The Honorable Jong Hyeon Huh (center), president of Busan National University in Korea, arrives at Clarence Cannon Memorial Airport to begin a four-day visit Feb. 12-15 at Northeast Missouri State University. He and University President Charles J. McClain (left) have formalized an exchange program for faculty members and students between the two universities. Also meeting President Huh is Thomas R. ShROUT Jr., director of external relations.

PRESIDENT'S COMMENTS

I know many alumni are interested in the status of the Ryle Scholarship Fund. At this writing some 400 alumni, families, friends and organizations have contributed nearly $9,000 to the Ryle Memorial Scholarship Fund. What a tremendous tribute this is to the memory of Dr. and Mrs. Ryle!

We are still receiving contributions. Wouldn't it be fitting if alumni and friends through the years contributed $100,000 toward the scholarship? If you have not contributed, I hope you will consider doing so.

Many alumni have been generous in their voluntary support of scholarships and their donation of unrestricted funds. Each day it becomes increasingly evident that this type of alumni support, in addition to state funds and student fees, will be needed to give Kirksville its margin of excellence.

I thank you for your marvelous response to the establishment of the scholarship fund. I know you will continue to support our efforts to provide quality education in the Northeast tradition.

On a personal note, I get great satisfaction from corresponding with many of you. I receive strength and encouragement from your words.

Charles J. McClain
President

(Editor's Note: In his "President's Comments" in the fall 1978 NEMOSCOPE, Dr. Charles J. McClain wrote a tribute to the late Dr. Walter H. Ryle.)

Dear Dr. McClain:

Your thoughtful words of a big, big man were well said.

The tribute to Dr. Ryle was certainly appreciated by his friends who realized others were aware of his physical and mental dedication to making a better school and nicer looking campus.

With my years of acquaintance with the institution of learning, I've never known anyone to give more of himself for the school than did Dr. Ryle.

These fine articles you gentlemen took time to write for the school paper were certainly appreciated.

Your friend,
Alva Bagley
103 East Walnut
Shelbina, Mo. 63468

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Enclosed find $100 for Dr. Ryle's scholarship fund. As you know I thought a lot of Dr. Ryle and it makes my heart heavy and sad that we have lost him. He was a wonderful man.

Yes, please send a copy of the book he wrote on the history of K.S.T.C.

Hope everything is going well for you.

Sincerely,
Mary Evelyn Thurman

Dear Mr. Harrison:

I appreciate the newsletter of December 29, 1978, with the insert of Dr. Ryle's service in Kirksville.

I knew him as a young teenager when he and my husband, (a nephew of Dr. Walker Pimberton, later a faculty member at Kirksville) played baseball in a league in Randolph County. Dr. Ryle grew up near my home and his death brought sadness to me.

Sincerely,
Lena Hudson Higdon
1955 Graduate

Dear Mr. Harrison:

President Ryle was a true friend of the University and a great Missourian. I'm proud of my education from Northeast Missouri State University. May HIS memory live on!

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Each copy of NEMOSCOPE revives happy memories of the way things were during my collegiate days.

Furthermore on my regular visits to Kirksville, I view with pride the expansion and beauty of the NMSU campus. It is also a real pleasure to read of the achievements of my fellow alumni.

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Enclosing a check for $4 for our membership for 1979.

Also a bit of information that you may or may not want to use:

Joe and Wyla Pinkerton, 7711 Ward Parkway, Kansas City, Mo., have been active in credit union work since starting the Federal Employees Credit Union in 1948. He was continuously on the Board of Directors or Supervisory Committee until October 1976 and Wyla was treasurer-manager for 18 years. That credit union is one of the largest in Missouri.

In the meantime they started the PRESBYTERIAN Credit Union in 1976 and have donated their time there and it is now nearing one million in assets. Joe was treasurer from the start but was made manager in February 1979. Wyla has been on the Credit Committee, also credit manager and for a short time manager. Joe retired from the U.S. Internal Revenue.

They have three children: Robert, of Denver, Colo., loan officer for the state for the Small Business Administration; Jean, who lives in St. Paul, Minn., is in charge of the federal funding program for the St. Paul schools; and Paul who lives in Leawood, Kan., and has a printing and packaging business in Lenexa, Kan.

Joe was captain of Company K of the National Guard company in Kirksville for five years and both he and Wyla attended the Company K reunion in July 1978. Wyla was a reporter for the Daily Express, Kansas City Star and St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How is that for keeping busy in the "golden years"? Joe will be 85 on March 18 and Wyla is 78.

Wyla Pinkerton
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Just realized I've not kept you informed of my "moves" the past couple of years. I retired from teaching in June 1977, having taught 22 years in Lynwood, Calif., after 10 years in Missouri, (Pike and Ralls Counties).

My husband, Carl W. Keith, retired in August 1978. He had worked in utility maintenance for the city of Lynwood for 22½ years.

We have moved to New London, Mo., so please change my address.

Thank you,
Marjorie L. Keith

Dear Mr. Harrison:

My husband and I enjoy receiving the alumni publication, the NEMOSCOPE. We look forward to looking through it and discovering addresses of old friends.

My husband, Charles R. Good, and I are both graduates of Northeast Missouri State. He graduated in 1973 with a B.A. in Political Science and in 1976 with a B.S.E. in Geography. He is currently teaching geography at Bridgewater-Fontanelle High School in Fontanelle, Iowa. Also, he coaches junior high football and junior high girls and boys basketball.

I am currently teaching typing and shorthand at Anita High School in Anita, Iowa, where we live. Also, I am the office education work coordinator. Last year one of my O.E. students and I were able to attend the National Office Education contests in Detroit, Mich., after she placed second in the state contests.

We both feel that we owe a great deal to NMSU and have many fond memories of our days at NMSU.

We feel very fortunate that we live only about a four-hour drive from Kirksville and have been able to attend Homecoming every year since our graduations. I failed to mention that I graduated in 1974 with a B.S.E. in Business Education and then again in 1975 with an M.A. in Business.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ione L. (Graham) Good

Toots trumpet to top

by Sue Lammert
Student Staff Writer

Educator recalls music activities at NMSU

Tooting his trumpet took him to the top...to the top of the school administration ladder.

Dr. W. Lloyd Johns (B.S.E. 1952, M.A. 1956) learned to play the trumpet when he was five years old. He received a music scholarship from Northeast Missouri State University in 1948, and now he is president of California State University, Sacramento.

He still plays the trumpet "whenever I can, which isn't nearly as often as I'd like." Johns says he has received some surprised and startled looks from people "when I whip out my trumpet and start to play. It's kind of an odd thing for a college president to do."

How did a man born in St. Louis to a family of "painters, carpenters and tradesmen" become president of a university in California with 20,000 students?

"I probably wouldn't even have gone into education except for that music scholarship," Johns says.

Encouragement from his friends, colleagues and faculty advisers also pushed him to the top. The late Dr. Paul Strub (B.S.E. 1939, M.A. 1948), one of Johns' professors in music, was a special supporter, he says.

"It was a cooperative effort," says Johns referring to his success. "I probably wouldn't be where I am now except for my colleagues in northeast Missouri."

Johns graduated cum laude in 1952 with a B.S.E. in Music. He was a member of Alpha Phi Sigma honorary scholastic fraternity, Kappa Delta Pi honorary professional society, Sigma Tau Gamma social fraternity, Blue Key service organization, chorus, orchestra, band (of which he was elected president in 1950) and the Graduate Club (of which he was elected president in 1956). "My leadership in northeast Missouri has helped me become what I am now," says Johns.

Johns spent 10 years as a student and teacher in northeast Missouri. After graduating in 1952, he taught music and directed the band at Shelbina High School. He left that post in 1956 when he earned his M.A. in School Administration.

"I decided to get my master's in school administration because my colleagues at Northeast and Shelbina encouraged me to," says Johns. "They realized that the skills needed to organize a band are much the same as those needed in school administration."

After receiving his M.A., Johns was asked to be principal at Ophelia Parrish Junior High School on the NMSU campus.

Dr. W. Lloyd Johns, President, California State University, Sacramento

"His great organization of the band in Shelbina brought him to our attention," says Wayne Phillips, who was superintendent of Kirksville public schools at that time. "He knew how to articulate, organize, cooperate; he was thoroughly grounded in the field of public education."

The trumpeter earned his way through NMSU with the help of his music scholarship and his musical ability. He earned expense money by playing with a dance band. He also had his own small combo.

Johns, who considers himself a teacher and not an administrator, found his way to California as a science and mathematics teacher at Sequoia Junior High School in Fontana, a small city about 45 miles west of Los Angeles. In 1959 he became principal of Sequoia Junior High School; in 1963 he became principal of Fontana High School.

From there he moved to Northridge, where he became assistant professor in the Department of Administration and Supervision at California State University, Northridge. Taking small but regular steps up the administration ladder, he was promoted to professor in that department, then to assistant to the dean of education, then to director of audio-visual services and administrative mediator, then to associate vice president of business and administrative affairs.

Johns received a doctorate in education from the University of Southern California in 1966.

His next step on the ladder was to move to CSU, Sonoma, to be vice president of administrative affairs and professor of education. After a year at Sonoma he was the acting president.

Johns came to the CSU, Sacramento, campus in July 1977 as executive vice president and troubleshooter in the wake of a special report which said that a tense stalemate between then-President James Bond and the faculty was jeopardizing education. Johns was unanimously elected president in July 1978. More than 100 persons had applied for the position.

"Being in the right place at the right time played a part in my success," says Johns.

Proper training also had a bearing on his obtaining his present position.

"I had a good experience at Northeast Missouri. I had good relations with the faculty and administration at the University. You know, leaving home to go to school has a bearing on your attitude toward education for the rest of your life, and I think that the people at the University played a guidance role in mine. They were all a big help to me," Johns says.

One of his teachers, Frederic Kirchner, professor of music, remembers Johns as "a common-sense kind of guy, bright without being exceptional, an above-average student."

John Goetze, the Sigma Tau Gamma sponsor when Lloyd was a member, remembers that "he was an all-around nice guy who was very active in music events and active in Sig Taus. He was always studious and seemed well-educated."

Phillips emphasized Johns' dedication to education. He remembered traveling to the University of Missouri at Columbia with Johns to do post-graduate work.

"Johns was courteous, polite, impeccably dressed and well-respected," recalls Charles Elam (B.S.E. 1952, M.A. 1956), a member of Sig Tau's rival fraternity, Phi Sigma Epsilon. "I always forgave him for being a Sig Tau," Elam says with a laugh.

Without exception, people who knew Johns remember him as a good musician.

"What I remember most about Lloyd is that he was a good trumpet player," says Dr. Tom Duden (B.S.E. 1954, M.A. 1962), who was also a music major.

Johns himself says that, "while I do have memories of the ivy-covered walls, living in the Sig Tau house and walking to school in knee-deep snow to get to an 8 a.m. class, mostly what I remember is all the activities in music, especially all the trips the band took. I guess I did everything there was to do in music."

Sporer displays art at Alumni Exhibition

by Maureen Kelly
Student Staff Writer

"First, I'd like for you to close your eyes. Don't think. Just listen to your breathing; listen to the air rushing in to fill your lungs and escaping back out. I'd like for these few moments to be purely experiential. Try to reach an open, receptive state."

You're listening to Francis Sporer, 1961 alumnus of NMSU and featured exhibitor at the 6th Annual Alumni Exhibition held March 1-16, as he begins his slide talk on opening night. A dark room and relaxation period are his way of introducing the "mandala," an image which runs repeatedly through his work.

The artist describes the mandala as "a three-dimensional aerial view of our own journey of becoming." It is a circular map or diagram used by man since ancient times to signify the whole of creation.

In both his ceramic work and painting, Sporer says mandalas become messages and signal the way for bringing the unconscious mind into awareness.

"I try to reach into the symbol-making part of me and see if I can paint a dream consciously."

In many paintings, Sporer centers a circle, divides it into four equal segments or quadrants, and paints images around it.

In his ceramic work, Sporer says the mandala's circular form fits naturally into the construction of pottery, which is made by spinning clay on a potter's wheel.

Sporer developed his interest in mandalas through extensive study in art after graduation from Northeast. He received a Rotary Foundation Fellowship for International Understanding, which awarded him a year's study at the Glasgow, Scotland, School of Art in 1962-63.

After receiving the M.A. in Art from the University of Missouri-Columbia, Sporer began his career in teaching art. He has taught art at Stephens College in Columbia and is now professor of art at the William Woods / Westminster College Joint Art Department in Fulton.

He has also made trips to Europe, Middle East and Africa and sponsored educational art trips there.

At NMSU, Sporer was active in many campus organizations, including serving as president of Blue Key honorary and the Art Club. He was editor of the Echo, the campus yearbook, and member of Sigma Tau Gamma social fraternity.

Sporer says he believes that all of his experiences have contributed to forming his artwork and philosophy of art. He says that art can serve as a means of self-discovery and personal growth: "Art, like science, is a legitimate way of searching for the truth."

He is the sixth graduate of Northeast asked to display his work at the Alumni Exhibition sponsored annually by the Fine Arts Division. Other exhibitors featured since the exhibit was started in 1973 are Irwin McFadden, 1966 graduate, Jim Phillips, 1971 graduate, Dale Threlkeld, 1966 graduate, and Bob Evans, 1967 graduate. The tradition was established with the opening of the Jean Kraus Retrospective Memorial Exhibition, featuring works by Jean Kraus, a 1965 alumnus killed in Vietnam.

In addition to his exhibit, Sporer also gave the slide-lecture in the art departmental session of the Northeast Missouri Teachers Association on March 2. The title of his lecture was "Mandala: The Magic Circle."

Sporer says he was pleased at the invitation to display his works at the exhibit.

"I had a lot of very good experiences while I was here on campus. I have many, many pleasant dreams about NMSU."

Dr. Frank F. Vandiver

Historian recounts life story of Gen. John J. Pershing

by Mary Rhodes
Student Staff Writer

The Normal School at Kirksville "ignited the real spark of learning" in Gen. John J. Pershing, Dr. Frank F. Vandiver, Pershing historian, told members of the Pershing Society and their guests recently at NMSU.

"Pershing always had a great affection for the Normal. He shaped many great events in American history and some of the shaping he received started right here," Dr. Vandiver said.

Dr. Vandiver, provost and vice president of Rice University, Houston, Texas, recently published a two-volume book entitled, Black Jack, The Life and Times of General John J. Pershing. He was invited to speak at the Pershing Society's annual banquet, which over 120 people attended. The Pershing Society is an organization of about 80 NMSU students who were selected to receive the Gen. John J. Pershing Scholarship, a full four-year scholarship.

Dr. Vandiver called Pershing the "main architect of change in the Army." Although he was never given proper credit, Pershing brought organization to the armed forces in World War I, producing the balance of victory. He served actively in the Army from 1882-1945.

Pershing attended the Kirksville Normal School from 1879-1881 to develop his teaching techniques. He received his bachelor of elementary didactics in 1880.

While studying in Kirksville, Pershing's interest in the military was spurred when he saw an advertisement for military academy exams, Dr. Vandiver said. He later attended West Point.

Studying the great general for over 18 years, Dr. Vandiver has reviewed manuscripts, films and tapes to learn added dimensions of Pershing's life.

"Pershing was tough and obedient and he expected obedience. He never gave an order he wouldn't carry out himself," Dr. Vandiver said.

But the respect Pershing received made him a great commander, the historian said. He had a true concern for the conditions of his men.

Possessing a phenomenal memory, Pershing was a man of "real charisma," Dr. Vandiver discovered in his research.

"His most elusive trait was the affection he attracted. He had an animal magnetism, what you'd call sex appeal now. But at the same time he could chill you to the bones with questions," Dr. Vandiver said.

Also speaking to the group was Col. Sam Montague, fund-raising chairman of the Gen. John J. Pershing Museum and Memorial to be built in Laclede, Mo.

Montague, along with other residents of Laclede, told the group about the $3 million project to enshrine the general. More than $350,000 has been raised so far.

FEATURED EXHIBITOR—Francis Sporer, center, talks with interested students at the reception in his honor on March 1, the opening night of the 6th Annual Alumni Exhibition sponsored by the Fine Arts Division of Northeast Missouri State University.

Sporer, a 1961 graduate of NMSU, returned to his alma mater March 1-16 to display ceramic wares and paintings at the annual exhibition.

President Huh Visits NMSU

Exchange Agreement Formalized

A four-day visit to Northeast Missouri State University by the Honorable Jong Hyeon Huh, president of Busan National University in Korea, has formalized plans for a faculty and student exchange between the two universities. President Huh visited the Kirksville campus Feb. 12-15. The agreement was signed in Busan in October 1978 when President Charles J. McClain visited Korea.

Busan National University is located at Busan, a seaport city of approximately two million in the southern part of the Republic of Korea. The main campus of the University is at the foot of Mt. Kumjung in Dongnae, a suburb some ten miles northwest of downtown. The college of medicine and its affiliated institutions and facilities are located in downtown Busan. The university administration offices and all the graduate schools and the colleges except the college of medicine are located at the main campus, known as Dongnae Campus. Among other noteworthy institutions affiliated with the college of medicine is the University Hospital.

In its professional programs, the university offers law and political science, public administration, engineering, medicine, pharmacy, education, liberal arts and sciences, business, and home economics.

President Huh concluded the visit after a full schedule of activities acquainting him with Northeast and its programs, faculty, staff and students.

President Huh was the guest of honor at a dinner attended by NMSU honor students on Monday evening prior to ceremonies honoring him at the pre-game and half-time activities of the Southwest Missouri State University game in Pershing Arena.

Tuesday's schedule was highlighted by a tour of Missouri's capital, Jefferson City. He was given a tour of the Missouri State Supreme Court Building by Missouri Supreme Court Judge Albert Rendlen, former NMSU Regent. He was introduced on the floors of both the Missouri Senate and the Missouri House of Representatives. The Tuesday activities concluded with a visit to Commissioner of Elementary and Secondary Education Arthur L. Mallory.

Wednesday's activities included a tour of the campus and a visit with the Kirksville Rotary Club. Following a 1:30 p.m. news conference President Huh addressed an assembly of faculty and students in the Alumni Room and was then guest of honor at a reception in the Quiet Lounge. He met with the Board of Regents at a 4:30 p.m. meeting and was their dinner guest following the meeting.

Commenting on the visit of President Huh, NMSU President Charles J. McClain said: "On behalf of the University faculty and staff, I express our great pleasure and honor on his visit. We look forward to the continued association of two great universities."

Word Processing Center speeds business communications

by Sue Lammert
Student Staff Writer

Northeast has a new employee who can type a perfect copy of a document at a speed of 175 to 350 words a minute. Because of this extraordinary speed, the new staff member can reduce the cost of an average 250-word document from $8 to $4, a savings of 50 percent.

Northeast's new addition is the Word Processing Center, installed as part of the new word processing certificate program. NMSU is one of a few state universities to have such a center for instructional and service purposes.

Word processing is the application of modern technology and systems management techniques to the typing process, according to the Word Processing Institute. IBM defines word processing as the transition of a written, verbal or recorded idea into typewritten or printed form.

As yet, no definition of the term is standard, but its underlying assumption is improvement and efficiency through reducing the amount of time required to do paperwork and reassigning the duties and workloads of office workers.

NMSU's Word Processing Center, located in Room 184 of Violette Hall, has an A.B. Dick Magna II magnetic card electronic typewriter, two magnetic-card electric typewriters, two IBM Memory-writers and an IBM Office System 6/450. The major difference between these typewriters and ordinary ones is that these have the capacity to store data.

All students in any of the one- or two-year secretarial programs as well as those in the new word processing certificate program are required to learn to use this equipment. Business students will now have the opportunity to learn the operation of different automated equipment in an office, says Dr. Robert Dager, head of the Business Division.

Training on the up-to-date automated word processing machines will put NMSU's graduates a step ahead when applying for jobs, Laura Hulse, assistant professor of secretarial studies, says. Job opportunities in the field are "fantastic, especially in large companies," and smaller businesses are not far behind. Hulse indicated that companies in Edina and Moberly have purchased System 6/450s and large companies have complete word processing centers.

Forecasts indicate a big demand for word processing people who know the machines and have excellent transcription skills and control of grammar, says Dager.

Although students' education on the equipment will be the top priority, the center services will also be offered to the University. Already, work is being processed for university offices.

Word processing starts when a person creates a document. It is then transcribed into written form and fed into the system via a keyboard. All information is stored on magnetic tape diskettes and magnetic cards.

University personnel will be able to use the equipment by calling the Word Processing Center. Two telephone input recorders will enable a person to dial the center and dictate a letter or report over the phone. Students from transcription classes will transcribe this work. Students in business communication classes will learn dictation utilizing eight other sound recorders in the Word Processing Center. This dictation will also be transcribed by word-processing majors.

The use of the automated equipment in the Word Processing Center allows the transcriber to type the original copy on the keyboard of the System 6 and correct mistakes by merely backspacing. Only the correct version is recorded on the diskette.

The printout from the System 6/450 resembles typed copy but is actually printed by jet-spraying the ink at 92 characters per second.

Another advantage of the System 6/450 is sorting material. Materials such as lists of names and addresses can be stored on diskettes. Their names can be called up singly or by prospective major or all at one time. The 6/450 can be programmed to type a letter to selected students and to address envelopes.

The total cost of the center is about $90,000. The machines that have been purchased were partially funded by the State Department of Vocational Education.

The Word Processing concept is new, having been developed since the late 1960s but it "is here to stay," Dager says.

IN THE BEGINNING, THE WORD—Laura Hulse (standing center), assistant professor of secretarial studies, demonstrates how the new Word Processing Center in the Business Division operates.

Lexington alumnus appointed to Coordinating Board

William E. Lemaster

William Everett Lemaster, an NMSU alumnus of Lexington, has been appointed to the Missouri Coordinating Board of Higher Education by Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale. His appointment was confirmed by the Missouri Senate on March 14, 1979, and is for a six-year term.

Lemaster is president and director of the Lexington Bank and Trust Co. and has more than 15 years experience in banking.

Prior to entering the banking profession, he served two years as a teacher in the Washington, Iowa, school district, 13 years with the Farm Bureau in Iowa and Pennsylvania and five years as owner and operator of Super Value Super Market in Knoxville, Iowa.

In community activities, he has served on the Board of Directors of the Lexington Industrial Development Committee, Mid-America Boy Scout Council and Board of Directors of the Lyceum Theatre at Arrow Rock. He also has been president of the Lions Club and the Lexington High School Booster Club. While president of the Lions Club the organization constructed a new community building and donated 70 acres of land to the city for a park and swimming pool.

He is an ordained elder in the First Presbyterian Church and holds membership in the Elks Club, Masonic Lodges, V.F.W. and Arrat Shrine. He is past chairman of the Lafayette County Central Democratic Committee.

He was a member of Sigma Tau Gamma at NMSU and received its Distinguished Alumni Award. He served four years in the U.S. Army in World War II.

Lemaster is a native of Middletown where he received his early education. In 1948 he received a B.S. in Education from NMSU, then Kirksville State Teachers College. He also has studied at universities in Wyoming, Illinois and Oklahoma.

He is married to Geraldine Newcum Lemaster, formerly of Kirksville. They have two sons, Grant, 26, a 1975 Northeast graduate and Greg, 25, a 1977 Northeast graduate.

Grant currently is a sophomore at the Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine. Greg, a second lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps, is in flight training at Pensacola, Fla.

PACKED LIKE SARDINES—One of the largest crowds to ever attend an NMSU basketball game (4,200) jammed the Pershing Arena Feb. 26 to watch the Bulldogs beat Lincoln University, 77-71, and clinch an undisputed Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship.

Record-setting Bulldogs win MIAA basketball title, rank sixth in NCAA poll

by William H. Cable
Sports Information Director

Before the start of the 1978-79 basketball season at Northeast Missouri State, Willard Sims said his Bulldogs had several things going for them that could transform the team into a serious Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association title contender.

They were an experienced club with nine of the top 10 players returning from last year, including six performers, who had started at one time or another. With such a large number of holdovers from the previous campaign, the 'Dogs were expected to be blessed with good overall depth.

There were other assets. Sims indicated shooting and quickness should also be strong points. However, two facets of the game the coach was concerned about were defense and rebounding.

When the dust had settled on the recently completed campaign, the 'Dogs had captured the school's first conference championship since 1970-71, fashioned the most wins in a single season since 1947-48 (20-8), rewrote 11 NMSU and three MIAA records, received what was believed to be the school's highest national ranking ever in basketball (sixth), and participated in the NCAA Division II South Central Regional at Thibodaux, La.

"Naturally, we were disappointed we didn't do better in the NCAA Regional (losing 97-88 to Rollins (Fla.) in overtime and 86-82 to Southeast Missouri State for third place)," Sims said. "But the playoff games shouldn't detract from a highly successful campaign."

The 'Dogs, with a 9-3 loop record, survived one of the most competitive MIAA races in recent memory, according to league coaches. Only two other NMSU quintets claimed top conference honors in the past two decades.

Sims' men also achieved something their Purple and White predecessors never accomplished—winning twice in a single campaign on the Southwest Missouri State home court. First, they turned the trick, 80-74, in the MIAA Tournament the first week of January. Then, two weeks later, 6-6 senior forward Ved Green (Mt. Clemens, Mich.) fired in a jump shot with six seconds remaining to give the 'Dogs a 76-75 win at Springfield.

"Those were super victories," commented Sims. "So were our road wins over Central Missouri State (96-92 in overtime), Missouri-Rolla (91-81) and Southeast Missouri State (70-68)."

Sims also emphasized two big home triumphs—77-71 over Lincoln University in the finale before the largest crowd (4,200) that had watched Bulldog basketball in recent years, as well as a 77-68 verdict over Northern Iowa, a Division II playoff club that upset Division I St. Louis University on the Billiken home floor this winter.

However, while a "total team effort," as Sims described it, produced NMSU's achievements, the senior co-captains, Green and 5-11 Terry Bussard (Olney, Ill.), the MIAA's Most Valuable Player, in particular, charted outstanding years.

In March, Green was named to the Division II All-District first team for the second consecutive year, and Bussard was selected to the second unit. Green led NMSU in scoring with 495 points, and is now second on the Bulldog all-time single season point production list. Bussard, who pumped in 481 points to rank right behind Green, is fourth on the single campaign list.

The twosome was responsible for reshaping six individual school records. Green tossed in 226 field goals during the campaign to better the old NMSU standard of 207.

Bussard is now the Bulldog all-time high career scorer with 1,382 points. He rewrote the school and league marks for career assists with 582 and the NMSU standard for most assists in a single season with 206. His career assist average (5.5) is a new MIAA standard. Bussard also sank 15 free throws against Northern Iowa to shatter the old Pershing Arena record for an NMSU player.

Green finished third in league point production and eighth in rebounding (8.3). Bussard was fourth in conference scoring, first in free-throw percentage (.866), second in assists (7.4) and eighth in field-goal percentage (.529).

Other Bulldog starters ranked among MIAA statistical leaders. David Winslow (East St. Louis, Ill.), 6-6 sophomore center, was third in rebounding (9.9), 15th in field-goal accuracy (.500) and 17th in scoring (12.0). Matt Maddox (Kirksville), 6-5 senior forward, was 11th in rebounding (6.9) and 17th in charity stripe accuracy (.718). Bill Woodall (Monmouth, Ill.), 6-1 senior guard, was fourth in assists (5.1).

Sims said the insertion of Winslow in the lineup after the first few games was an important key to Bulldog success. "It helped solidify us, particularly in the defensive and rebounding departments," the coach stressed.

Five NMSU team records tumbled in 1978-79, including: Most points in a single season (2,418), best scoring average (86.4), most field goals in one campaign (1,033), best field goal percentage (.477), and most points in one game (128 vs. Kansas Wesleyan). The single campaign mark for field goals was also a new MIAA standard. NMSU scored 100 or more points four times this winter, tying a record held by four other Bulldog teams.

Sims indicated the loss of the four senior starters, Green, Bussard, Maddox, and Woodall, as well as two valuable senior reserves, 6-5 forwards Mark Sanders (Hannibal) and Craig King (Shelbina), will be difficult to offset next season. However, he said he had a good returning nucleus in four performers, Winslow, 6-1 junior guard Jaffee Woolfork (Lovejoy, Ill.), 6-2 junior guard Jim Tillman (St. Joseph-Lafayette) and 6-5 sophomore forward Kent Hackmack (Hannibal).

Bill Misiewicz (Detroit-Redford), 6-7 junior center, who saw only limited service this winter, is also slated to return next year, as well as 6-1 sophomore guard Larry Lunsford (Macon) and four freshmen, 6-2 guard Jerry Brockmiller (LaGrange-Highland) 6-4 forward Chris Carlson (Evergreen Park, Ill.), 5-10 freshman guard David Kennedy (Des Plaines, Ill.-Main West) and 5-10 guard Stuart Pitney (Kirksville).

"We'll try to recruit a junior college guard, two junior college frontliners, a freshman backliner and two freshman frontliners," Sims commented. "But unless we can actually get the people we want, I don't see how we could be considered contenders for the 1979-80 MIAA title."

For the time being, though, the coach, his players and Bulldog supporters will savor the "sweet taste" of a successful season.

Give us your tired bodies and huddling masses

by Terry Taylor
Staff Writer (B.A. 1972)

What is a Human Performance Laboratory? Returning to Northeast Missouri State University for a short visit, I heard this new feature of the campus mentioned time and again. Everytime I could deliver that stereotyped interrogative that all old alums famously issue to faculty and staff acquaintances, "Well, what's new on the ol' campus?" I would be enthusiastically informed, "Hey, phys. ed. has this great new facility—the Human Performance Laboratory."

Well, I couldn't let well enough alone and just nod in mock understanding; I had to go find out in person just what everyone was talking about. I wish I could attribute this deep-seated obsession of tracking down the laboratory to my academic curiosity which had been cultivated as an NMSU student. Actually, my obsession was the product of my exaggerated recollections of great physical prowess developed as an NMSU athlete. You see, deep down I wanted to stun the laboratory officials—tilt the equipment—with the greatest human performances they'd ever encountered. So, instead of merely making a telephone inquiry, I dug out my tennis shoes with the lucky purple shoestrings and shook the moth balls out of my old sweats and sauntered over to the Pershing Building. Okay, one final true confession: Halfway there I slipped on a knee wrap as a psychological defense mechanism—just in case my performance did not match my fanciful illusion.

Disappointingly, there weren't exactly any television cameras there rolling to cover the action of my workout. No records were broken; no scientists had to be consulted; but, then again, my blood pressure and lung capacity were quite healthy and I did discover that I had a weak knee (not the one I had wrapped—damn it). In other words, exactly what is supposed to happen at the Human Performance Laboratory happened: I became aware of my own individual body condition—its strengths and weaknesses—and from that knowledge was offered a program to utilize in bringing myself along toward my maximum potential.

I mentioned a void of television cameras at the lab. Well, that was about the only piece of equipment that was absent. A computer; treadmills; medical equipment for electrocardiograms, blood pressure, etc.; and strange things called ergometers, Douglas bags, and an orthotron are there for the using. Virtually everything that can be done at the world-famous Aerobic Center in Texas can be done with the equipment at NMSU's Human Performance Laboratory. There are two significant differences: (1) The Texas Aerobic Center Director has made Johnny Carson's show, ours hasn't; (2) The Aerobic Center charges $200 for a few days' use of the equipment, our laboratory charges nothing.

NMSU's Human Performance Laboratory is directed by the very qualified and personable Dr. Jerry Mayhew. Dr. Mayhew earned his Ph.D. in Physical Education with a specialization in exercise physiology from the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana. Dr. Mayhew has performed countless numbers of studies and experiments in human fitness and exercise techniques.

Another prominent faculty figure in the Human Performance Laboratory development has been Fontaine Piper, the University's Natatorium Director, whose fervent interest in bio-mechanics takes him to the laboratory. When I laughingly inquired if it had been bio-mechanics which was responsible for the construction of the Bionic Man and Woman, Piper interrupted my self-congratulations for such a wonderful joke by acknowledging that there was some partial truth in that supposition. It seems that bio-mechanics can be considered the seed for the field of bionics.

Jerry Mayhew and Fontaine Piper are far, far away from the stereotyped P.E. instructor who rolls the ball out onto the court at the beginning of the class period and collects it at the end. After lengthy interviews with both of them, I knew the real meaning of physical education.

BODY FAT MEASUREMENT—Fontaine Piper, a faculty member in the Human Performance Laboratory at Northeast Missouri State University, uses a special instrument to determine body fat percentage on a student. The calipers clamp the skin together on the back of the arm giving a reading in millimeters. The readings are compared to national tables to show the percentage of body fat for a person of a given build.

FITNESS PERFORMANCE—Terry Taylor, a 1972 graduate, gets firsthand experience at the Human Performance Laboratory at Northeast Missouri State University. Dr. Jerry Mayhew, lab director, sees how fast Taylor's pulse returns to normal after riding the stationary bicycle or ergometer with a tension belt that determines work load.

Hannibal superintendent of schools dies

Seaton A. Bonta, superintendent of public schools for Hannibal, died Dec. 22, 1978, after suffering an apparent heart attack. Doctors at Levering Hospital in Hannibal pronounced Mr. Bonta dead on arrival. He was 57.

Mr. Bonta, 1939 graduate of Brookfield High School, received his B.S. from Northeast Missouri State University in 1944. He achieved his M.A. five years later from the University of Minnesota and the South Utah State College.

Mr. Bonta served Kirksville schools as athletic director and coach from 1946-49. He then moved to Hannibal where he held the position of principal of the junior high school from 1955-62. In June 1962 he became superintendent. He also had been a basketball coach at Chillicothe Business College.

Mr. Bonta was born April 2, 1921, at Brookfield, the son of Seaton A. and Julia M. Reardon Bonta. In September 1945 he married Bess Elaine Coulter who survives him. She is a teacher at Eugene Field School in Hannibal. Also surviving Mr. Bonta are a son, B.J. Bonta, a 1969 NMSU graduate, Mr. Bonta's mother, three sisters and three grandchildren.

Bentele chosen as president of St. Louis company

Raymond F. Bentele

Raymond F. Bentele, a 1960 graduate of Northeast Missouri State University, has been elected president and a director of Mallinckrodt Inc. of St. Louis. Announcement of Bentele's elevation was made in December by Harold E. Thayer, chairman of the Board.

"He is an eleven-year member of Mallinckrodt's management team and is considered to be eminently qualified by the Board to fulfill the duties of the Presidency," Thayer said.

President Bentele joined Mallinckrodt in 1967 as a senior financial analyst. He subsequently served as assistant to the vice president for finance, as controller, as vice president, financial administration, and as vice president of the international group, before his most recent position as senior vice president and group executive of the International and Food, Flavor and Fragrance Groups. Bentele is a certified public accountant.

He is a native of Macon, Mo., and is married to the former Mary E. Cox of Kirksville.

NMSU Nursing Program granted full accreditation

by Maureen Kelly,
Student Staff Writer

If you have a motivated faculty;
If you can develop task forces, special committees, and student involvement;

If you are willing to make and to reassess goals, and to gather materials for a final self-evaluation that will demand uncountable hours;

And, of course, if you have an excellent program on which to base this work; a program that provides for the theory as well as for the skills of assessment, diagnosis, planning, implementation and evaluation in nursing;

If you have all this, perhaps you, too, might warrant accreditation from the National League for Nursing, as did the baccalaureate program at Northeast Missouri State University on Dec. 11, 1978.

In September 1978 a team of two nurse educators comprising the on-site evaluation team traveled to the Northeast Nursing Division to verify and to amplify the information presented in the 335-page self-evaluation study submitted by the division in August.

Joleen Shelton, a junior from Chariton, Iowa, described the NLN four-day visit.

"The accreditation committee had a meeting with all the deans and administrators and with the nursing instructors. They visited the clinicals and asked students to come out to talk with them and they sat in on some freshman and sophomore classes. Finally, three students from each class in the program represented the student population and talked with the visitors."

Dr. Grace Devitt, head of the Nursing Division, said, "When they finished with their survey, they wrote a report as to how we met criteria and read their report to us. It was just so positive all along that I was fairly certain of the outcome, but it was awfully hard to wait from their visit in September to December, when the whole board actually met to make its decision."

Devitt assumed responsibility as head of the Nursing Division in 1971, and has aimed for the achievement and maintenance of an excellent baccalaureate program. Under her direction the Northeast nursing program, one of eight baccalaureate programs available in Missouri, has increased the size of its graduating classes from 15 in 1974 to 37 in 1978. The division's goal is a maximum of 50 graduates per year.

With a baccalaureate degree, nurses are qualified to continue their educations in master's and doctorate programs. With further study, they may pursue careers in public health, nursing administration, nursing education and independent clinical practice.

Devitt said she favors the baccalaureate program over hospital programs for another reason.

"The students in hospital programs who miss campus life and its experiences don't ever quite feel they had what they should have had. The growing and maturity during college makes them much more able to make mature judgments and be self-directed."

Marvalee Wappelhorst, a senior from St. Charles, said she agrees.

"I think this program helps to prepare us to be more assertive, responsible nurses. We learn to utilize the theory in our heads."

Wappelhorst said she is "super excited" about accreditation.

"The trend is going toward nurses with four-year degrees, anyway, and if you have accreditation as well, it's a plus. Our graduates were placed without difficulty before accreditation, but it will make our program stand out and that reflects back on us."

Other reactions to the accreditation were also positive.

NMSU President Charles J. McClain said, "Accreditation by the NLN is a significant achievement by the Nursing Division faculty. I am proud to acknowledge that fact and also to recognize this honor which is shared by the entire University community."

Cynthia Holder, a junior from Kirksville, said, "Everybody was really happy, especially because a lot of the students were very involved in the accreditation process."

The accreditation was deemed "a feather in our caps," "another star," "an honor," and "just the best" by various faculty members and students.

Devitt summed it all up this way: "With accreditation you know that you have met the criteria which have been set out by the very profession itself. It's a good indication that the major components one would expect in a top-quality nurse are going to be there."

A MANICURE, SIR?—Deborah McIntosh, a junior majoring in nursing at Northeast, examines the phalanges (small bones of toes or fingers) of a skeleton used for instruction in the Nursing Division's Independent Learning Center.

I PROMISE IT WON'T HURT—A Northeast student nurse reassures a pint-sized patient at the Kirksville Day Care Center. The Nursing Division at Northeast provides for community health experiences as well as for acute or hospital health learning experiences.
