

State Ballet to perform Coppelia

The State Ballet of Missouri, under the artistic direction of Balanchine protege and internationally acclaimed choreographer Todd Bolender, will perform March 14 in Baldwin Auditorium. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m.

Free tickets are available for students, faculty and staff in the SAB Office, SUB. Financial assistance for this Lyceum Series performance has been provided by the Missouri Arts Council, a state agency.

The company, which consists of 25 dancers, will perform the critically acclaimed three-act ballet Coppelia or The Girl with the Enamel Eyes. Coppelia is based on the tales of E.T.A. Hoffman, who also wrote The Nutcracker. Choreographer, Todd Bolender, treats the ballet as a romantic comedy with a fresh, brisk pace.

Coppelia has been captivating audiences for more than 100 years and was the last great ballet of the Romantic era to premiere in Paris. It has been described as a wondrous fusion of magic, mystery, folklore, nationalism and pride so characteristic of the Romantic period.

The State Ballet of Missouri is based in Kansas City and is their only year-round professional performing ballet organization. It presents four major performances a season, including the holiday classic, The Nutcracker. It also performs regularly in St. Louis, tours throughout the Midwest and has performed in New York City to the praise of critics and audiences alike. ❁

Men's Basketball Team produces another banner season

Since the recent close of a successful season, Coach Willard Sims and the men's basketball team have received accolades from the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association.

Junior guard Brian Basich was the second Bulldog in two years to make the all-conference first team. During the 1994-95 campaign, Basich averaged 18.5 points and 4.1 assists per game.

Freshman Paul Taylor was named the MIAA Freshman of the Year, and four seniors earned some type of all-conference honors. Forward/center Steve Horton was selected to the all-MIAA second team, while guard/forward Brian Vandehey, center Bill Eckholm and forward "Xavi" Cargol were chosen to the all-MIAA honorable mention team.

For the second straight season, Sims was picked as the MIAA Coach of the Year after directing the team to a 17-10 overall record and a semifinal appearance in the MIAA Postseason Tournament. The Bulldogs were picked in a preseason poll of coaches for fifth place in the conference, but they proved the prediction wrong by finishing third. Sims, who compiled 310 wins in 24 years of coaching, will retire at the end of this academic year.

Athletic Director Walter H. Ryle said Sims has been an outstanding role model for Northeast student-athletes not only honing their basketball skills but also teaching trust, integrity, sportsmanship, courage and honor.

"As a great Northeast athlete, outstanding coach and human being, his place in the history of Bulldog athletics will long endure," Ryle said. "After a brilliant career, we all hold Willard as a coaching model against which others will be judged." ❁

Roe v. Wade lawyer to speak on campus

Sarah Weddington is a well-known attorney and spokesperson on public issues. She argued the winning side of the landmark case of "Roe v. Wade" before the United States Supreme Court.

Weddington will present "Some Leaders are Born Women" -- also the name of the book she is currently writing -- at 8 p.m., March 22 in Ryle Hall main lounge. Weddington's presentation is sponsored by Ryle South Residential College and the Women's Resource Center.

A long-time advocate for women, Weddington helped reform the Texas rape statutes, passed an equal credit bill for women, and led successful efforts to prevent any passage of anti-abortion legislation during her three terms as a member of the Texas House of Representatives.

From 1978-81 as an assistant to President Jimmy Carter, she led efforts to extend the time for ratification of the national ERA, assisted in the selection of women for federal judiciary appointments, and co-chaired the U.S. Delegation to the United Nations Mid-Decade Conference on Women. She also worked to implement programs to assist the equal treatment of women in the military, in securing business loans and in social programs.

Now a writer, lecturer and teacher, Weddington's interview with First Ladies Johnson, Ford and Carter on "Women in the Constitution" appeared in Good Housekeeping. She speaks extensively on women's issues and the development of leadership skills. In 1987, 1988 and 1989, she was named one of five Top Speakers on the College Circuit by the National Association for Campus Activities.

1995 Lincoln Contest

The Lincoln Contest, established in 1977 by Northeast alumni Ethel and the late Congressman Fred Schwengel in conjunction with their establishment of the Schwengel Lincoln Collection in Pickler Memorial Library, promotes interest in history, government and the ideals of Lincoln.

The contest, administered by the Language and Literature Division, is open to high school and college students. Winning entries are housed in the Schwengel Lincoln Collection. Deadline for entries is March 31.

Two major changes were announced in this year's contest. The first is the awarding of cash prizes for first and second place in each division: art, essay, and oratory on a Lincoln-related theme. At the college level, $300 will be awarded for first place and $75 for second place. Also, the Art Division winner will be commissioned from submitted portfolios rather than from submitted final products.

For more information, contact coordinators John Hart (oratory) at 785-4518, Robert Mielke (essay) at 785-4122 and Ed McEndarfer (art) at 785-4438 or 785-4430.

Asian-American exhibit on display

An exhibit on Adair County's Asian-American Women, an ongoing research project conducted by Huping Ling, assistant professor of Asian history, is on display at the Adair County Historical Society Museum. The Museum, located at 211 S Elson, is open from 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Ling's work will be on exhibit until March 30.

Scholars have done much research on Asian Americans on both east and west coasts. Yet stories of Asian American women in Missouri still remain unknown. Do Asian women reside in the northeast corner of rural Missouri? At least in Adair County. What factors have attributed to the Asian-American women in the region? Do their experiences parallel or differ from those of their counterparts on the two coasts? In 1991, Ling began to attempt to answer these questions through research on archival documents and census, municipal records investigation, and oral interviews of more than 50 Asian-American women from some northeast small towns like Kirksville, La Plata, and Greentop.

The exhibit, as part of the ongoing project, focuses on three pioneer Asian-American women in Kirksville: Sze Kew Dun, Bella Shao and Lanhei Kim Park. Reflecting their career achievements, social activities and family lives, the photos on display document the beginning of the Asian-American women settlers who made their mark in the region this century. Dun exhibited the qualities of a talented and well-educated Asian woman. Shao displayed her intelligence and virtues through a traditional role of wife and mother. Park demonstrated both talent in and out of the household through her writing and lecturing.

Ling expressed her gratitude to the Asian-American women whom she has interviewed for sharing their experiences, to her students for their assistance to the project and to the University for funding the project.
