President's Corner

PRESIDENT F. CLARK ELKINS

It is a pleasure to extend greetings to the many alumni friends of the College. It is my hope to be able to meet and visit with many of you in the coming months. Although it has been a brief time since I became the eighth president of your alma mater, I am impressed with the warm wishes and expressions of good will that we have received. It is comforting to know that there is such an interested, loyal group whose interest is genuine and sincere.

Please be assured that my consuming interest will be in the development and extension of the sphere of influence of your College. With the help of the students, faculty, alumni and friends, we can expect to achieve even greater heights as we begin our second century of service to the cause of education.

13,000 Alumni on Record

Dr. Ryle
Praises Alumni

Asks Continuous Support

According to our Alumni Office, we have more than 13,000 Alumni officially recorded in its records. There have been, of course, hundreds of Alumni through the past century that for, one reason or another, have not enrolled with the Alumni Office. We are hoping that with the organization of the National Alumni Association we can secure a 100 per cent enrollment from each class.

I have valued and appreciated the loyal and active support that the Alumni has given to me and to the ideals for which the college stands and its educational program. The Alumni can be one of the most effective assets of a college. I doubt whether or not there are many colleges whose Alumni have been interested in its general welfare as the Alumni of this institution. Through the years, I have deeply appreciated the active and effective support they have given me as the President of their college.

I hope you who are the Alumni and the former students of this college will give President Clark Elkins the same loyal support I have received through the years. In doing so, you will be a vital factor in helping your college to become one of the great teachers college of this nation. I am sure President Elkins will appreciate your interest and loyal support as he assumes leadership of Missouri's oldest teacher education institution.

"From These Roots"

Directed by Al Srnka

The opening Centennial Ceremonies at the Teachers College began on Friday, January 20 when the curtain raised for the first time on the Symphonic Drama, "From These Roots" which portrayed the history of the Teachers College from its inception in 1876 until the present day. Directed and written by Al Srnka of the College faculty, the drama ran for five nights with a near capacity house on opening night and several hundred in attendance for succeeding performances. Setting the stage for the 15 episodes, which were based on historical events, was the prologue. It introduced the audience to the circumstances existing in Kirksville, the state of Missouri and the country as a whole in 1860, and the effect they have on the progress of education.

Prologue

It is in 1860 that Cumberland Academy, established by the Kirksville Presbytery, first opens its doors to some fifty male and female students. However, the newly founded college is not able to survive due to the concern of the board members, faculty, and students over the national situation, the events leading to the war between the states.

During this same period Professor Joseph Baldwin, soon to become the founder of the Missouri State Normal School at Kirksville, operating his newly founded Indiana Normal School which the ensuing war causes for him to close. He, along with many of his students, joins the Union Army. After a brief sojourn, he returns to civilian life and continues his career as a teacher.

Symphonic Drama Opens Centennial Celebration

Episodes

Part I (1867-1881): President Baldwin is encouraged to establish a normal school in Kirksville. He looks over the site of the old Cumberland Academy, and then sets out to enlist a faculty for his new school. Kirksville puts in a bid for the Missouri State Normal School of the first district. Baldwin's private school becomes the first teacher-training institution in the state and he its first president.

Part II (1881-1882): President Baldwin completes his work in Kirksville and sets out to establish another teacher training institution in Huntsville, Texas. Professor W. P. Nason, one of Baldwin's first appointed faculty members, serves as acting president for one year.

Part III (1882-1891): Joseph P. Blanton, superintendent of the public schools in Mexico, is appointed by the Board of Regents as third president of the State Normal School. Encouraging young people to read, President Blanton succeeds in building a library of well over 1,000 books. After an unsuccessful attempt at becoming the state superintendent of public schools, he resigns his position to accept the chair of pedagogy in the University of Missouri.

Ginger Nitti looks over her costume before opening night.

Part IV (1891-1899): William D. Dobson becomes the fourth president and continues to place emphasis on the professional work of the school. He invites President Baldwin to return to Kirksville and honors him with what is the first celebration of Founders Day or "Baldwin Day."

Part V (1889-1925): John R. Kirk, a graduate of the Normal school, is appointed fifth president by the Board of Regents. Dr. Kirk demands better facilities for his students, and succeeds in procuring a football field, a modern boiler unit, library, science hall, and a model rural school for their use.

He advocates many reforms in education, including sensible use of all forms of college athletics. Daily gymnasium work for girls and field work for men is begun. In 1917—There is a threat of war, and with it a student Army Training Corps is established. 1919—Through President Kirk's efforts the name of the school is changed to Northeast Missouri State Teacher's College. 1924—Both Baldwin Hall and the library are razed by fire. 1925—Dr. Kirk retires as president, but is honored with the title of President Emeritus and stays on as professor of advanced psychology and philosophy of education.

Part VI (1925-1937): Eugene Fair is the first native-born Missourian to become president of the Teachers College. Dr. Fair, with the aid of the Department of Education, introduces the Cadet Teacher Plan. Under this plan, the student is put in complete charge of classes in a laboratory school and earns ten hours of credit without pay.

Part VII (1937-1967): Following the death of Dr. Fair, the Board of Regents selects Dr. Walter Harrington Ryle as president. President Ryle proposes a three-point program of the College: 1) to expand the physical plants, 2) to reorganize the College administration, and 3) to offer new courses and curricula.

1941—War again interrupts the College scene, with 400 college men serving with the armed forces. 1946—A fifth year program is approved by the Board of Review of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. March 18, 1951—Fifty airmen arrive for a Teachers College program assisting the Air Force in training clerk-typists.

March 20, 1966—The Teachers College is officially designated a depository for federal documents by U.S. Senator Edward V. Long. President Ryle submits his resignation to the Board of Regents.

Epilogue—"From These Roots" shall come the spirit of knowledge, the spirit of counsel and might, and the spirit of wisdom and understanding."

Bulldog Cagers and Wrestlers Close In on Good Seasons

Winter athletics were not finished when this issue of the Nemoscope went to press, but the young Bulldog basketball and wrestling teams were performing somewhat better than expected.

Coach Boyd King's cagers had recorded a 10-10 mark and 4-4 in MIAA Conference competition with three contests remaining on the 1966-67 schedule. With a roster heavily dominated by 16 freshmen and sophomores, the Bulldogs were not expected to capture many league contests. Nevertheless, they had a chance to finish .500 or better with two conference outings left to play after an early February road trip. Sophomores Dave Wild of Cahokia, Illinois and Mike McPheron of Olney, Illinois were locked in a close battle for top team scorer, both averaging about 14 points per game.

Mike McPheron

The wrestling sport was only two years old at the Teachers College, but the Bulldog matmen had posted a 9-2 ledger in dual encounters through the first week of February. Coach H. A. Walmsley had only four returning lettermen at the beginning of the campaign, but fast-improving freshmen and dependable squadmen from last season combined with the veterans to make the grapplers one of the top teams in the MIAA. The two losses were to Missouri University and Northwest Missouri State, nationally ranked in the College Division ranks.

Regardless of the outcome of the remaining meets, Walmsley could look forward to next year with enthusiasm. He only loses one man from his entire squad, with most of his key performers, either freshmen or sophomores.

Fall Sports Suffer Losses In Football, Cross Country

Bulldog athletic teams didn't experience as much success last fall as they have in many of the previous seasons.

Maurice "Red" Wade experienced his worst football season since he started coaching in 1951 at Kirksville. His forces finished the 1966 campaign with a 3-6-0 mark, losing their last five games to finish in the MIAA Conference cellar for the first time since 1950. However, because of key injuries to veterans, a number of young performers were forced into action. This game experience should help the purple and white in 1967.

Despite the off-year, opposing coaches didn't overlook deserving Bulldogs when the time came to select the all-conference team. Kirksville was represented by halfback Sharron Washington on the offensive squad, and end Larry Johnsen and tackle Bill Seman on the defensive unit. Washington, who led the MIAA in rushing last fall, was chosen to the first team for the second consecutive year. Seman and Johnsen were on the 1965 second team.

Although Coach George Hermann's cross-country squad finished second behind Southeast Missouri in the Conference Meet, the Bulldogs' Ron Werling was the individual winner. Werling established a new record in the meet, running the four-mile course at Rolla in 20:46.5, although the weather was cold and foggy. He broke his own 1965 mark of 20:52.0. The talented runner from Tipton, Iowa also finished 11th in the NCAA National College Division Meet at Wheaton, Illinois.
