GlobeMed Raises Health Awareness

GlobeMed students lived up to their organization's name in the past year with trips to the Dominican Republic to raise awareness about health issues.

GlobeMed students visited the Dominican last summer to teach maternal health education among sugarcane field workers. The UN World Population Prospects indicated a deficit in maternal health knowledge and the Dominican's under-five mortality rate is among the highest in the Caribbean.

Working with a representative from the Healthy Mothers-Health Babies Foundation, the Truman students traveled to the Dominican and conducted screenings of the film "Enciende Una Luz," which translates to "Light a Candle." The video was produced using regional actors and musicians to both entertain and teach maternal health issues. Topics included timing of births, pregnancy risk factors and health practices for pregnancy. These sessions were complemented with an interactive review session to reinforce key facts.

Since many residents in the area spoke Kreyol instead of Spanish, an alternate version of the film was developed in preparation for a return trip.

Prior to the follow-up visit this past December, the GlobeMed students also designed and implemented a children's health camp. It served the dual purpose of occupying children while parents watched the video, as well as teaching children general sanitary practices.

With two versions of the video available, and the children's health camp established, GlobeMed's work in this particular area is complete, but it has helped to create a blueprint for future campaigns.

"We would like to take the lessons learned on this pilot project and apply them to future video sets," said Chris Dove, the 2008 of a children's health camp. McKay director of health partnerships for GlobeMed. "Ideally we would like to find another project on which we could help."

Plans for future GlobeMed trips have yet to be finalized. Representing Truman on the two trips were students Ann Bruno, Patrick Casey, Chris Dove, Rachel Flinn, Brian Hilliard, Josh Lefler, Lara McKay, Allison Mutchler, Allison Palisch, Michelle Riefe and Katelyn Talcott.

President Signs Sustainability Initiative

President Darrell Krueger signs Truman's Sustainability Initiative at the Local Foods Banquet April 23. He is joined at the podium by student Colin Hughes (left) and Brett Wiley (right), a Truman alumnus and Schweitzer and Associates intern. The Sustainability Initiative was crafted by Wiley (a December graduate) and current students Hannah Hemmelgarn and Kelly Hall, in collaboration with Truman biologist Michael Kelrick and sustainable development consultant Judi Schweitzer, a Truman alumna. It will establish a President's Sustainability Action Committee to identify and evaluate ways to modify University practices to create a more ecologically sound, social just and economically viable campus and community.

Students earn General Honors in Arts and Sciences by completing five approved courses, with at least one from each of the four areas of mathematics, science, social science and humanities with a grade point average of at least 3.5 in those courses and an overall cumulative grade point average of at least 3.5. Only grades of "A" and "B" may count toward the five General Honors courses and students who complete a single undergraduate major may not satisfy General Honors requirements with any course within their major. More than 200 students have graduated with General Honors since 1994.

The next issue of the Truman Today will be published June 2.

The Truman Today is published biweekly during the summer. Submissions for the next issue are due by May 27 to tmiles@truman.edu.

Truman Included on 2008 President's Honor Roll

Truman has been included on the 2008 President's Higher Education Community Honor Roll, released earlier this year. Launched in 2006, the Honor Roll recognizes colleges and universities nationwide that support innovative and effective community service and service-learning programs.

In 2007 Truman received a research grant to participate in the AmeriCorps *VISTA program, which included the placement of a *VISTA member on campus to link relevant courses with community agencies in need of volunteers.

Past service-learning projects conducted by Truman students have included the implementation of a raised garden at the Kirksville nursing home, conducting energy awareness classes for area school children and establishing recycling centers in outlying communities.

The Honor Roll is a program of the Corporation for National and Community Service, and is sponsored by the President's Council on Service and Civic Participation and the U.S. Departments of Education and Housing and Urban Development, in partnership with Campus Compact and the American Council on Education.

The Corporation for National and Community Service is a federal agency that improves lives, strengthens communities and fosters civic engagement through service and volunteering. Each year, the Corporation engages four million Americans of all ages and backgrounds in service through its Senior Corps, AmeriCorps and Learn and Serve America programs.

INDEX AND SPORTS EDITOR RECEIVE SPJ AWARDS

The Society of Professional Journalists recently recognized the Index as the Best All-Around Non-Daily Student Newspaper in Region 7. This is the Index's second consecutive year winning the award.

Blake Toppmeyer, Index sports editor, received second place for Sports Column Writing and third place for Online Sports Reporting.

"This is a great honor that rewards the hard work and dedication of the Index staff," said Index advisor Don Krause.

SPJ's Region 7 includes Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska. This year, collegiate journalists across the country submitted more than 3,700 entries in 39 categories to the Mark of Excellence Awards.

First place regional winners advance to the national round of judging, which is ongoing.

National winners will be announced in mid-May.

NOTABLES

An original musical work by Warren Gooch, professor of music, will be performed by the Szewczyk-Romanenko Duo on the "Music At Main" concert series in Jacksonville, Fla. The May 12 concert will include Gooch's "Three Fauxmanian Dances" for violin and cello. Piotr Szewczyk is a violinist and composer with the Jacksonville Symphony Orchestra and a recent winner of the New World Symphony Concerto Competition. Alexei Romanenko is Principal Cellist with the Jacksonville Symphony Orchestra and former Principal Cellist with the Boston Philharmonic. Gooch's work was selected for performance from an international call for scores.

Grace Tamara Handy, a senior from Sri Lanka, was recently awarded the Margaret McNamara Memorial Fund Education Grant for graduate study in the Master's of Arts in Education at Truman. She is one of only 10 recipients this year. The MMMF awards educational grants to women from developing countries whose graduate studies and future plans aim to benefit women and children in their respective regions.

Mustafa A. Sawani, professor of economics, and Casey Copeland, a Truman alumna, had their paper "U.S.-E.U. Economic relationship: How European Integration Affects U.S. Export the European Union" published in the "Journal of Case Research in Business and Economics" this April. Sawani also attended the European Union Study Association Biennial International Conference and participated in "Teaching the European Union" workshop in Los Angeles, Calif., April 23-25.

Faculty Attend Language and Literacy Conference

The first Language and Literacy Conference, a collaborative effort between the Communication Disorders and Education Programs, with the help of the Regional Professional Development Center, took place on campus April 24.

There were more than 115 professionals and approximately 20 students in attendance. Louisa Moats, an internationally acclaimed author/researcher in the field of reading, presented an all day workshop entitled "Phonology and Learning to Read and Spell."

Moats currently serves on the National Board of the International Dyslexia Association and is a Consultant Advisor to Sopris West Educational Service for Literacy Research and Professional Development. She is the author of "Language Essentials for Teachers of Reading and Spelling,"
