Comments from the College President

Dr. McClain

I know that each of you has many pleasant memories of your days on the campus of Northeast Missouri State College. We want you to continue to share in the growth and development of your College.

As you know, one of the main strengths of a college is an active alumni organization. It can serve as an umbrella to unite former students, present students and faculty to work together for the common good of the College. We pledge our support of and interest in the alumni organization, and hope to have the opportunity to meet many of you personally as we speak with the various alumni groups this spring.

President McClain Spells Out Primary Concerns in First Address Before Faculty

A deep concern for the welfare of the student body, faculty and staff was expressed by President Charles J. McClain in his first address to the faculty. The well received address was given on February 10th at the monthly meeting of the faculty.

The President was introduced by Dr. Eli F. Mittler, Vice President for Extra Divisional Affairs. The text of the address is as follows:

Thank you, Dr. Mittler, for that very gracious introduction. Introductions are to be appreciated sincerely, but not taken seriously. It is most appropriate and indeed fitting at this time that I express my personal gratitude to Dr. Mittler for his inestimable assistance during the transition period. He has been a loyal, devoted and effective teacher during these past several weeks. I know the esteem in which he is held by this faculty.

I have known President Emeritus Ryle for many years. I have always admired him as an outstanding educator, as a gentleman and as a true friend of teacher education. My esteem for him has increased as I have now had an opportunity to view more closely the institution he has labored to build during the past several years. I know that about 70 per cent of this faculty will attest to his genius because he was wise and bright enough to recommend you for employment. An institution may or may not be the lengthened shadow of a man, but it is a fact that you have had excellent leadership at this institution throughout its long history.

Would that I had the wisdom and the inner sight to be able to analyze cogently for you today a charted course for this college in the years ahead. I might well try to do this, but I would be most uncomfortable in this effort and, in fact, to do so at this time would suggest a trivial arrogance that we can do so well without in today's world.

But I can promise you that I shall do my best in trying to direct the affairs of this college. I approach the position with confidence because I am aware of the dedicated interests of the Board of Regents, the faculty, and the administrative staff. I am further convinced of the loyal support of the students, the alumni, the area residents and a countless number of friends that this college has throughout the State of Missouri, the nation and indeed the world. I have received such assurances from many of these individuals and groups.

So that you can sneak a peek at what is uppermost in my mind as I assume the presidency, I make the following comments.

(1) My primary concern will be for the student body. The students individually and collectively are responsible for the presence of us all. Let me hasten to add that this is not a new concept at this college—it has been true in the past—and it is true today. I make the statements to affirm my commitment to that belief. Climate and environment will be benchmark words as we seek new solutions to the new concerns.

Even though I have an abiding faith that students will act responsibly, I recognize that not all students will possess the self and mental discipline to stay out of difficulty—academic or disciplinary. I shall demonstrate the moral courage to take affirmative action to preserve institutional harmony when in our best judgement such action is indicated and is in fact mandated.

(2) A concern coincident with the one for students obviously is one for the faculty and staff of this college. Next to the Board of Regents, you are my bosses. I don't anticipate any bad bosses at this college. To date, you have been gracious, warm, cordial, genuine, humane, considerate and have done more for me than I might reasonably expect. I have had the opportunity to get acquainted with several of you and I look forward to expanding the list. I shall view this as a high priority during these early days.

(3) I have no intention for the present or in the near future of recommending any substantive changes in policy. Rather, I shall be listening, learning and evaluating what I hear and learn during the next several weeks. I do not plan any famous first ninety days. However, I hope that statement didn't portend that the first ninety days would be infamous.

(4) I shall strive always to merit the confidence of the Board of Regents. I am sure you expect me to make that statement. I make it because such a position on my part is in the best interests of this college. I make it not as a selfish action. I make it not out of necessity—not at all—I make it because of a genuine belief in our Missouri system of higher education. At times, the system is imperfect, but so are we. However, I believe it to be the best system in the final analysis for all of the persons involved in the college community. I shall work diligently to see that it is perpetuated in our State. When I make these statements I am giving unequivocal endorsement to the board's policy making role. Moreover, it behooves each of us to make a clear distinction between policy and procedure and to have the good judgment to know the difference.

(5) Another observation that I should make as occupying a part of my cellular space is that I am a little awed by all of you. You possess much educational experience, many college hours, great knowledge and indeed, untold wisdom. However, I have learned never to take the measure of a man by what's on paper. To date, I only know many of you via paper. But I hope to take a more realistic measure of you as I get to know each of you personally during the next few weeks.

I can assure you that I am going to take my responsibilities seriously—but I shall try to refrain from taking myself too seriously. I shall try at all times to keep perspective and act with deliberateness rather than with hastiness.

I can express a summary of my ideal for a code of conduct in this short poem—

It's silence when your words would hurt
 It's patience when your neighbor's curt
 It's deafness when the scandal flows
 It's thoughtfulness for another's woes
 It's promptness when stern duty calls
 It's courage when misfortune falls.

Alumni Association Board Endorses Passage of State Tax Referendum

The Officers and Board of Directors of the Northeast Missouri State College Alumni Association have endorsed the passage of Proposition 1, Tax Referendum to be decided in an election throughout the state of Missouri on April 7, 1970.

In announcing the action James R. Nevins, President of the Alumni Association, pointed out that Missouri's state colleges and universities, public schools and nearly every state agency are in dire need of additional funds. "Our own College President, Dr. Charles J. McClain, states, 'No increase in appropriations would be little short of catastrophic. The people of the State have increasingly emphasized that they want higher education and we have believed them and have tried to give good stewardship for their dollars. We want to continue.'

In closing his statement Nevins said, "Our Association was founded for the purpose of benefiting the College and its thousands of graduates and former students. It certainly seems fitting that we should endorse this important issue which will benefit our entire state."

Miss Dabney began teaching at NMSC in the summer of 1923 and continued here, with several leaves of absence until 1946, when she resigned formally. She had, however, been teaching classes in Dramatic Costumes and Stage Settings in the Division of Speech at Louisiana State University since 1942. She was the illustrator of Community Drama for Stewart in 1923, of 28 books of the Gateway Series of Tested Plays for Row Poeterson & Co. She was the co-author with Dr. Claude Wise, 1911, now deceased, of the Book of Dramatic Costumes which she also illustrated. She produced also a book on Art Appreciation and a pamphlet on The Study and Appreciation of Pictures. Miss Dabney was a member of the American Association of University Women, the National Education Association, the Western Arts Association, the American Federation of Arts, Delta Kappa Gamma and Kappa Pi, which she served as president in 1923-24. MAJOR LYNCH

U. S. Air Force Major Robert E. Lynch, former student at NMSC in 1948 and 1949, from Ethel, Missouri, has received the Silver Star and the Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism and the Bronze Star and 13 awards of the Air Medal for meritorious achievement while serving in Southeast Asia. Major Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Lynch, R. R. 1, Ethel, previously received the Purple Heart and the Air Force Commendation Medal for service in Vietnam. The major earned the Silver Star as a forward air controller on a mission over North Vietnam prior to the bombing halt.

While assigned to Tuy Hoa Air Base with the 306th Tactical Fighter Squadron he piloted an F-100 Super Sabre to locate heavily defended enemy storage complexes. He made repeated passes over the antiaircraft artillery sites, directing fighter aircraft and often using his Super Sabre as a decoy to allow less maneuverable aircraft following his lead to avoid damage.

The major earned the DFC when he directed fighter strikes near Dong Hoi, North Vietnam, prior to the bombing halt. On this mission, he made repeated low passes in the face of enemy fire and was wounded when the canopy of his aircraft was struck. Despite his wound and the wind blast entering through the damaged canopy, he managed to land his aircraft safely.

The Bronze Star was awarded for his accomplishments as a standardization and evaluation officer in the 31st

Alumnus Takes His Marshalltown, Iowa Marching Band to the Rose Bowl Parade

Millions of TV viewers, along with the thousands on hand, for the annual Rose Bowl Parade saw the Marshalltown, Iowa, High School Band stepping high in the 1970 parade. The band, directed by Armon Adams, B.S.E. 1938 and M.A. 1950, was one of five selected outside the state of California for participation in the parade. Over 300 outside bands had applied for the honor. For Adams and several others in Marshalltown, the bands participation fulfilled a six year old dream. Highlights are outlined in a letter to NMSC's band director, Tom Duden. Your editor thought you would enjoy hearing the first hand account about the parade.

Dear Tom:

Thanks for the letter and kind words which I received from you today. We have stacks of telegrams and letters from all over the United States and this is certainly one of the nicer parts of our whole effort.

Our trip was surely an experience. With 200 of us and all of our equipment on one plane, this was certainly our first thrill. I had never seen a plane that large, let alone ever been on one before. We stayed right across the street from the main entrance to Disneyland and we visited there twice. Once we played a parade there, marching directly ahead of the Michigan University band. They were really something else! What a sound!

Actually we had not taken the competition very seriously. We just don't go in for that sort of thing and we really accepted the invitation to get three minutes more on TV for the folks back home. You know how it is in this climate of ours. With snow on the ground and the air plenty cold we had never had a chance to get our entire routine together. We tried to go out of doors twice to practice and the instruments froze immediately so we used masking tape and lined off the field house floor and put it together in segments. The first time we ever got it completely together was in Anaheim the day before the taping and we masked off a huge parking lot and went through it five or six times. You can imagine how tickled we were when we came out in second place to bands which get to march the year around. We saw some fine bands during the NBC revue.

The head of all public relations for the Tournament of Roses is a former citizen of Marshalltown and he had really lined things up for us. The highlight of the whole trip came two days before the parade when he called me in and gave me tickets for the entire band and all chaperones to the Rose Bowl Game. That morning they had found out that President Nixon and his party could not attend the game, and they had been saving these tickets for them. They were BOX SEATS on the 50 yard line. The seats were new and had never been used before. The astronauts were just across the aisle from us and the queen and princesses were just three rows in front of us. We had been trying to get seats through the governor of our state and the governor of California for months so when we got these we were just speechless.

On our return to Marshalltown, the governor met our plane to welcome us and the home folks were waiting in our gym in Marshalltown for a big celebration.

The actual parade was nothing like I had imagined it would be. One and a quarter million people were along the parade route which measured almost six miles. Bleachers had been built the entire distance and seats for the parade sold for seven, eight, and nine dollars. I have never seen such a mass of humanity—nor such an enthusiastic and appreciative audience. This seems to be true of California at this time of year, as on Monday night we played a concert in Long Beach and a civic auditorium of quite some size was just about full. We played almost continuously the entire parade route, and needless to say we were tired when we finished. We were the only band to get to attend the game and they had a police escort for our five buses to get us across Pasadena to the Rose Bowl.

It was truly a once in a lifetime "shot" and we'll never forget it. If you care to, pass this "edition" on to Dr. Karel, and Dr. Jorgenson and any other interested musicians around there. Pardon the stationary. It's a bit out-dated now, but we have a lot of it left and I'm just "scotch" enough to use it up. The cards might also prove interesting to some of the fellows. Thanks again for the letter.

Maurine Lair Turner, 4933 McPherson, Apt. D, St. Louis, Missouri, is child welfare supervisor for the St. Louis welfare office. According to an article in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat of November 27, Missouri's new law on child abuse is beginning to produce a trickle of reports of battered children, but welfare workers are concerned about a lack of personnel to handle them. Mrs. Turner said her workers were investigating four cases they received under the new law, which requires anyone suspecting that a child has been abused to report his suspicions to the welfare office. The new law makes reports compulsory for anyone paid to care for children—teachers, babysitters and such—and routes the reports to welfare agencies so that they may investigate and counsel the parents to prevent repetition of such incidents. One provision of the new law is that all reports be sent to a collecting point in the welfare offices in Jefferson City, so that a family with a pattern of such incidents can be spotted, even if it moves around within the state. It is hoped that reports of child abuse will increase as the law's provisions become better known and if the nationwide trend toward increased numbers of child-beating incidents continues.

Slump Costly to Bulldog Cagers In Late Season

A February slump, producing a seven-game losing streak, proved costly to the State College basketball team which finished in the MIAA Conference cellar and with an overall record under .500 for just the fifth time in the past 24 years.

The 1969-70 edition took a respectable 10-6 ledger into the last month of the campaign, but the Bulldogs won only the first of eight February outings. They climaxed their slate with an 11-13 mark for all contests and a 1-9 in loop competition.

Coach Boyd King's hardwood club was handicapped during the final weeks by the mid-year loss of starting forward Charles Currie (Decatur, Ill.). The 6'2" junior was averaging 8.5 rebounds per outing before he was declared scholastically ineligible for the spring semester. Reserve guard Dave Davis (Huntsville) decided to quit the team after the first term because of personal reasons.

While the Bulldog won and loss record was unimpressive, team scoring was well-balanced. Senior forward Don Bramlett (St. Louis) topped pointmakers with a 14.1 average. Senior backliner Ron Sterchi (Olney) hit at a 14.4 clip. Senior center Jerry Buhr (Waterloo, Ia.), 12.0; junior forward Claude Wilson (Chicago), 12.0; and senior guard Bob Fuka (Cicero, Ill.), 9.6.

NMSC will face a major rebuilding job with the loss of four members of the first five, plus reserve backliner Terry Winters (Plymouth, Ill.).

NEMSC Wrestlers Perform Well in Spite Of Tough Schedule

Coach Tony Yelovich's wrestling squad had compiled a 6-8 dual record through the last of February with only the MIAA tournament on March 7 remaining on the calendar.

This dual mark was a far cry from last year's 16-1 ledger, but NMSC had probably tackled the toughest schedule in the history of the sport at the school. The Bulldogs met the likes of Nebraska University (Omaha), North Dakota

Devine Lauds Team Effort Of Co-Champion Bulldogs

State College football coaches and players were praised by Missouri University Coach Dan Devine at a banquet on Jan. 29, honoring the MIAA Conference co-champions.

About 350 persons heard the Tiger mentor congratulate the State College for a "first-class football program." "Our 1969 Missouri squad seemed to have possibly more closeness among its players than any team with which I have been associated at Columbia," remarked Devine. "I sense this closeness among your players, too."

President Eli F. Mittler said the entire school was proud of the way the 1969 Bulldogs performed last fall. He also introduced members of the Board of Regents.

Coach Russ Sloan presented awards to several players. They were "Outstanding Senior Back," Lloyd Wiese of Baxter, Ia.; "Outstanding Senior Lineman," John Suell of St. Louis; "Outstanding Hitter," Aubrey Johnson of Kennett; and "Outstanding Senior Hustler," Charles Blakley of St. Joseph. Six all-conference performers received awards, including Frank Wagner of Chicago, Ken Bebermeyer of Washington, Mo., Don Cummings of Lombard, Ill., Suell, Johnson, and Blakley.

Sloan cited the 1969 edition for its strong character and unselfish dedication throughout a season in which the Bulldogs proved to be a Cinderella team. The first-year mentor also thanked the Board of Regents, President Mittler, Athletic Director James J. Dougherty, and the squad medical staff for their support of the football program.

A telegram was read from James R. Nevins, president of the State College Alumni Association, extending congratulations to the team on behalf of the Association.

State, Northern Iowa, Bemidji State, Upper Iowa, and Missouri University. NMSC, paced by two seniors and a sophomore, was attempting to notch its third consecutive conference title. Curd Alexander, a 115-pounder, and Rich Beard, a heavyweight, had compiled 14-5-3 and 17-3-2 standards, respectively. Dan Klein a 167-pounder, had posted a 16-8-1 mark.

The league championships were to be held at Kirksville for the first time since the MIAA tourney was started in 1966.
