PRESIDENT'S COMMENTS

Institutional goals, I believe, are a key to keeping a university vital in its function and on target in meeting its challenges. We need to accomplish those activities which will move our institution ahead through the '80s.

In the area of alumni relations, we have developed tentative goals for the next year which I would like to share with you:

- 1) Increase the quality and quantity of information provided to alumni.
- 2) Increase the number of alumni children who attend NMSU.
- 3) Double the number of recipients of the Alumni Scholarship. (We plan on awarding 25 of these scholarships per year.)
- 4) Increase the number of lifetime members of the alumni association.
- 5) Double the amount of annual giving by alumni to NMSU.

Your gifts to the school are increasingly important in insuring that Kirksville stays on the "cutting edge" of quality. We have just started in this effort to protect the margin of excellence for Kirksville graduates.

This fall we have four occasions planned for alumni involvement. September 22 is Parents Day on campus. On October 6, we are planning a special alumni meeting in conjunction with the NMSU/Drake football game in Des Moines. October 26 and 27 is Homecoming weekend on campus, and November 15 is the annual teachers meeting in St. Louis. I would be interested in hearing your views of our alumni goals at these events.

I look forward to seeing you at one or more of these activities. Also, please write or call me about your views on Northeast. I continue to hear positive comments about the quality of Kirksville graduates through the years.

Charles J. McClain

Alumni Scholarship Winner

(Editor's Note: One recipient of the 1979-80 Alumni Scholarship wrote this letter to University President Charles J. McClain. Mark is the son of Boyd Cameron Hamm, M.A. 1970)

Dear President McClain:

I would like to thank both you and the selection committee for choosing me as a recipient of the alumni scholarship. It is an honor for me to receive this award, knowing there were many fine applicants considered for this award.

Both my father and my mother attended NMSU, with my father receiving his M.A. there. This award just renewed their confidence in the University.

My parents and I would like to thank you once again. I am looking forward to following their footsteps at NMSU.

Sincerely,

Mark Hamm

Filipino Alumnus Returns

Dear Mr. Harrison:

I am a member of the Class of '54 of the then Northeast Missouri State Teachers College. I am a citizen of the Philippines and arrived in the U.S. about three days ago, my first visit in the States since my graduation about 25 years ago as an M.A. in Education.

One of my objectives in this visit of mine to the U.S. is to visit my alma mater, the Kirksville campus. I also look forward to meeting some representatives of the President Ryle Foundation to convey a very modest contribution to it and to convey the best wishes of other alumni in the Philippines who knew or worked with President Ryle.

As a working student in 1954, President and Mrs. Ryle generously permitted me to work in their residence to help me earn part of my maintenance while studying there. I have always cherished the trust and kindness of President and Mrs. Ryle to me.

Thank you for your kind attention.

Yours sincerely,

Andres C. Acoba

Nursing Accreditation

(Editor's Note: The following letter was received by Dr. Grace Devitt, head of the Nursing Division. Accreditation of the NMSU nursing program was reported in the Winter-Spring 1979 NEMOSCOPE.)

Dear Dr. Devitt:

Just a short note to thank you for going out of your way to obtain a copy of my transcript. I am sure you are aware of the time involved in obtaining all of the necessary information to procure licensure by endorsement. I know you keep a very busy schedule, and I do appreciate the time spent in helping me.

Also, I was very pleased to hear of the accreditation by the NLN (National League for Nursing). Just recently Temple University in Philadelphia lost the NLN accreditation of their nursing program, and it made me realize how strict the standards must be. All of the NMSU nursing faculty put a lot of work toward our accreditation, and it is nice to know your efforts were finally rewarded.

Thank you again for your help,

Debra May La Barca (B.S.N. 1977)

1979 Homecoming October 26 and 27

Dear Mr. Harrison:

This coming spring 50 years will have passed since I graduated from NMSU. If at all possible, my wife and I are looking forward to attending the annual homecoming.

Past educational honors during my 40 years of teaching include: superintendent of schools at Waynesville and Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., for 10 years; 13 years as associate director of admissions at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo.; and 12 years as superintendent of schools at Cherry Creek Schools, District 5, Englewood, Colo. Upon my retirement, Cherry Creek named its football field, "Stutler Bowl," in my honor.

In the interim, I managed to acquire a master's from the University of Missouri and an L.L.B. from Memphis State University, Memphis, Tenn.

Now in my retirement years, I am active as a volunteer worker for the Colorado Baptist College in Denver. I am active in the Arapahoe Historical Society, the Retired Teachers Association and the Riverside Baptist Church.

Our three children presented my wife, Nell, and me with nine grandchildren; consequently, our major project just happens to be these nine special young people!

I send thanks to NMSU for the training and inspiration that made possible a thoroughly happy teaching career for a Missouri farm boy.

Sincerely,

Clark D. Stutler

Alumnus Moves to Nebraska

Dear Mr. Harrison:

I am writing to let you know that I have accepted the position as director of the Nebraska Department of Correctional Services in Lincoln, Neb., effective April 1, 1979.

The jurisdiction of the department includes all penal institutions, youth institutions, and parole services. I have been assistant director of the Missouri Division of Corrections since 1973.

My family consisting of my wife, Nancy, son, Mike, and daughter, Maggie, will move to Lincoln in July after the school year is over.

Enclosed please find a check for my alumni membership.

Very truly yours,

Jerry J. Bolin

New Life Member

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Please enroll me as a life alumni member.

I really enjoy the NEMOSCOPE and keeping up with classmates of old!

I was so sorry to hear that Dr. Ryle passed away, but his time on earth was so very well spent that although there is sorrow, joy outweighs it!

Sincerely,

AUSTRIAN CROSS OF HONOR—William Unger (left), professor emeritus of art, receives the Austrian Cross of Honor for Science and Art on June 4 in a decoration ceremony on the Northeast Missouri State University campus. Dr. Erich Kristen, consul general of the Chicago Austrian Consulate, decorates him.

Austrians honor NMSU Artist-in-residence

"What can an artist and a teacher expect more than to be recognized by his country and loved by his students?"

With that statement Dr. Erich Kristen, consul general of the Austrian Consulate in Chicago, decorated William Unger, professor emeritus of art, with the Austrian Cross of Honor for Science and Art.

The decoration ceremony was held on June 4 on the campus of Northeast Missouri State University.

Dr. Kristen praised Unger for maintaining ties with his native country, Austria, after coming to the United States in 1954. Unger has become a U.S. citizen.

"I am standing here both humble, proud and happy. This evening is certainly one of the highlights of my life. I am proud that Austria, although small in size, has retained tremendous impact on western culture and art."

In the future Unger said he dreamed of an exchange program between the two countries, art exhibits by Austrian artists and visits from Austrian artists to NMSU.

The Cross of Honor is awarded in special recognition of outstanding work by the Austrian government.

Unger has been recognized for his outstanding work by NMSU through an appointment as the University's first permanent artist-in-residence.

When he retired in May, he also received emeritus status.

As artist-in-residence, he will teach a master class in painting as well as serve as an art consultant to Northeast.

The artist studied at the Academy of Fine Arts in Vienna graduating with the title of "Akademischer Maler" or the equivalent to a Master of Fine Arts in 1937. At the same time, he received a teaching degree in fine arts education from the University of Vienna.

To add to his background, Unger spent a year at the Academie Des Beaux Arts in Paris and several months at the Academia De Belle Arte in Rome. He was presented the Prix de Rome, one of the highest awards given to a student.

As a free-lance artist, Unger painted portraits and other projects in Vienna, Paris, London, Holland, West Germany and Switzerland from 1945-54. He came to the United States in 1954 continuing his work.

Before joining the NMSU faculty in 1960, he was associated with art extension projects of the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

He and his wife, Heddy, will continue to reside in Kirksville.

At the ceremony Unger thanked his wife, "Without her I probably wouldn't be standing here tonight."

19 new freshmen win Pershing Scholarship

Nineteen high school seniors have been named as recipients of the 1979-80 Gen. John J. Pershing Scholarship.

The scholarship, recognized as one of the most prestigious awards, is unique among Missouri institutions of higher education. It provides enrollment fees and residence hall room and board with renewal for sophomore, junior and senior years to qualified recipients.

Scholarship winners qualify for the Pershing Scholarship by ranking in the top 10 percent of their high school graduating classes. They also are selected on participation and leadership in high school and community activities, high scores on national examinations and on-campus interviews with the scholarship committee.

The Pershing Scholarship is named after Gen. John J. Pershing, an 1880 graduate of NMSU. He received a bachelor of elementary didactics, a degree that allowed him to teach at any school in Missouri.

From NMSU Pershing went on to West Point, eventually to become the leader of the American Expeditionary Force of World War I and the only American general to hold the title of General of the Armies.

While attending Northeast, Pershing attained high academic marks and served as president of his class. His leadership, diversity of interests, self-discipline, academic diligence and vision were characteristics that guided him to his illustrious career.

NMSU honors Pershing by naming its most prestigious scholarship after him and awarding it to outstanding high school seniors who best exemplify his attributes and ideals.

The 1979-80 Pershing Scholars are:

Cherie Lynn Beem, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence D. Beem of Kansas City, majoring in political science.

Timmy Lee Boozan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Kline of Miami, Fla., majoring in biology.

Gail Carlson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Harrelson of Memphis, majoring in psychology.

Jeff Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Elliott of Brookfield, majoring in accounting.

Anita Louise Fashing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fashing of Sturgeon, majoring in mathematics.

Gary John Ficken, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ficken Jr. of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, majoring in mass communication.

Donna Lou Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Fitzgerald of Fenton, majoring in agriculture.

Gen. John J. Pershing

Vicki Kijewski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kijewski of Lansing, Ill., majoring in environmental science.

Julia Ann Kiley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Kiley of Baring, majoring in business. Her sisters are Mary Elizabeth Kiley (B.S.E. 1977; M.A. 1978) and Jane Kiley Sandknop (B.S.E. 1979).

Sharon Kay Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Martin of Eldon, majoring in secondary vocal education.

Kathryn Craig Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Meyer of St. Louis, majoring in elementary and special education.

Neil Ray Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph H. Meyer of Montgomery City, majoring in biology.

Stephen Lloyd Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy J. Miller of Independence, majoring in communication arts.

Carl Mueller, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Carl Mueller of Moberly, majoring in pre-optometry.

Dayna Lee Pittmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles William Pittmann of Unionville.

Beverly Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Reed of Springfield, majoring in mathematics and English education.

Kay Marie Rehfuss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rehfuss of Lexington, Ky.

Matthew Michael Sass, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Sass of St. Peters, majoring in physics. His brother is William L. Sass (B.S.E. 1972, M.A. 1977).

Dale Schenewerk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Schenewerk of Jefferson City, majoring in business administration.

Alumnus reviews steps to communication career

by Cathy Dvorak

David L. Fortney, 1979 Outstanding Alumnus in Communication, has covered everything from panty raids in Kirksville to politics in Argentina and Chile.

His career in communication has given him "so much satisfaction and reward," he told more than 90 students, administrators and faculty members at the opening session of the third annual Communication Week on April 2 at Northeast Missouri State University.

He is the managing editor of Hospital Week and the news editor of Trustee and Journal, three publications of the American Hospital Association produced in Chicago.

The 1965 graduate talked about "stepping stones," ways to log experience toward a career in communication. Fortney began his career before he received a B.A. in English and Speech from Northeast.

"By the time you hit the job market, you can have experience and a scrapbook full of clippings. And you'll need it."

Experiences while a student at Northeast led to exciting assignments later in his career. He served as editor of the student newspaper, the Index.

"My work on the Index was a stepping stone to the (Kirksville) Daily Express. My work at the Daily Express led to some reporting assignments and feature work with UPI, the Kansas City Star and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch."

Fortney's stepping stones took him to western Europe as a stringer for wire services.

He also went to Vietnam in the Public Information Detachment of the U.S. Army where he was awarded the Bronze Star. He was the first Public Information Officer to be decorated by Gen. George S. Patton.

In the Army, Fortney wrote for Stars and Stripes Europe, an international paper published in Darmstadt, Germany.

Other experiences he related to the students included a story on how he covered the earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua, for the Chicago Tribune.

Some stepping stones to writing success include working for a newspaper or radio station part time or in the summer. He suggested that students correspond as stringers for major metropolitan newspapers in Kansas City, St. Louis or Des Moines as well as the wire services.

Inexperienced writers can further their background by handling the public relations work for campus organizations.

"Think of it not as a chore but as a challenge," he told the students. "You'll learn what's news, how to write it and the importance of meeting deadlines. It's all experience."

Another way to become a professional is to free lance. Fortney has written free-lance articles for Reader's Digest, Good Housekeeping, Optimist and many other national periodicals.

Although few free-lance writers make their livings totally that way, a student can earn a good income by reporting lifestyles on campus or trends in the area. The trick to placement of a local story in a magazine is to nationalize the subject.

"A news item about a surge in adult education classes at the local university, for instance, might point up a national trend."

Ideas are everywhere, he said. Good writers read local and area newspapers. They discover local experts on national topics.

In addition to communication courses, Fortney also suggested that student writers develop a specialty. He mentioned health care, science, and business among the types of specialties.

"Today, I'm managing editor of one health care publication and news editor of two more. I'm surrounded by health care experts who can't write. And I know plenty of writers who, unfortunately, know little about health care."

His final piece of advice was to "urge you to stay from defeatism in whatever form it comes at you."

HELPING HANDS--Dr. Richard M. Keith (left), director of the animal health technology program, assists a student with care of a small animal. The program at Northeast Missouri State University was granted full accreditation recently by the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Veterinarians recognize animal health certificate

The American Veterinary Medical Association has granted full accreditation through Dec. 31, 1980, to the two-year animal health technology certificate program at Northeast Missouri State University.

With full accreditation, NMSU becomes one of 30 programs recognized nationally by the Committee on Animal Technician Activities and Training of the AVMA. Fourteen others have provisional status.

In announcing the accreditation University President Charles J. McClain said, "We are delighted with the full accreditation of another outstanding new program offered at Northeast. I congratulate Dr. Richard Keith (director of the program) and his staff."

Graduates of recognized animal technology programs have careers as assistants to veterinarians, biological research workers and other scientists. They are knowledgeable in the care and handling of animals.

The Practical Arts Division in cooperation with the Missouri Veterinary Medical Association founded the two-year certificate program on Aug. 23, 1976, at Northeast.

A 20-month program was developed with the summer between the first and second academic years featuring a professional internship. Twenty-six NMSU students have been working with veterinarians and other scientists this summer.

Formal academic training includes general courses in chemistry, zoology, microbiology, animal science, communications and business, along with anatomy, physiology, parasitology, hematology, urinalysis, radiology, anesthesiology, pharmacology, ethics, and handling of animals.

NMSU received provisional accreditation when its first class of 16 graduates in May 1978 all passed the Missouri Board Examination to be qualified as registered animal technicians in the state. Each class is limited to 25 students.

The program at Northeast provides "hands on" experience with an animal hospital formerly used in a mixed practice of large and small animals. A new facility for the housing and handling of horses and cattle has been constructed to give students background in working with farm animals.

State government approves 1979-80 NMSU appropriations

Northeast Missouri State University apparently will be receiving $11,825,474 in state appropriations for the 1979-80 fiscal year. The amount represents an 8.7 percent increase over the 1978-79 fiscal year's appropriation. Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale signed the higher education appropriations bill into law June 28, after vetoing some $6 million in funds from the bill.

The Governor's action reduced the amounts the legislature had approved for all of the four-year colleges and universities except one.

In his veto message, Teasdale stated that he had cut funds which would have reduced class sizes and offset inflationary increases for equipment and operations expenses.

The legislature now has the option of overriding the veto when it convenes in January, an action which has occurred only once in more than a century.

NMSU also will receive $400,000 for the completion of the renovation of the Pershing Building and an additional $431,625 for routine maintenance and repair.

OUTSTANDING ALUMNUS IN COMMUNICATION--David L. Fortney (left), a 1965 graduate of Northeast Missouri State University, receives his award as 1979 Outstanding Alumnus in Communication on April 2 from Dr. Edwin C. Carpenter, head of the Language and Literature Division.

Taiwan alumni begin chapter activities

More than 100 educators and government employees will join the Taiwan (Republic of China) Chapter of the Alumni Association of Northeast Missouri State University. The first conference of the chapter was scheduled for May.

Dr. Timothy Zen Chung (M.A. 1970) returned to his alma mater in April to discuss plans for the Taiwan Chapter and a future one in Hong Kong.

Dr. Chung, chapter organizer, divides his schedule with nine months in Taipei, Taiwan, and three months in Hong Kong each year.

In Taipei he is dean of the East China Institute, which prepares graduate students who wish to study in the United States for their English proficiency examination. He recently has been appointed as dean of Time Institute of the American Language for Graduate Students to Study in the U.S.A.

He also teaches freshman English, English literature and business English in the College of Chinese Culture at Ming Chuan College. On Oct. 23, 1978, the college and NMSU agreed to a student exchange program.

"We shall continue to carry on our cultural and educational relationship with the American people," Dr. Chung said. "The people in Taiwan will continue to carry on international business with the American people."

Founded in 1957, Ming Chuan College is the first women's business college in Taipei. About 10,000 women are educated in three-, four- and five-year programs in banking and insurance, accounting and statistics, international trade, business management, secretarial science, computer science, tourism, commercial design and applied mathematics.

In addition to his teaching, Dr. Chung is president of the Professor's Book Publishing Co. Inc. He and his wife, Sunny Wei-Chuan Chen, own and operate the company which publishes textbooks.

Mrs. Chung attended NMSU to study home economics for one semester in spring 1970. She also is a graduate of Ming Chuan College and New Mexico State University, Las Cruces.

In Hong Kong Dr. Chung is dean of the Hong Kong College of Language and Commerce. He does administrative work including selection of textbooks and academic programs.

About 50 NMSU alumni are interested in establishing a chapter of the association in Hong Kong, he said. They will probably meet in summer 1979.

The Taiwan Chapter already has elected officers after a preliminary meeting held in February.

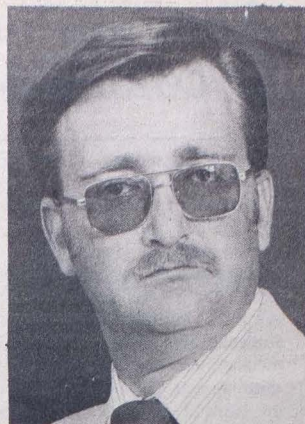

The chapter president will be Shang-Yung Liang (M.A. 1960), former vice minister of education in the Republic of China and past commissioner of Taiwan education. He presently is chairman of the Department of Education, National Chen Chi University in Taipei.

The vice president is Chia-Pu Chyu (M.A. 1970), president of Taipei City College of Business.

The purpose of these chapters is "to promote cultural relations with the United States," Dr. Chung said.

Dr. Gilbert Kohlenberg

Dr. James Lyons

Social Science Division receives new leader

The leadership of the Social Science Division at Northeast Missouri State University has passed from Dr. Gilbert Kohlenberg, long-time division head, to Dr. James J. Lyons, interim head.

The change was announced at the June 15 meeting of the NMSU Board of Regents.

Dr. Kohlenberg, who has served as division head for almost 25 years, will return to full-time teaching duties as professor of history. He also will continue as chairman of the Lyceum Series of cultural activities offered by the University.

"Dr. Kohlenberg has performed yeoman's service to this institution in his nearly quarter of a century as head of the Social Science Division," NMSU President Charles McClain said. "We are indebted to his quest for quality among the various social science disciplines. His impact will be felt for years to come."

His education includes an A.B. in History in 1940 from Shurtleff College, an M.A. in Education in 1942 from Washington University and a Ph.D. in History in 1951 from the University of Illinois.

He belongs to the American Historical Association, Phi Alpha Theta history honorary, Missouri Historical Society, Missouri State Teachers Association, National Council for the Social Studies and Missouri Council for the Social Studies. He is a past president of the Missouri council.

Dr. Lyons, associate professor of psychology, joined the NMSU faculty in 1972.

He also is executive officer of the 901st Medical Detachment of the Army Reserves in Kirksville and executive director of Kirksville Crisis Intervention Service.

His professional affiliations include American Association of Higher Education, American Psychological Association, Midwest Psychological Association, Missouri Academy of Science and American Association for Advancement of Science.

He received his B.S. in Psychology in 1968 from Fordham College, and M.A. in 1970 and Ph.D. in 1972, also in Psychology, from Ohio State University.

INTERNATIONAL EDUCATOR—Madam Teh-Ming Pao, president of Ming Chuan College in Taiwan, visited Northeast Missouri State University on June 24-27 to finalize an agreement for a student/faculty exchange. She was accompanied by her sons Dr. Lin Lee (pictured), president of an engineering consulting firm in Hartford, Conn., and Chuan Lee, vice president of Ming Chuan. Her husband, Professor Lee Ying-Chao, also taught at the Kirksville campus.

On Oct. 23, 1978, University President Charles J. McClain and Board of Regents President Sam A. Burk signed a sister college agreement with Ming Chuan. Founded in 1957 by Madam Pao and her husband, the business college educates 10,000 women yearly. The college offers three-, four- and five-year programs in banking and insurance, accounting and statistics, international trade, business management, secretarial science, computer science, tourism, commercial design and applied mathematics.

NEMOS sing together again

More than 50 alumni of the NEMO Singers at Northeast Missouri State University returned to sing at a reunion and concert on May 5-6.

The first NEMO Alumni Weekend included registration, a luncheon, a short rehearsal and the alumni concert. Present NEMO Singers also presented a concert in honor of the alumni. Director of choral activities is Clay Dawson, assistant professor of music.

Alumni who registered were: Missouri—Donna Binder, Macon; Betty J. Brown, Shelby; Geraldine Crouch, Browning; Linda Crum-packer, Macon; Harold Epperson, Kirksville; Jean Bagby Galegor, Blue Springs; Jim and Nancy Gingrich, Clarence; Aida Ridgway Haber, Shelby; Don and Marilyn Hamilton, Elsberry; Gryf Ketcherside, St. Charles; Kenneth Newcomer, Springfield; Dan and Sharon O'Donnell, Memphis; Terri Porter, New Cambria; Shani Thompson, Newtown; Cheryl Walker, Kirksville; JoAnn Walter, Cairo; Michele Maurer White, Kirksville; Wilma Yarrington, Jefferson City.

Iowa—Becky Ahern, Eddyville; Betty Doolittle, Cedar Rapids; Melvin Johnson, Council Bluffs; Jeri Six Kunkle, Fairfield; David and Susan Montgomery, Centerville; Linda C. Murrow, Melbourne; Ed Phelps, Davenport; Karen Grundstad Roberts, Marshalltown; Cheryl Schiller, Donnellson.

Also participating in the alumni weekend were Barry Bloom, West Barnstable, Mass.; Tim Blickhan, DeKalb, Ill.; and John W. Pratt, Champaign, Ill.

Music store leads to WSU career

If Kemble Stout is the complete musician, chalk it up to heredity.

"My dad had a music store and I had a chance to take home any instrument, so I play a lot of them, mostly the bassoon and clarinet."

Notwithstanding bassoon and clarinet, he is better known as a pianist and says "I've done more choral conducting than anything else."

Stout, who retired as professor emeritus of music after 33 years on the Washington State University faculty--Department of Music chairman from 1951-67--not only grew up around a music store but also around a college music program.

His father, Barrett Stout, started in the music store business in 1914 in Kirkville, where Kemble was born in 1916. He operated the store for about 15 years and eventually sold it, having joined the music faculty at what is now Northeast Missouri State University in 1927. The business is still known, however, as Stout's Music Store, and, says Kemble Stout, "I just ordered a trombone yesterday from the store for my grandson."

In 1943, Barrett Stout became dean of the school of music at Louisiana State University, retiring in 1955. Meanwhile, Kemble had graduated from Northeast Missouri in 1935, and taught music there in 1936-37 and again in 1938-43, joining the WSU faculty in 1945.

The Stouts of LSU and WSU had annual reunions at a number of conventions of the National Association of Schools of Music. They were NASM's first father-son members.

One of Stout's fondest memories of his time at WSU is "the excellent support for the music program on the part of the central administration during my term as chairman."

And one of his outstanding contributions to the university came during these years--his role in getting support for and working on details of planning and constructing WSU's beautiful music building, Kimbrough Hall.

"It was one of the fun times. I had a chance to work closely with Phil Keene, then university architect, and Ralph Decker, building architect. They were most cooperative in listening to our needs in the planning."

Fittingly, the building's music listening room-library has been named the Kemble Stout Music Listening Center in his honor. The surprise announcement was made at what he calls his "retirement party"--a program of his compositions presented by the music department April 29. His entire family--a sister and her husband; his mother from Kansas City, Mo., and her sister; the Stouts' three children; and five grandchildren--all were on hand.

Stout has written some 50 musical compositions and arrangements, more of them choral works than any other kind, reflecting his experience.

"I came here to teach piano and theory but soon took over the conducting of the second choir or chorus." One of the highlights of his conducting career was the oratorio, "Elija," presented during WSU Mother's Weekend and featuring the famed William Warfield as soloist in the mid-1950s. "We had a chorus of 150 students and took it to The Post Theater in Spokane for another performance."

Stout wrote "The Redeemer," an Easter Cantata and conducted its performance by the combined choirs of the local Methodist and Presbyterian churches for a state women's music organization meeting at WSU. He also conducted Honegger's "King David" at WSU, and directed the Presbyterian church choir for some 20 years.

His choir work even led him into ceremonial song leading at WSU for several years at student orientation convocations and commencement. Voice-wise, he says "I wouldn't categorize myself but I used to sing tenor in the choir."

"At the orientations I used to try to teach freshmen the Alma Mater. It was embarrassing. I didn't know the words very well because usually I played the accompaniment or conducted rather than sing."

As pianist Stout has been well known as soloist, performer in two-piano duos and with chamber groups. He has been a member of several WSU faculty ensembles, including recently the Kimbrough Trio in which he joined a violinist and cellist.

The piano has led him into a hobby for which he is widely known--that of collecting and renovating reproducing pianos and the roll recordings used on them.

The reproducing piano is a highly sophisticated refinement of the player piano, developed to preserve actual performances of the great concert artists of the early 20th century, for instance, Paderewski, in the days before electronic recording.

Stout's collection of 2,500 roll recordings is one of the best in the world, and is the basis of the 30-minute radio program, "The Legendary Pianists," for which he is host and commentator.

Selection from this store of recordings are placed on his Steinway Duo-art reproducing piano and recorded for the program, which is distributed for broadcast use by WSU's Radio Tape Network. It is aired weekly over KWSU and some 20 other educational and commercial stations in the Northwest.

"I've bought altogether 10 different reproducing pianos using either the Duo-art or Ampico mechanisms, just to get the rolls. Then I fix up the piano and sell it. I have kept only two," he said.

Stout took master's and doctor's degrees from the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y., and also studied at the University of Missouri. He took a year of graduate work at the University of Iowa.

Larry Coy

Iowa industrial arts graduate honored

by Maureen Kelly
Student Staff Writer

Larry Coy, industrial arts teacher at Chariton, Iowa, Community High School, insists that he teaches his classes "similar to the way that most industrial arts instructors do," but he must do something different--he's recently been voted 1979 Industrial Arts Teacher of the Year in Iowa.

Coy, who graduated from Northeast Missouri State University in 1964 with a B.S.E. and in 1978 with a M.A. in Industrial Education, is remembered by his college professors as a personable student with great potential as a teacher.

"The thing I remember most about him is the fact that he was such a pleasant fellow, well-dressed and mannered, who looked and played the part of a teacher. He got along with everyone," Lowell Priebe, associate professor of industrial education, says.

"He was always on the front row," Ralph Shain, assistant professor of industrial education, says.

Shain remembers Coy as a conscientious student "all the way through." Since he taught Coy, Shain has supervised NMSU student teachers at Chariton and has observed Coy's teaching methods.

"He has great rapport with students--they flock around his office when they have a break."

Shain says it is Coy's "personal contact" with students and ability to "get down to their level" that makes Coy an outstanding teacher.

Despite Coy's own claims of conventionality, he had to pass some stringent qualifications to receive the honor of Iowa IE Teacher of the Year.

The award is based on criteria including rapport with and ability to motivate students; upgrading the industrial arts curriculum, ingenuity in organizing situations and a well-grounded philosophy of industrial arts education. The recipient also must be active in pertinent local, state and national professional education associations.

Coy was nominated by the American Industrial Arts Association and was selected for the award by the Iowa Industrial Education Association in December 1978. Announcement of his selection was withheld, however, until the AIAA annual convention held in March in San Antonio, Texas.

NMSU Crime Lab aids law enforcement

by Maureen Kelly
Student Staff Writer

"A bag of white powder can be any number of things."

And Mike Dixon, forensic chemist at the Criminalistics Laboratory at Northeast Missouri State University, can find out just what it is.

Dixon, a 1978 graduate of NMSU, routinely processes and analyzes confiscated drugs brought to the lab by law enforcement officers working in the northeast portion of Missouri. Specialized equipment in the lab also enables him to identify alcohol, blood types and other substances as well as to compare hairs, soils, fibers, fingerprints, bullets and paint.

Dixon usually approaches an unknown substance in the same general way.

"The procedure for drugs is fairly constant. First, I test the substance by a simple chemical color test to screen out certain possibilities and get an idea as to what the substance could contain. Secondly, I run a gas chromatogram to determine its purity and partial identification. If it happens to be pure, I analyze the substance using infrared spectroscopy. If not, other methods need to be employed."

Dixon entered the field of forensic science in a rather unsuspecting way. As an undergraduate chemistry major he was a student aide for Dr. Matt Eichor, director of the Criminalistics Laboratory, and it was then that he developed an interest in forensic work.

"When Dr. Eichor told me I'd be working in forensic chemistry, I had to slip off with a dictionary and look up the meaning of the word 'forensic' in relation to chemistry. I didn't know it meant 'pertaining to the law.'"

Eichor, who established the NMSU lab in 1973, also had no notion of what forensic chemistry was before his initiation into the field in 1970.

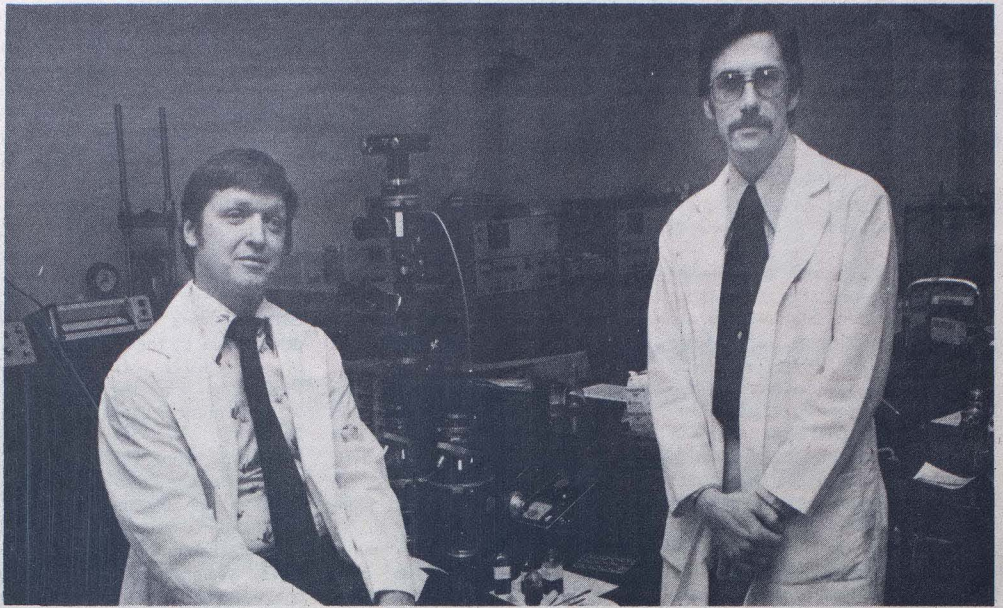

"I had little concept in what I was being involved and proceeded to have the education of my life in many respects. I had to do homework on the whole legal system."

The establishment of a university-affiliated crime lab isn't a completely unique idea. The lab, located on the second floor of Science Hall, is one of five crime labs affiliated with universities in Missouri. The total operation of the lab is supported by the University and the Regional Council on Criminal Justice, with the funding that comes through Northeast helping to fulfill the University's objectives of providing not only education but also research and service.

"The lab is really a service to the area; there is nowhere else in this immediate area to go for the expertise provided at this lab," Eichor says. The northeast portion of the state served by NMSU's Crime Lab extends from Hannibal, Moberly, Brookfield and all points north.

Although the lab is supported by Northeast, the evidence it receives is not processed by students.

"The instruments in the Crime Lab are used by science students for their

WANTED: IDENTITY OF SUBSTANCE "X"--Just give it to forensic chemists Dr. Matt Eichor (left) or Mike Dixon, and they'll analyze it at the Criminalistics Laboratory at Northeast Missouri State University.

Eichor, associate professor of science and social science and director of the law enforcement and corrections program at NMSU, established the Crime Lab in 1973. Under his direction, the lab has grown to serve law enforcement agencies in northeast Missouri, including Hannibal, Moberly and Brookfield.

Dixon has taken on many of the responsibilities of the Crime Lab. His duties include keeping records, receiving, processing and analyzing evidence and writing a report on his findings. He also testifies if the case is contested in court.

own experiments and class projects; students do not work on cases," Dixon says. He and Eichor process and analyze all evidence, from 150 to 200 cases each year.

The results of any analysis may warrant a testimony in court. Dixon, who has taken on most of the testimonies since his employment in August 1978, says that he was eager to be actively involved in the criminal justice system. "After sitting in a room for eight hours waiting for a testimony that might last fifteen minutes, however, it loses some degree of excitement."

Since the majority of all the cases the chemists analyze involve drugs, Northeast's Crime Lab was required to equip its evidence room with a maximum-security alarm system which licenses it to a Schedule 1 control permit for controlled substances. The room is a big vault licensed to hold controlled substances that even doctors and pharmacists may not legally possess.

The lab also works with alcohol identification, limited blood identification and identification of hydrocarbon accelerants in cases of bombing and arson. Chromatographs, compact units which can analyze either gaseous or liquid substances, separate samples into their pure states. Infrared or ultraviolet detectors are used to identify the substances after they've been separated. Highly specialized microscopes allow the chemists to establish whether a particular hair, fiber, paint chip, bullet, piece of soil or glass found on a suspect can be linked to the scene of a crime.

All analyses demand a great familiarity with chemical and biochemical processes. When Dixon or Eichor need other professional assistance, they call on the rest of the staff of the science faculty.

"The professors are well-specialized in an area, such as biochemistry or organic and inorganic chemistry. If we have a specific problem about a certain test or process, we can go to one of them and borrow some expertise in that area," Dixon says.

Another alternative Eichor and Dixon have if they need more information is to research in Pickler Memorial Library on campus. The library facilities as well as faculty resources are not usually available to crime labs not affiliated with a university.

The NMSU connection with the Crime Lab benefits the general public as well as the lab itself, Eichor says.

"We analyze evidence, utilizing equipment that is purchased through tax dollars. The money also gets used for educational purposes, and so the same room and same very expensive equipment serve a dual purpose, that of education and service. If you had to do the same job utilizing two state agencies you would have to duplicate a great deal of that equipment and at least a part of the personnel."

For Mike Dixon and Dr. Matt Eichor, personnel of Northeast Missouri State University's Criminalistics Laboratory, work in forensic chemistry has been interesting, to say the least. Sometimes, they agree, fact has proven stranger than fiction, as in a case Eichor handled some years ago, when a hospital in the city in which he was working couldn't diagnose the illness of a man who was repeatedly admitted.

"Each time he would go into the hospital he would recover and doctors couldn't diagnose the problem. On the third admission the doctors suspected a poisoning and we received hair samples to test. I analyzed the hair; he was being poisoned by arsenic. As we pieced the facts together there was little question that his wife was the one doing it, and this was complicated by her relationship with a doctor."

Eichor considers this one of his favorite cases, not only for its Perry Mason plot, but also because "we were able to assist in the diagnosis of something before a death had occurred." The only sad part about the story is its ending: "The man did not want to become involved and wouldn't testify."

Dixon can't pinpoint the most interesting or favorite case in his career as a forensic chemist. He does fondly remember a case in another state where a gasoline leak from a filling station into the sewage system below the city started a series of underground explosions which caused heavy-plated manhole covers to "blow like flying pancakes 20 feet into the air." His job was to analyze the gas present in the sewer and identify the brand of gasoline so the particular station with the leak could be located.

Most cases processed by the Criminalistics Laboratory at NMSU do not attain such heights of distinction, but are usually routine cases with basic analyses and common results. No matter what the case, however, Dixon always finds one facet of his job as a forensic chemist fascinating.

"It's a challenge to be handed an unknown substance and have someone ask, 'What is it?'"

1000 Hills Summer Youth Program

They keep coming back for more

by Diane M. Davis, Student Staff Writer

The 1000 Hills Summer Youth Program at Northeast Missouri State University has been so successful in recent years that students can't seem to get enough of the summer camps.

For example, Su and Lu Hiltabidle, twins from Waverly, participated for their seventh consecutive year in the camps. They first signed up in junior high school for band camp.

Lu said, "They're a good way to meet people and get involved during the summer. The camps are a lot of fun."

The twins are considering returning to NMSU next year as counselors for the camps. Their sister, Greer, presently attends NMSU as a sophomore and their father, Larry, is a 1955 graduate.

Designed for junior and senior high school students, the 22 camps provide expert instruction in band, chorus, computer science, tennis, newspaper and yearbook staffs, piano, cheerleading, pom-pom, gymnastics, art, football, jazz and baton twirling and drum major. This summer they ran from June 4 through July 13.

Although beginners are welcome to join any camp, Head Counselor Jim Head said most of the girls in the junior high basketball camp, for example, were involved in basketball programs at their schools.

Fourteen-year-old Stephanie Steffen of Shelbyville came to the Junior High Girls' Basketball Camp last year and liked it so much she talked several friends into coming with her this year. All of them are on basketball teams in their schools.

Two of her friends, Kathy Gaines and Kim Shepherd, both 13, came because they thought it would be fun and help improve their skills.

Toni Smith, 13, Shelbina, was a bit more specific about why she came to camp. "I came 'cause I was a bench warmer last year!" she admitted with a laugh.

Camp instructors are experts in their fields—nationally known clinicians, NMSU faculty members, well-qualified coaches and exceptional public school teachers. Two guest clinicians, Col. Arnauld Gabriel and Paul Salamunovich, have returned year after year.

Gabriel has conducted in all 50 states and in 45 countries throughout the world. As commander of The U.S. Air Force Band and Singing Sergeants, he is the only active Air Force musician to hold the Legion of Merit, a peacetime award.

Tom Duden, director of the 1000 Hills Summer Youth Program, said,

"He's the best conductor in the U.S. The moment he walks onto the stage the air changes; it's a magnetism." Gabriel worked with the band camp this year for his 12th year.

Salamunovich, who directed the 1000 Hills Summer Youth Choral Camp Chorus for his sixth year, has been singing, teaching and conducting choral music in southern California for more than 30 years, winning many awards.

He is associate professor of music at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles and has been associate conductor of the Roger Wagner Chorale, a professional group in Los Angeles that travels worldwide.

Head said Salamunovich develops good rapport with his campers during rehearsals so they really strive for their best.

Duden maintains his program by adding new camps to attract more students. Northeast's camp program has not been greatly affected by the national trend of dropping enrollment caused by increased costs and more youngsters' working during the summer because of this strategy.

Since he became director in 1966, the program has evolved into a 22-camp program with 1,700 students involved. When it began in 1954 it had only three camps—band, chorus and twirling.

"This is the only program I know of where everything is organized under one umbrella, one person," Duden said. He said he believes better coordination of activities results.

Cost is another way the 1000 Hills program differs. Duden said a lot of places have different prices for the various camps. At NMSU $65 is charged, regardless of the camp.

During the camps, the campers and counselors live in NMSU residence halls and eat in the hall cafeterias. The camp fee also includes a week's room and board.

Students aren't the only ones that come back again and again. Head, his wife, Betsy, and daughter, Amy, have been with the camps for nine, eight, and six years. Both Head and his wife are counselors.

The camps have changed a lot through the years. Eight years ago the program was only one week long; now it runs for five weeks. Betsy said, "The time will come when we won't be working with the camps anymore, but I'm kind of hesitant to think about it. We'd really miss it."

See you next year!

Dream of two Kirksville distance men--

Participating in Olympic Marathon Trials

by William Cable, Sports Information Director

Skeptical non-participants relate it to gasping breath, blisters, shin-splints, cramps and other painful problems.

They ask: "Why do fellow human beings put their bodies through endless hours of such torture?"

Nevertheless, this mania called jogging and running has infected thousands of men and women of all ages.

While many people are "into" this form of physical fitness for the first time, others, like Dave Harris and Joe Haake of Kirksville, started running as teenagers. Any day, regardless of the temperature, they are seen pounding the pavements of city streets and nearby country blacktop and gravel roads, covering 100 or more miles per week.

Harris, a Kirksville High School teacher, coaches cross-country and helps with the track team. Haake is a candidate for a master's degree in environmental biology this summer at NMSU. They have two things in common. Both competed in cross-country and track for Northeast and are now marathon performers.

The coach has qualified for the 1980 Olympic Marathon Trials next spring in Buffalo, N.Y. About 150 runners will compete in the trials to determine what three performers will represent the U.S. at the Olympics next summer in Moscow.

Harris toured the grueling, 26-mile, 385-yard distance in two hours, 19:50; this past February at New Orleans, finishing eighth in the race. He has been in two other marathons, the Drake Relays last year and the 1979 Boston Marathon, considered by most observers as the most prestigious one. Harris was 64th at Boston, coming in ahead of Frank Shorter, an Olympic gold medal winner.

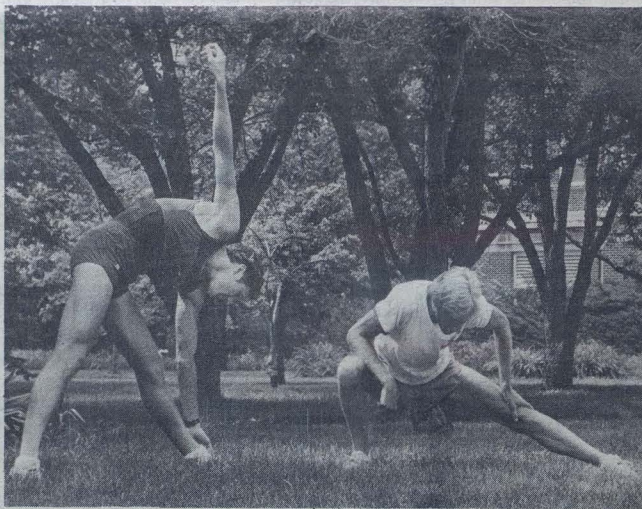

Haake has until next spring to whittle almost six minutes off his best time of two hours, 27:20, to qualify for the trials. His fastest effort was this year at Boston, good enough for 184th place. Haake has other marathon experience. He ran in February at St. Louis and once in high school at Silver Dollar City. Both runners say the Boston spectacle was their biggest thrill. "It was fantastic, with two million people watching the race," Haake adds.

Harris and Haake also participate in half marathons, and shorter races. However, they agree the 26-mile affair is the most difficult to train for, especially in the winter when slick streets are an additional handicap.

"I like to work out with members of my high school team," Harris says. "But after I compete in a marathon, they usually beat me. It takes a while to recover."

Blisters, aching knees or other miseries have at one time or another been a nemesis to Harris and Haake. But they say that they now know more about taking care and preparing their bodies for workouts and actual races.

Unlike many track and cross-country athletes, they have continued running after college. However, Haake, disappointed with his senior campaign at NMSU, quit competing the first two years out of school before resuming his running.

ANOTHER DAY OF ROAD WORK—Above, Joe Haake (left) and Dave Harris start another day of rigorous training in preparation for one of their numerous races this summer. Harris has already qualified for the 1980 Olympic Marathon Trials while Haake has until next spring to try to shave about six minutes off his fastest time to meet the two hour and 21:54 qualifying standard. The former NMSU distance performers log about 100 miles of road work per week. Below, before they begin their routine, they spend time loosening up.

Both men launched their running careers in junior high school. Harris started as a seventh grader in Warrensburg, but Haake was a ninth grader in the St. Louis-Riverview Gardens school system before he became seriously involved.

Harris was blessed with good speed and probably would have concentrated on the sprints if he hadn't been plagued with chronic pulled muscles.

Ron Clauson, an NMSU graduate, was the Warrensburg High School coach. "He suggested that I switch to the half mile and mile, because my muscles couldn't tolerate dash events," Harris recalls.

While in high school, Harris pointed to a collegiate basketball career, instead of track. He earned all-conference honors as a junior and senior, served as team captain both years, and was named Warrensburg's Most Valuable Player as a junior. However, Harris didn't enjoy a good senior campaign on the hardwood under a new coach. He also questioned his ability to play the game on the college level.

Meanwhile on the track, Harris was developing into a prolific miler, placing fourth and third as a junior and senior at the state meet. His fastest clocking was 4:28 in his final prep campaign. "Coach Clauson said I had a lot of potential for college track," Harris reflects. "I wanted to attend an out-of-town school with a good track program, and I believed NMSU was it."

Contrary to Harris, Haake learned at an early age speed wasn't one of his assets, so he focused on the distances. He thinks a turning point in his career was a running camp in the summers before his junior and senior years in high school.

"Coach Bud Lyon (St. Louis County high school coach) was a great motivator and helped my confidence," he says. Ed Schneider, current NMSU cross-country coach and assistant track coach, directed the two sports at Riverview Gardens when Haake was a junior and senior. Haake finished fourth in the state cross-country meet as a senior, participated in the half mile, and carried the baton on the two-mile relay unit.

Haake matriculated to NMSU in 1972, and described his freshman season as a "memorable one." He was a member of a cross-country squad that competed in the NCAA Division II Championships, finishing 16th. During his final two years on Kenneth Gardner's track team, Haake was on a conference winning two-mile relay quartet. He also turned in a time of 9:25.0 in the steeplechase as a junior.

Harris joined Haake at NMSU in 1973. The Warrensburg recruit was also on the two-mile relay aggregation. In his junior year, he logged the second fastest time ever for a Bulldog miler with a 4:09 feat. Harris also served as a Bulldog track captain.

Haake and Harris indicate coaches during their careers, such as Clauson, Schneider and Gardner, were a great influence on their careers.

Will running continue to be a time-consuming routine for them? Their reply is an emphatic yes.

Harris says he wants to run the marathon event until 1984, hoping to be ranked nationally by that time. He has no delusions of grandeur about the 1980 Olympic Trials. "My goal is to run my best time and place as high as possible," he comments.

Haake will concentrate on running, regardless of where his degree in environmental biology takes him.

NMSU wins all-sports title for first time since 1975-76

Northeast Missouri State University is the 1978-79 Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association all-sports champion, scoring a low total of 26 points in 10 conference sports and winning the title for the 16th time.

The Bulldogs captured crowns in basketball, wrestling and indoor and outdoor track on the way to their first all-sports championship since 1975-76. They were second in football, tied for third in baseball, finished fourth in cross country, swimming and golf and tied for fourth in tennis.

Southwest Missouri State, last year's winner, was runner-up in the all-sports standings with 29½ points, followed by Southeast Missouri State with 35½, Central Missouri State with 39, Northwest Missouri State with 42, University of Missouri-Rolla with 53½ and Lincoln University with 54½.

The league school with the fewest number of points is proclaimed the all-sports champion. A team claiming a title in a sport receives one point, the second-place finisher is assessed two points, etc.

Futrell third Bulldog to place in Division I outdoor track

Dan Futrell accomplished this spring what only two former Northeast Missouri State University trackmen have achieved... earning a place at the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I Outdoor Championships.

Futrell, who won the NCAA Division II 800-meter title in May, finished fourth in the NCAA Division I Meet a week later. He charted his best reading ever and a school record time of 1:46.81 in the Division II race. Futrell was just a little shy of that time in the Division I encounter with a clocking of 1:46.87.

Now that he has completed his intercollegiate career, the St. Louis-Berkeley graduate indicated his big goal was to qualify for the 1978 Olympics in Moscow. In mid-June, he entered qualification for the 800 meters at the National AAU Championships, but he didn't survive the semifinals. However, Futrell logged the second best effort among participants in the preliminaries on the first day of competition. He hoped to enter at least one more meet later in the summer.

As a team, the Bulldogs captured the 1979 Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association indoor and outdoor championships and were ninth at the Division II outing. In addition to Futrell, senior Charles "Cookie" Thornton was an NCAA place-winner, finishing second in the high jump with a leap of 7-0 1/4.

Northeast's other points in the national meet were contributed by the 1,600-meter relay team, consisting of juniors Sterling Bridges, Herb Dampier and Perry Williams, and Futrell. The baton crew was third with a clocking of 3:09.4.

Craddock faces tough football schedule in his first season as bulldog coach

by William Cable
Sports Information Director

Bruce Craddock is the realistic type. And realistically, the new Northeast Missouri State head coach classifies the 1979 football campaign as a rebuilding year.

The Bulldogs, who will start pre-season workouts Aug. 11, lost 13 lettermen (12 of them starters) from a 1978 club that compiled a 6-4-1 overall record against formidable Division II competition, and finished second in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

"Our schedule this fall will be tougher than at any time I can recall as a Northeast player or assistant coach," Craddock insists.

NMSU has added Drake University of the Missouri Valley Conference, a Division I-A school, to a slate that includes four of the five non-conference foes the 'Dogs were pitted against last season. The holdovers are Eastern Illinois, the Division II champion; Central Arkansas, an NAAIA playoff entrant; South Dakota, winner of the North Central Conference last autumn; and Cameron (Okla.), which was ranked as high as second in the 1978 NAAIA ratings.

"We have a good returning nucleus (17 monogram recipients) that has performed against some very good competition," Craddock points out. "This group must provide leadership to the youngsters on the squad. We enjoyed one of our best recruiting years in recent memory, and we're depending on many of these young prospects to mature and play immediately."

While the 'Dogs will be inexperienced at many positions, the new taskmaster is hoping they develop into a club that has a lot to say about the outcome of the MIAA race. "Our overriding goal is winning the conference title," he says. "However, I think the favorites have to be Southwest Missouri State (defending champion) and Southeast Missouri State."

NMSU's offensive "blueprint" will be designed by a new coordinator this fall. He is Donnie Gaddis, who has 14 years of football coaching behind him, including the past five campaigns at Missouri Southern.

The 1979 multiple attack will stress more of an aerial game than in recent seasons with drop-back and sprint-out passing. When the ball is on the ground, the emphasis will be on option and power football.

Seven mainstays from the 1978 offensive unit won't be back in September. Two of them, tailback Mike Harris and guard Darrell Buffington, were All-Americans. Harris (second team All-American) led NCAA Division II in rushing last year with 1,598 yards, new school and conference records.

An inexperienced interior forward wall will have just two holdovers, junior center John Kraemer and sophomore tackle Jerry Hartsock.

Craddock and Gaddis are keeping their fingers crossed that senior Larry Sommer can make a successful transition from fullback to guard, and several returning squadmen emerge as starters.

Two sophomore squadmen have the inside track at tight end. Greg Himmelman and Scott Zornes are highly regarded by the coaches, but they must mature to get the job done. Most of the wide receiver corps are unproven squadmen. Although junior Eric Holm is a letterman, he earned his numeral primarily as a punt return specialist. Other top pass-catching candidates are sophomores Duane Hercules, Greg Bradley (1977 squadman) and Bob Theard.

Craddock expects a "dogfight" for the quarterback assignment. Sophomore Greg Dolence, the starter for most of last season, is the best runner. However, Iowa transfer Craig Towbin, a 6-6 sophomore, is the best passer. Senior Gregg Williams, who played behind Dolence last season, is considered a good runner and thrower by Craddock.

Like some other positions, freshmen may have to bolster the ball-carrying spots. In the spring, the coaching staff took a long look at senior Paul Wernsman (second leading ground-gainer in 1978 with 533 yards), senior Gregg Nesbitt (sidelined with a separated shoulder in April) and several squadmen. Nesbitt should be healed and ready to play this fall.

John Smith joined the coaching staff this spring to assume responsibilities as defensive coordinator, bringing with him experience as an assistant at Wisconsin (Madison) for four years and as head coach at Elgin (Ill.) High School this past season. He plans to use a multiple front and four-deep secondary.

The "inside guts" of the defensive line must be replaced before the 1979 opener. Losses include All-America tackle Mark Sobol.

But there are bright spots, such as seven returning starters from the 1978 defensive platoon. Junior end Melvin Kennedy (6-4, 225) was first team all-MIAA last autumn, pacing the 'Dogs in solo tackles with 27 and quarterback "sacks" with eight. Senior linebacker Doug Kreighbaum was also in the all-conference top unit, and led NMSU in interceptions with four.

Junior cornerback Craig Patton and senior nose guard Keith Driscoll (an Academic All-American) landed on the all-league honorable mention list. Other defensive holdovers are senior end Mike Rogers, sophomore corner-safety Jon Walton and senior safety Charlie Calhoun. Sophomore safety Andre Washington saw considerable action.

Senior Leonard Fagan, an all-MIAA safety in 1977, will try to make a comeback after undergoing knee surgery twice since last fall. Junior linebacker Jeff Pickett, a starting safety in 1977, quit the team early last year, but is now back with the 'Dogs.

The Bulldog kicking game should be in pretty good hands, says Craddock. He is counting on senior Bob Fletcher (second team all-MIAA last year) to handle the punting and long field goals. Dolence will be responsible for PAT's and short field goals, while junior squadman Tom Saey will probably kick off for NMSU.

NEW COACH IN ACTION--NMSU's new football coach, Bruce Craddock, barks some instructions to the offensive unit during a practice session.

MINIATURE PERSHING--A model illustrates an aerial view of Pershing Arena after renovation. It will feature three basketball courts, power-operated bleachers and five handball courts (lower left).

Pershing Arena to house three basketball courts

Having three basketball courts instead of one is going to benefit the total physical education and athletics program this year at Northeast Missouri State University, said Kenneth Gardner, NMSU athletic director.

The $1.6 million renovation of 20-year-old Pershing Building, which houses the University sports facilities, includes the addition of two basketball courts, five handball courts and power-operated wood bleachers.

Gardner ticked off the advantages of the renovation.

"With three basketball courts instead of one, we can have three intramural games simultaneously. Better lighting will benefit everyone from the physical education students to the varsity players. We'll have more activities available. We can have a better indoor tennis program."

Campus Planner Doug Winicker pointed out another benefit.

"Now, NMSU will be able to better accommodate women's athletics." The women had been using a smaller gym with tile floor, which will now be opened up for gymnastics and dance.

Although no changes will be made in the actual structure of the building, all renovations will use the existing space more efficiently. The position of the main basketball court will constitute the biggest change, said Winicker. Rather than running east and west, it will run north and south, making room for two additional side courts.

The surface of the main court will remain wood, but the two side courts will have a synthetic surface that is better than asphalt because it is more resilient, yet costs only about half as much as wood.

Power-operated wood bleachers that unfold automatically at the push of a button will replace the old manually operated bleachers. Although the seating capacity will remain the same, room will be made for seats that can be added as needed, Winicker said. Pershing Arena presently seats 3,600 persons.

Other renovations include installation of energy-efficient lights that give more light for the same amount of energy. Also, an elevator will provide access to all three floors of Pershing Building for handicapped students.

Phase I, the basketball court renovation, should be complete in about six to eight weeks, around the beginning of the semester, said Winicker. The handball courts, Phase II, are scheduled for completion by December.

President McClain urges alumni to support Greek Row

President Charles J. McClain and the Board of Regents have proposed that a "Greek Row" be established on the west side of campus along First Street from Patterson to Normal streets. Tentative plans include 11 to 13 sites for houses providing sleeping facilities for 15 to 30 people.

As part of the area, the University would develop recreational and parking facilities in the Greek Row section of campus. The houses would face east toward campus and would have an access road. Plans also are being discussed to move the sororities from Brewer Hall to Centennial Hall, so that all Greeks would reside in the same area of campus.

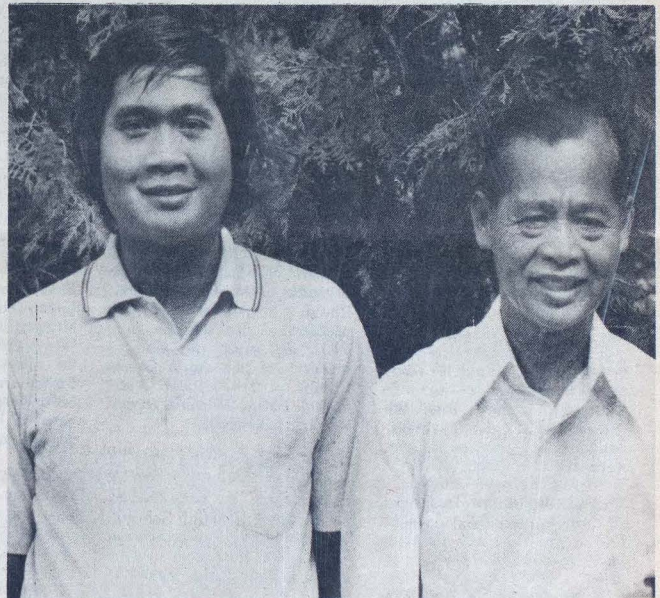

Several Greek organizations have expressed interest in the proposal. Sigma Tau Gamma Alumni Board members recently met with President McClain about the proposal. The Sig Taus are in the process of raising funds for a new fraternity house.

"I think the development of a Greek Row is a way the University can provide positive leadership for the Greek system," President McClain said. "By working together--Greek students, Greek alumni and the University--I can see Greek Row becoming a reality by the end of the 1980s."

President McClain said he was hopeful that Greek alumni would support the concept of Greek Row and would express their support to the local chapters and alumni boards.

There are 14 fraternities on campus: Alpha Gamma Rho, Alpha Kappa Lambda, Alpha Phi Alpha, Alpha Tau Omega, Beta Gamma Beta, Delta Chi, Kappa Alpha Psi, Omega Psi Phi, Phi Kappa Theta, Phi Lambda Chi, Phi Sigma Epsilon, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Tau Gamma, and Tau Kappa Epsilon. The eight sororities are: Alpha Kappa Alpha, Alpha Delta Alpha, Alpha Sigma Tau, Delta Sigma Theta, Delta Zeta, Sigma Gamma Rho, Sigma Kappa, and Sigma Sigma Sigma.

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS RETURNS TO CAMPUS--Andres C. Acoba, M.A. 1954, (right) vice president and professor of education of Corregidor College, Nueva Ecija, Philippines, returned to campus in May for his first visit since his graduation from the University. His son Edwin, who is attending the University of Kansas, accompanied him. In making a contribution to the Ryle Scholarship Fund, Mr. Acoba credited the Ryles with making it financially possible for him to complete his graduate work at NMSU.

Jose R. Dizon, M.A. 1965, is president of Corregidor College and his father Eulogio R. Dizon, M.A. 1948, who was the first person to receive the M.A. degree from NMSU, is the retired president.

Natalie Murrell Lucas 1927 of Kirksville, died Oct. 11, 1978, at the age of 75. She is survived by her husband, Otto Lucas; a daughter, Mrs. Lyle (Corrine) Kibble of Dallas, Texas, and one grandchild. Mrs. Lucas had been employed for 10 years in Sullivan County and later was employed with the Adair County Old Age Assistance for 10 years. Before her retirement in 1968, she was in charge of the Office of Child Welfare. Funeral services were held in Kirksville, with burial in Maple Hills Cemetery, Kirksville.

Joe Bostic King 1925 of Overland Park, Kan., died Dec. 12, 1978, at the age of 78. Burial was in Corinth Cemetery of Overland Park. After retirement in 1965, Mr. King was president of A.A.R.P. for two years and was on the Board of Directors for Kansas Citizens Council on Aging Inc. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edith S. King, 8021

Antioch Rd., Overland Park. Also surviving are one daughter, two grandsons, three great-grandsons and many nieces and nephews.

Howard W. Maitland, age 66, of La Plata, Mo., died Feb. 21, 1979. He was the husband of Berniece Mercer Maitland 1932, and the father of Sharon S. Graham 1961 and Barbara Maitland. Mr. Maitland had been employed with the U.S. Postal Service in La Plata as letter carrier and assistant postmaster for 40 years before his retirement in 1973. Funeral and burial services were held in La Plata.

Walter R. Tiller 1933 of Macon, Mo., died Feb. 19, 1979. Funeral services were held in Macon. Mr. Tiller had been a teacher for many years and had lived in Macon since his retirement. Surviving are one granddaughter and three sisters.

Elizabeth C. Hunter 1941 of Louisiana, Mo., died Jan. 1, 1979. (David R. Hunter sent this information.)

Loren L. Anderson of Ingleside, Texas, husband of Twila Aeschliman Anderson 1964, died April 16, 1979. Mr. Anderson had been a police officer in Kirksville before moving to Ingleside four years ago, where he was an electrical engineer. In addition to his wife, he is survived by three children, Roy, Ella and Lorie.

Lucy Reddish 1916, age 86, of Memphis, Mo., died July 18, 1978. Miss Reddish was a former teacher. Funeral and burial services were held in Memphis. (We are grateful to Mrs. Lena Newmyer Jones 1916, of 804 Jackson, Macon, Mo., for this information.)

Willie V. Kincaid 1940 of Decatur,

Ill., died Sept. 27, 1978. Miss Kincaid was a retired teacher. She was a member of the Decatur First Baptist Church and the NMSU Alumni Association. She is survived by two brothers, W. O. Kincaid, Palo Alto, Calif., and R.T. Kincaid, San Jose, Calif. Two sisters, Mrs. Lois Brady, White Bear Lake, Minn., and Mrs. Esta E. Thrasher, Parkville, Mo., also survive. Funeral and burial services were in Marceline, Mo. (We are grateful to Mrs. Thrasher for this information.)

Helen Street Bosch 1942 of Jefferson City, Mo., died April 1, 1979, at Ellis Fischel State Cancer Hospital in Columbia, Mo. She taught business education for three years and later was a bookkeeper and secretary before illness forced her retirement. Surviving are her husband, Charles Bosch; two sons, Jerry Bosch, Thayer, Kan., and John Bosch, Jefferson City; one daughter, Marion Palmer, Anderson, Ind.; and two grandchildren. Funeral services and burial were in Purdin, Mo.

Gail M. Edgington Vail 1927, age 77, of Rt. 3, Kirksville, died March 23, 1979. She is survived by her husband, Don J. Vail 1927; two sons, Don J. Vail Jr. of Grayson, Ga., and James R. Vail 1960 of Ballwin, Mo. Also surviving are one sister, two brothers and four grandchildren. Mrs. Vail was a teacher for several years and later she and her family lived on a farm near Sheffield, Iowa, until 1952, when they moved to Kirksville. Mrs. Vail was a member of the First United Methodist Church and the NMSU Alumni Association. Funeral services were held in Kirksville, with burial in Maple Hills Cemetery.
