Colorado. He received the degree in 1947.

That same year he began work as superintendent of schools in the RE-4 School District in Rangely. He continued at that post for 18 years through August 1965 when he retired.

During his tenure as superintendent of schools, he served as president of the Western Colorado School Administrators and director of the Colorado Association of School Administrators.

Among his other community contributions, Yaeger saved the local newspaper The Rangely Driller from going under in 1954. He remains as the owner of the newspaper called The Rangely Times.

Yaeger also owns and operates the Campus Theatre that was doomed to close as The Rig Theatre in 1963.

In addition to his work as an educator, journalist and businessman, Yaeger has served the Rangely community as mayor from 1966-72.

CNCC President James H. Bos said that "it is most fitting that the District Committee chose to name the new multi-purpose building in honor of Mr. Bernard Yaeger. He has consistently sought the improvement of educational opportunities and, beyond that, the betterment of the total community."

Rooming Houses: Residence Halls of the Past

by Jeannette Lovern

In 1945, the Sixty-Third General Assembly authorized the Board of Regents for the State Teachers College in Kirksville to construct dormitories and apartment buildings with funds derived from the sale of revenue bonds. From this action and the $494,000 appropriation from the Assembly of the following year, the first dormitories at NMSU, Blanton Hall and Nason Hall, were built. But, before that, where did the students live?

$10 a week for room, $4 a week for board.

Those were the rates at the Ames rooming house in the 1920s. Mrs. Marie Ames (B.S.E. 1928) was the proprietor of the house located on South Florence Street. Mrs. Ames now lives in Kirksville after retiring from many years of teaching physical education in the public schools in northeast Missouri.

She opened her rooming house in the early 1920s when she and her husband moved to Kirksville from a farm nearby. Several of the boys who knew the Ameses when they lived on the farm came to room with them in Kirksville when they came to college. "I never had to advertise for customers. The boys advertised for me by telling their friends," she says.

Mrs. Ames ran the rooming house to make enough money to put herself through college at what was then the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College. She provided rooms for four college men and meals for approximately 20. The bottom floor of the house served as a large dining room and kitchen and as living quarters for Mrs. Ames and her husband. The roomers lived in the four upstairs bedrooms.

"The boys paid by the week. Times were hard back then and it was a little easier for them by the week," she says.

Providing meals for 20 men while going to college might seem like an awesome task to a modern-day college woman, but Mrs. Ames says it wasn't so bad. "Meat, potatoes, and gravy. People were a lot easier to cook for back then. Besides, I was a lot younger then and it didn't take me very long to get things done," the 77-year-old Mrs. Ames says.

The roomers at the house each had their own furnished room. "It didn't take much furniture. All they wanted was a desk and a bed and a rug on the floor," Mrs. Ames recalls.

A partial bathroom was provided upstairs for the roomers. To take baths or showers, however, the men had to go to the University physical education department.

When Mrs. Ames was graduated in 1928, she quit the rooming business and went to work as the physical education teacher in the Kirksville public schools.

608 SOUTH HIGH--Alumni of the mid-1930s may remember this rooming house on the north edge of campus. Mrs. Eunice Spath provided rooms with cooking privileges for girls while putting her own children through school. Her daughter, Miss Martha Spath, is a member of the Health, Physical Education, and Recreation faculty at NMSU. The house presently is used as an apartment house.

615 South Florence--Mrs. Marie Ames kept rooms for four men and board for about 20 during the 1920s at this house. She reported that the house was old then, but recently it has undergone some changes to make it look new again. Many football players lived in this house in the 1920s and found it convenient since it was only a couple of blocks from the football field at that time.

DOVER CASTLE--This house, located on South Franklin, is just two blocks from NMSU and two blocks from the business district of Kirksville. It has been used as a private home, a rooming house, an apartment house, and a sort of a sorority house. Before residence halls were built on the NMSU campus, sorority members would suggest to a proprietor of a house that if he would not rent to any one else, they would fill the rooms with members of the sorority. With this arrangement, this house became a Delta Zeta sorority house for several years.

Summer programs again set up at University

by Terrie Jo Snyder

While walking across campus with the hot sun brightly shining and the scent of freshly mowed grass filling the air, it's not unusual to hear the sound of children's laughter or to see a baby stroller outside of Blanton Hall. Once again, it's summer at Northeast Missouri State University.

"It's like one big family here," says Donald Riddle, a student who lived in Blanton Hall last summer with his wife and two children. The Riddles were among 13 other families who took advantage of the family living in Blanton Hall while attending summer classes.

This type of living arrangement was beneficial for many. For example, many times the parents would take turns caring for each other's children, especially during mealtimes and evenings. Often the older children would entertain the younger ones with games and tea parties.

"NO Cooking!" is the one advantage particularly enjoyed by Donald's wife, Mary. She says, "This is a new experience for us. We enjoy the convenient location and the opportunity to associate with other families and friends."

A sense of friendliness and fellowship is as evident in Blanton Hall as on the rest of the NMSU campus. It can be found in the cheery "Hellos" of students and parents as well as on the faces of their smiling children.

"We have a real family situation here," says Eunice Stevenson, Blanton Hall director. "All the children get along and there are no problems."

Throughout the summer, students and their families can enjoy a variety of fun activities on campus. Last summer a series of Thursday evening events known as "Arts in the Park" were popular with many. The series included an ice cream social, a bluegrass music concert, a presentation by a St. Louis psychic, a disco dance, a watermelon feast, movies, picnics, and a trip to Hannibal's Ice House Theatre. Most of these events were free and open to the public.

"It's very important that a balance is provided between studies and social interaction," says Vonnie Nichols, director of student activities. "Learning is better if students are given a chance to relax." Another purpose of the summer activities program is "to provide a sense of campus community and to provide interaction among NMSU faculty, students, and staff."

Everyone does need a chance to relax and many campus recreational facilities are available.

Summer school students and their families may play pool, air hockey, foosball and pinball in the Games Room of the Student Union Building. The "Union," as it is fondly referred to by many, also houses the University bowling alley.

Tennis and basketball courts, softball diamonds, a weight room, and Stokes Stadium track and practice field are also available.

Of course, it wouldn't be summer without swimming so the Natatorium, the University swimming pool, is a favorite with many.

And for those with flair for team fun and competition, softball and volleyball teams are formed at the beginning of each summer session.

For students with young children, summer learning may be a bit easier knowing that the little ones are learning, too. As a service to these students, the University offers a comprehensive preschool program for youngsters ages 3-6.

"A fun, educational setting with a planned curriculum and outstanding facilities and equipment" is how Judy Duden, 1977 director of the Child Development Center, describes this program. She says, "An average of 30 students per day attend the center. The biggest percentage are children of University students."

In addition to numerous activities which center around the children's intellectual, physical, and social-emotional growth, the preschoolers are provided with a mid-morning snack and a noon lunch which consists of one-third the daily food and nutrient requirements for their age group.

But it's not just the little ones that are having fun—for those children ages 6-14, the University offers TWEEN CLUB, a comprehensive recreational program.

"It's like a camp. Teaching them archery, riflery, bowling, swimming, track events, and craft work," explains Leo Ingolia, a 1977 summer school student whose daughter, Judi, attended last summer's TWEEN CLUB.

"It's worth every cent. It's really a great thing," says Ingolia.

TWEEN CLUB offers youngsters instruction in a variety of sports which add to "fun through learning." In addition to regularly scheduled activities, TWEEN CLUBERS enjoy special events such as the Overnighter and a trip to Hannibal on Mark Twain Day.

"It's a quality program at a reasonable cost," says Tom Duden, director of the 1000 Hills Summer Youth Program. "I believe that parents want their children involved in a good program and we offer a good program."

Last summer, TWEEN CLUB was offered in two five-week sessions which coincided with NMSU's summer schedule of classes. Duden explains that since the two schedules coincided that TWEEN CLUB made it possible for many parents, such as Ingolia, to attend summer classes. He emphasizes, however, that "The program is not a babysitting service."

Many junior and senior high school students also combine fun and learning at NMSU as camp participants in the 1000 Hills Summer Youth Program. "We had close to 2,000 students this summer," says Duden. "Our program is different than a lot of camps; we zero in on one activity each week."

Last summer's program included camps in basketball, tennis, cheerleading, band, art, computer science, and gymnastics just to name a few. As participants, students are housed in University residence halls and have full-time counselors who schedule and supervise various recreational activities.

"We employ top teachers throughout the Midwest as well as national figures," Duden says. "The program is very successful."

Although recreational activities and facilities abound on campus, many students and family enjoy the numerous recreational opportunities available at Thousand Hills State Park, located five miles west of Kirksville on Highway 6.

"This is the ninth largest state park in Missouri," says Rufus Winslow, park superintendent. "We have a lot of out-of-state visitors and campers; they come all the way from California to New York."

They also come from St. Louis County. While attending classes last summer, Ingolia and his daughter camped at the park in their red VW bus during their stay in Kirksville.

"I tell everybody my address is Thousand Hills Campground

4, Lot 103," Ingolia says. "I love every minute of it (camping out). I may do it for the rest of my life. I really like the outdoors."

For others who also enjoy the outdoors, the park has a lot to offer.

Forest Lake provides opportunities for sailing, canoeing, paddle-boating, swimming, motor boating, and water skiing. Many boats are available on a rental basis.

The park houses 80 acres of campgrounds, many with electrical hook-ups. Hot showers, modern restrooms, and a laundromat are among campground facilities. Several picnic grounds with barbeque grills, an enclosed shelter house, three hiking trails, a recently completed motorcycle trail, and a children's playground are among park facilities.

"We are fifth in attendance out of the 37 Missouri Parks and historic sites," says Winslow.

While summer is often associated with bright sunshine and the scents of freshly mowed grass, it means a lot more here at NMSU. Here, it's a time for friendly "hellos" and smiling faces—a time for learning, a time for fun. At NMSU, it's almost summer once again.

Baum was the first chair clarinet player when he was in band in 1941-42.

First Band Alumni Weekend plays back old memories

by Cathy Dvorak

BAND LEADER -- Dr. Paul Strub, the late band director, led the bands to which Ron and JoAnn Thomas belonged. He was band director from 1947-62.

CLARINET COMBO--Carl and Judy Schmidt were brought together in a clarinet section of a band led by Dr. Tom Duden, University band director since 1962.

ROMANTIC MEMORIES -- The romance of band trips and fun in the NMSU bands are recalled by Gretchen and John Parcell.

Couples who have played in bands at Northeast Missouri State University often have discovered they make beautiful music together.

Five married couples were among the more than 60 alumni who attended the first Band Alumni Weekend on Feb. 4-5.

One alumni band performed in concert on Sunday afternoon after a weekend of rehearsals and festivities.

One half of the program was conducted by Dr. Tom Duden, University band director since 1962. Duden also led the NMSU Symphonic Wind Ensemble composed of students currently enrolled.

The other half was directed by Jim Strub (B.S.E. 1946), president of the Strub Music Company in St. Louis. He conducted the alumni who were in the band under his brother, the late Dr. Paul Strub, band director from 1947-62.

One couple, Carl Schmidt (B.S. 1969) and Judith McCampbell Schmidt (B.S.E. 1969, M.A. 1974), was brought together in the clarinet section of a band led by Duden.

As a freshman at Northeast, Carl first saw Judy when she was a senior in high school.

"The first time I remember her she was playing a solo at a district contest at NMSU," he says.

Judy later decided to attend the University.

Their first date, she says, was to a student's senior recital. "We both had to go so he stopped by the dorm and picked me up."

Band activities kept them together. While in the band, Carl and Judy traveled to the Montreat Expo '67 with the Clarinet Choir and to the Music Educators Convention in Kansas City.

The groups in which they played include NMSU Marching 100+ and NMSU Orchestra.

Carl now is a loan officer at State Street Bank in Quincy. Judy is a third grade teacher in Quincy public schools. They have a daughter, Lara, 3.

"It was a very close knit group," Judy says. "All of us in band were just much closer because of all the activities."

Another couple that played under Duden is John Parcell (B.S.E. 1967, M.A. 1968) and Gretchen Van Gorp Parcell (B.S.E. 1968).

She played the French horn; he played the trumpet.

John is a year older than Gretchen so he was a sophomore when she was a freshman.

They double dated with other members of the band. Other activities they had in common were Pep Bands, Concert Band, NMSU Orchestra and Brass Choir.

In these groups, they attended the Missouri Music Educators conference in Columbia and traveled to various concerts. John and Gretchen also went to Cape Girardeau with the Brass Choir.

Gretchen remembers an incident from one of her trips:

"When I went to the World's Fair in New York with the Woodwind Choir, he was waiting for the bus west of Quincy," she says.

Jim Strub

John was president of the band and the Aeolian Club, the social and professional student chapter of the Music Educators National Conference. Gretchen also belonged to these organizations.

Band activities provide an opportunity for members to develop as individuals, John says.

He is manager of McDonald Restaurants in Joplin. She teaches remedial reading in Joplin public schools. They have two children, Kent, 8, and Kristina, 7.

A third couple who attended the Band Alumni Weekend is Ron Thomas (B.S.E. 1958, M.A. 1964) and JoAnn Dodge Thomas (B.S.E. 1958). They were in marching and concert bands under Paul Strub.

Ron is a trombonist and JoAnn is a percussionist.

"I always had to sign up on the smokers' bus to be with him," JoAnn says when the band toured Missouri and southern Iowa.

They met in the Blanton Hall cafeteria as he was talking to her suite mate, Ron says. He said his family owned a Dodge. Her family had four Dodges and two Chevies, she said.

"And I found out her last name was Dodge," he says.

Ron and JoAnn remember Paul Strub, too. He was "an excellent director and a fantastic gentleman and a fiery man when you crossed him," Ron says.

At a Christmas band rehearsal, the players pulled a trick on Strub. At the end of each section of music, a part of the band would stop playing until "The first chair clarinet player was playing all by herself," Ron says.

Strub then called off the rehearsal and started to leave. But the band president stopped him to give him a Christmas gift.

At the University, JoAnn used to work as a student for Dr. Walter H. Ryle, president emeritus. At the present, she gives piano lessons and substitute teaches in Florissant.

Ron is director of bands at Hazelwood Central High School.

They have three children, Shari, 18, a flute player; Denise, 15, a flute player; and David, 14, a trumpet player. Shari plans to attend NMSU in fall 1978.

As for the weekend, Ron asks, "For what other class would you have alumni come back like this?"

Their son, Wesley, recently finished the New York Marathon in three hours and 31 seconds—about 48 minutes slower than the winner. But for a third grader, it wasn't a bad time for a 26-mile run. The time was 15 minutes better than his performance in the Chicago Marathon a month prior to the New York run. Wesley, who is 8 years old, says he could have run the New York Marathon faster if the field hadn't been so crowded at the start. He was the smallest of 4,800 entrants. Wesley's parents are both natives of Taiwan and are naturalized American citizens. Although Wesley was born in Columbia, he wore a Nationalist Chinese flag on his T-shirt during the race, and the Ambassador from Taiwan and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Shen, came up to New York from Washington to watch the race. Paul said his son began following him as he jogged several years ago and now beats him all the time. Wesley ran his first marathon in Columbia on Labor Day in 1976 and since has run several others, but he is not eligible for the Boston Marathon, the nation's oldest for ten years. It requires its competitors to be at least 18. (From an AP story in a Columbia paper.)

The Dinsmores are the publishers of 17 weekly newspapers in Iowa and Missouri. Keith was an early Carter supporter and was a Carter delegate to the county, district and state Democratic conventions. For most of the guests who attended the celebration of the second anniversary of President Carter's precinct caucus victory in 1976, it was the first glimpse of the historic mansion. The party for early Carter supporters and prominent Democrats was the idea of Rosalynn Carter, who made many friends around the state when her husband was still "Jimmy Who?" The invitations for the reception indicated the party would be from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. But it was nearly midnight when the 24-piece Marine Band packed up their instruments in the grand foyer. President and Mrs. Carter joined the guests immediately following the President's "State of the Union" Message. After shaking over 600 hands President and Mrs. Carter seemed to enjoy a less formal meeting with friends made during the campaign. When the band stopped playing and the festivities were over the guests left through the front door, walking in the wet snow down the driveway of the most famous house in the world. Most turned around at least once to catch a final glimpse of the snow falling on the White House steps. (Excerpts from a story by Keith Dinsmore in the Kirksville Daily Express.)
