Investiture Ceremony Held for Dr. McClain With Commencement

Investiture Ceremonies for Dr. Charles J. McClain, the tenth president of Northeast Missouri State College, were held Thursday, May 27 as part of the Spring Commencement program. The ceremonies were held in lieu of a formal inauguration.

In issuing the charge to the new president, James R. Reinhard, president of the Board of Regents, noted that the Board had earlier approved President McClain's request to forego a formal ceremony so that the normal expenses of such a program might be used in a project beneficial to the student body. Reinhard congratulated President McClain on his successful leadership of the College since February 1, 1970 and pledged the complete confidence and cooperation of the Board of Regents. At the conclusion of his remarks he presented President McClain with the President's medalion.

In responding to the charge of investiture by Reinhard, Dr. McClain said: "I accept the challenges and responsibilities of the office of president of Northeast Missouri State College with pride, with honor and with humility. Pride that you have expressed your confidence in my abilities; honor because the office bestowed upon me has been characteristically filled by men possessing wisdom and integrity; humility because I am fully aware that this administration will meet its goals and objectives to bring growth and continued success to our college only when our performance merits your vital cooperation, suggestions and assistance. Although I prefer to look toward the horizon, an occasional backward glance brings pleasant memories of the splendid cooperation I have enjoyed since arriving here 15 months ago. The course has not always remained smooth, but I am cognizant that the test of a good ship is its performance when the sea is stormy. The cooperation, dedication and loyalty expressed proved the structure of our ship is sound and prepared to face the challenges ahead.

I respectfully ask your continued cooperation and humbly express my heartfelt gratitude for your past performance."

Microteaching Studios and Teaching Skills Center Bolster Student Teacher Program

By Susan Hahn

Will 1971 begin the era of the "microteacher"? Well, not exactly, but it has begun the era of "microteaching" at Northeast Missouri State College in Kirksville, according to Dr. Loren Grissom, director of student teaching at the college.

"Teacher education is moving rapidly away from almost exclusive reliance on conventional classwork as the basis for pre-student teaching preparation," Dr. Grissom commented. "In an attempt to assure readiness for the high-risk situations inherent in student teaching, institutions are providing their trainees with extensive early involvement in various aspects of the teaching act."

Developed less than 10 years ago, the experimental technique — known as "microteaching" — has caught on in more than half of all teacher education programs.

"For the past 18 months the teacher education faculty of Northeast Missouri State College has been conducting a comprehensive study of the national trends in teacher education, applications on selected campuses in Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Wisconsin, and the types of experiences which would most effectively meet the urgent needs of our teacher education program," Grissom explained. "From this study came strong recommendations for the establishment of training laboratories which would provide individualized pre-student teaching training and practice in the use of teaching devices, the preparation of instructional materials and videotaped microteaching."

The result?

"Northeast Missouri State College now has one of the finest and most comprehensive training sequences in the Midwest based in an innovative 'Teaching Skills Center' located in Violette Hall," Grissom said. "The function of this Center is a campuswide training program for all prospective teachers."

The NMSC 'Teaching Skills Center' provides a program of early professional laboratory experiences for all elementary and secondary education majors in all divisions which includes four components: audio-visual utilization; instructional materials preparation; microteaching; and, actual school experience. Each of these training components features a sequence of low-risk, performance-oriented experiences designed to heighten teacher education majors' readiness for the high-risk challenges of student teaching.

In general terms, the prospective teacher should gain heightened confidence through self-awareness and competence in specific teaching skills; competence in analyzing and evaluating teaching performance in terms of specific teaching skills; and, the inclination and ability to use the results of self-analysis to effect modification in teaching performance.

For the Audio-Visual and Instructional Materials Laboratories, training materials consist of instructional programs on slides and printed directors. The carousel projectors in the various training stations are loaded with slides designed to help the student become confident in the operation of particular teaching devices. In addition, charts indicating the appropriate sequence of steps for the operation of production equipment will be available. Resource people will assist trainees as needed in both of the instructional media laboratories.

The specific scope and purposes of the four program components are as follows: The Audio-Visual Laboratory provides training in the use of such devices as overhead projectors, opaque projectors, filmstrip projectors, slide projectors, 16 m.m. projectors, 8 m.m. projectors, tape recorders, and record players. Through practice, students learn to use each of these teaching devices with skill.

The Microteaching Laboratory, the most elaborate of the Center's three training facilities, provides teacher education majors with numerous low-risk, scaled-down teaching experiences. The training sequence which will be used in the Microteaching Lab reflects the stress on specific performance competencies observable in the profession at large. There are six microteaching stations and one control room. Each station is equipped with front and rear wall-mounted cameras and a monitor enabling the five or six members of each micro-class to present five-minute lessons featuring a single concept or a single skill and then analyze both their own behaviors and the responses of their students through viewing an immediate replay of their performance. Self, peer, and instructor analysis and evaluation gives the basis for re-teach cycles, during which trainees strengthen their performance by incorporating the modifications indicated in the analysis of the initial lessons. Students demonstrate competency in such specific teaching skills as motivating and reinforcing; introducing and closing lessons; developing lessons; obtaining and maintaining attending behavior; analyzing and managing interaction; and, making assignments.

Each of these laboratories is designed to assure extensive performance on the part of the individual trainee. The two instructional media laboratories house numerous self-teaching stations which provide opportunities for the practice and demonstration of skills in the operation of a wide range of teaching devices and instructional materials production equipment. The Microteaching Laboratory provides the context for the use of the above competencies in teaching encounters which are carefully focused on specific skills videotaped to enhance self, peer, and instructor evaluation.

The "School Experience" sequence of the program enables the prospective student teachers to observe and participate in elementary and secondary classrooms. In addition to observing, the student participates in such functions as taking roll; preparing simple materials and displays; distributing and collecting materials; monitoring small group work sessions; tutoring individuals and small groups; grading objective tests; and, recording grades and maintaining other records.

The advantages of the Teaching Skills Center and School Experiences Programs can be summarized as follows: (A) Opportunity for sufficiently early and extensive involvement in low-risk teaching experiences to enable students with strong qualifications to proceed through toward teaching careers with increased confidence and to enable students with weak qualifications to make other career choices without great loss of college credit; (B) Opportunity to experience and analyze a variety of teaching styles (C) Sharp focus on specific performance competencies with extensive experience in teach reteach cycles; (D) Immediate feedback as the basis for continuous analysis and evaluation; (E) Means for prospective teacher to achieve self-understanding and development well in advance of high-risk student teaching experiences.

"Research at other teacher education institutions has consistently reported significant gains in confidence, skills, competence and general professionalism as the result of clinical training in specific teaching skills," Grissom concluded. "We want our students to perform well and maintain the distinguished reputation that Northeast Missouri State College has established in teacher education."

NMSC President Challenges Faculty To A Total Commitment In Address Closing Academic Year

Editor's Note:

The following remarks are excerpted from an address given by President Charles J. McClain before the faculty at their final meeting of the 1970-71 academic year. Your editor felt the address expressed many of Dr. McClain's impressions of and plans for the future of your Alma Mater, having served as its President for the past fifteen months.

The problem of numbers in higher education has struck us full force. But the blame for such large numbers is not completely the fault of the institutions. We might attack society for wanting so much education. How can we logically attack the institutions for trying to do the job foisted on them?

We Now Turn Off Our Underclassmen

We now turn off many by our almost exclusive use of lectures to underclassmen at a time in their lives when we have a chance to spark a creative spirit. Through additional professorships and a re-study of our approaches, we must turn around our mass approach to freshmen and bring them into the college community while they are yet malleable. This is a concern of high priority. A total concern by the entire faculty community can right this wrong. But it cannot be righted without a concern for and a commitment to students. I have long felt there should be a way to hold us as individuals accountable for individual students rather than merely accountable for successfully getting a favorable rating from someone on how we teach our courses. The challenge of the seventies in higher education will be to resume the vigorous debates about the question: How best to educate students for the now and for the then? I am personally glad to have all the help I can get in the governance of the College. But if the arguments--and the healthy discussions--about how best to do our several tasks do not happen in the faculty consorts--in groups of 2-3, in the curriculum council, in the Faculty Senate--who talks about them? To be different, may I humbly suggest that the need for student evaluation of faculty would be largely obviated if we could revive some of these discussions vis-a-vis faculty.

I Find It A Strange Malady

I find it a strange malady of our times that certain offices on campus know more about the lives of certain students than do the faculty!

In some way, we must all be brought together to make our impressions on students--not to control them, but to improve their characters and to rid ourselves of those unfit for solid scholarship!

We now enter a decade when we need to have fewer rules in colleges than in the past--not less concern for the morals and manners of our students and for their character, but a different approach to the goal. The best way to put childishness to shame is to promote scholarship and manliness. The manners of a community cannot be improved by main forces any more than can its morals. But to abandon the legalism of rules does not give us license to abandon the decorum which they sought to achieve. We must renew our efforts to think more of substance of our students. In some way, we must re-create an atmosphere of closeness where we can reach the hearts of our students as well as their minds.

The College Is A Place of Study

The college is a place of study and instruction, and it is at any time what the faculty makes it. Our need then is to revitalize our efforts to make the college community a coherent whole. This implies that the students are a part of this whole. We cannot think only in terms of a community to serve our own health and happiness. Morale in faculty and administration is important--and it is important for students. May I confess that I am less than enthusiastic about achieving the results we must by appointing committees or including a few students and faculty on governance committees, important though they are!

I Am Enthusiastic About This Procedure

I am enthusiastic about this procedure to achieve definite functions. But what is needed in addition is a new awareness as to how we may get all of the students involved personally in the college community and to have a "love affair" with their professors and administrators.

If a student does not become loyal to some institution, he may never become loyal to any institution. And so far a society has never worked without some kind of glue to hold it together. Also, this type of community is much less subject to outside interference. If we don't act from our enlightened point of view someone else will take over our jobs outside of the institution--and, besides, we ought to want to establish a close community of persons because it is right and it is a good way to live.

Because we see and hear so much of today it is hard to remember yesterday and to dream of tomorrow. I do have a dream for this College, and that is one where we will be so united in our loyalty to the College--or at least so steeped in our respect for what it does--that even the most casual visitor can sense that it is a great institution--great because we believe in it.

I would hope that the words excellence, taste, judgment, character, morals, and manners would be a part of the vocabulary used to describe this College.

We have the staff to build the new Jerusalem-- and I believe we have the desire!

Hearnes Addresses Record Graduating Class

An address by Missouri Governor Warren E. Hearnes and the conferring of a record breaking near 1,000 degrees highlighted the 1971 Spring NMSC Commencement activities held in Stokes Stadium at 10:00 a.m. May 27. An estimated 5,000 friends and relatives of the graduates attended the ceremonies.

Governor Hearnes told the class that they were graduating at a time when it was widely assumed that a generation gap creates completely different outlooks on life between their age group and their parents. "I think this gap is not new, and not greatly changed from what it has been in the past," Governor Hearnes continued. "The gap does exist, but mainly because the generations develop consecutively. People in their 20's, their 40's and their 60's quite naturally have differing viewpoints."

The Governor continued by saying that all of us, old and young alike, face essentially the same major problems which include unemployment, political unrest, economic instability and huge relief roles.

"Precisely because the class of 1971 is confronted by perils so similar to those of 30 years ago, credence is given to the charge that the established system has failed to meet its responsibilities and has left you a sorry inheritance. I would caution you, however, that today you give up your status as independent critics of the establishment. Today you become members of the system and you, too, will be called upon to be accountable for your shortcomings."

Governor Hearnes noted that these college graduates, as have earlier college graduates, face the assignment of wiping out poverty. From there he continued speaking about poverty not only in Missouri but in the nation as well.

"The United States has made remarkable progress in combating poverty, but has not eliminated it. And, frankly, I do not expect your generation to achieve perfection. But if you have the necessary attitudes and desires, and can register accomplishments which correspond to those of your parents' generation, you will have cause to be proud."

"And then, in fewer years than you might think, your values and your achievements will be challenged by young and idealistic students," Hearnes concluded. "From my viewpoint, I have confidence that you will have compiled an unsurpassed record and that you will be proud of what you have done. History does have a way of repeating itself."

Kuna Retires After Thirty Years Service with Hallmark

Margueritte Kuna, 1930, Assistant Employment Manager, at Hallmark Cards in Kansas City, completed 33 years with the company on September 1, 1970 and retired on March 31, of this year. Rather than "retirement" she says it is a change of pace and from the list of her plans, it may even be a "faster pace".

Prior to going to Kansas City she had taught commercial subjects for 9 years in her home-town high school and in 1935 she established the first Department of Secretarial Science at Central Methodist College in Fayette, Missouri and taught there for 2 years. In a program to place her graduates, a contact was made with Hall Bros. (since changed to Hallmark Cards) and through one of her students, a representative from the company offered "the teacher" a position.

She started with Hallmark as a Woman's Counselor - thus inaugurating the first organized Personnel Department . . . which has now grown to more than 80 members.

And so the story unfolds in Kansas City. In addition to her regular personnel duties, she visited area colleges to recruit students, gave talks to schools, civic groups, and has acted as a judge for various competitions. She taught evening classes in shorthand for 15 years at Metropolitan Junior College.

As she reviews her years at Hallmark, she treasures most the friendships she has made and participating in the development of many young people and being a part of an outstanding, progressive company.

Dr. McClain confers emeritus status on three retiring professors at spring commencement in Stokes Stadium. Shaking hands with President McClain is Dr. Earl C. Cunningham who was made professor emeritus of philosophy. Looking on are Dr. Ivan E. Miller who received the title professor emeritus in education and Dr. Charles E. Gross who received the title professor emeritus in chemistry.

Boyd King Night Honors Retiring NMSC Coach After Brilliant Twenty-five Years at Helm

"It would take too long to name everyone who made it possible," exclaimed Northeast Missouri State's Basketball Coach Boyd King at an "Appreciation Dinner" in his honor on April 3, in the Georgian Room of the Student Union.

The veteran mentor will retire on June 30 as Bulldog taskmaster after 25 years of service, and his associates, former coaches and players stepped to the podium to pay tribute to a man whose teams compiled a record of 380-199 and notched seven MIAA Conference titles or co-championships.

King told an audience of 265 persons he had always tried to instill traits of persistent hard work and learning in his players. "I wouldn't attempt to name an all-star group from the numerous men who performed for me, and I wouldn't indicate a team I believed was the best. However, I would have to say the 1970-71 Conference champions really gave more of themselves than anyone could expect!"

The Dean of MIAA pilots received an assortment of gifts, including an electric golf cart, a charcoal portrait of himself, an abstract painting of basketball action, resolutions from the Missouri Legislature and City of Kirksville, a scroll containing names of friends, as well as letters and telegrams from well-wishers.

College President Charles J. McClain made welcoming remarks. He praised King for his accomplishments over a quarter of a century, and expressed appreciation to the "old graduates present tonight to help honor this man." Dr. McClain also introduced State Representative "Ozzie" Osbourn of Monroe City.

The principal speaker was Harry Gallatin, dean of students and athletic director at Southern Illinois University (Edwardsville). The former Bulldog basketball standout declared King was "responsive to the educational and other needs of his players." "A true test of a coach's ability is the evaluation of his performance over a long period of time, and how he's rated by his peers," Gallatin asserted. "Boyd King's colleagues have honored him by his selection as District Coach of the Year."

Words of tribute and appreciation were expressed by persons representing various groups. State Representative Robert L. LaCore of the 95th District spoke in behalf of the Legislature. Don and Fred Faurot, both now residing in Columbia, represented former coaches of King. Dr. James Hombs of Glasgow, his college roommate, represented former teammates. The Bulldog mentor earned 11 athletic monograms while an NMSC student.

College President-Emeritus Walter H. Ryle reviewed essential statistics posted by King's teams since the 1946-47 season. Dr. Ryle called King "one of the six great coaches to direct athletic aggregations at the College." The President-Emeritus said last year the coach ranked 14th among active mentors of four-year college squads as far as total victories were concerned.

Dr. Earl Keth, former basketball coach at Central Missouri State College, spoke in behalf of MIAA mentors.

Members of the King family in attendance at the banquet were his mother, Mrs. Fred Johnson, of Madison; his brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald King of Denver, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. Ralph King of Hallsville; and his nephew, Charles, of Kansas City.

Dr. Richard Erzen, former Bulldog player and president of the College of Lake County in Grayslake, Ill., served as toastmaster. The Rev. Harry Maurer, vicar of the Trinity Episcopal Church in Kirksville, delivered the invocation.

Alumnus Appeals for Books, Records And Educational Materials Lost in Fire

An appeal has been received by the College from alumnus Rufino Chungalao for numerous items lost in a fire destroying his residence. A copy of his transcript, a new diploma and an Echo have been forwarded by the College. Fellow alumni are encouraged to respond to the other requests if possible.

The President
Northeast Missouri State College
Kirksville, Mo., U.S.A.

Dear Sir:

I am sorry to inform the President of my beloved Alma Mater, the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College, that I have lost my diploma, transcript of records, annual of the graduating class of 1958, and other precious documents pertinent to my study grant to that institution. These things were burned in my study room, together with all our property and personal belongings when our house was burned during the worst fire calamity that burned to ashes the whole poblacion of Banaue, Ifugao, Philippines on March 16, 1971. It is informed that Banaue is the site of the famous Ifugao Rice Terraces, the 8th wonder of the world.

I was on official trip to the nearby district of Mayoyao, Ifugao during the fire and my study room was locked. All my professional books, precious records and documents, public and personal records, personal belongings, were burned to ashes. I wonder if I can be given by that College, by authority of the President, duplicate copies of the above stated documents and records, professional books not needed by the institution, and such other forms of aid or assistance to help rehabilitate my library and home. May be fellow alumni, brother masons, civic spirited and Christian hearted friends in that part of this world can possibly extend helping hands from across the ocean.

Any consideration given this request in the spirit of the week or season would be most appreciated with kind anticipation.

Very truly yours,
Rufino Chungalao
Superintendent
Public Schools Division

April 23, 1971

Mr. Rufino Chungalao
Public Schools Division Superintendent
Department of Education
Bureau of Public Schools
Division of Ifugao
Lagawe, Ifugao

Dear Mr. Chungalao:

Thank you for your letter. I was very sorry to learn of the terrible fire which destroyed your personal belongings. I shall be glad to gather duplicate copies of those items which are available and send them under separate cover.

Mr. Chungalao, I am going to share your letter with our Alumni Director, Mr. Russell Harrison and our Director of Public Relations, Mr. Robert McKinney, in the hope that they might also be of assistance in rehabilitating your library and home. If I can be of any further assistance, please contact me.

Best personal wishes,
Charles J. McClain

From the Macon Chronicle-Herald

Editor Frank Briggs Says It Well

For the past few weeks I've been keeping an eye on events at one of the finest institutions in Missouri, the Northeast Missouri State College, at Kirksville.

It has been my privilege over a long period of time to know personally many of the leaders of that college. In addition to the presidents of the past 40 years, I've known most of the members of the Board of Regents and I've known the present crop as long as they have been there. There isn't a fairer, more judicious group of men and women in these United States. So when some disgruntled faculty member says "racist" or "bigot", I know instantly that it just isn't so. And when a group of students led by the same people who use such injudicious terms harrass, heckle and try to intimidate the administration, I instinctively applaud the wisdom of those who sat in judgment.

For more than one hundred years Northeast Missouri State College has been producing leaders not only in the field of education but in many other fields as well. One hundred years of success doesn't come about by accident and it won't be destroyed by a handful of agitators who are out to change the Missouri system.

I salute the stewardship of Dr. Charles J. McClain and the members of the Board of Regents. May the passions of events of the past few weeks be tempered by the Easter season and may conditions prevail that will permit the students to pursue their studies in the classrooms rather than in the street.

Baseball Team Sets Thirteen New Records

This year's transformation of Northeast Missouri State's baseball team from an MIAA doormat position to a first-division roost was evident in a 17-11 ledger and 13 new Bulldog records.

NMSC posted its best campaign since the revival of the sport in 1966. A torrid pace in the second half of the season netted 13 triumphs in 16 contests. Moreover, the Purple and White finished fourth in the Conference, only one game behind second-place Southeast and Southwest Missouri State. Previously, the highest standing of a Nugent club was fifth in 1969 when the league was composed of six, rather than seven schools. That squad compiled a 9-18 standard, the most victories until this spring.

Three individual and four team offensive marks fell in 1971. Senior catcher Charles Blakley (St. Joseph), one of the top batters in current NCAA College Division listings, changed his own records for best average (.442) and most hits (38). His old mark of .362 and 34 were set last year.

Freshman outfielder Scott Day (Wheeling, Ill.) eclipsed the same standards with a .396 average and 36 hits. Senior first baseman Bill Daues (St. Louis), bothered by a bad back in the latter stages of the campaign, also erased Blakeley's old batting statistic with .380.

Blakley and sophomore outfielder Bob Bettis (Davenport, Ia.) broke Larry Hammerbacher's 1970 base-stealing standard of nine by swiping 10 each.

Freshman third baseman-pitcher Dave Wehrmeister (LaGrange, Ill.) tied the record held by three others for most triples (2).

Team-wise, the Bulldogs re-wrote five season marks — most hits (234), most runs (137), most doubles (33), most runs-batted-in (111) and best batting average (.299). The old figures were 198 hits, 111 runs, 23 doubles, and 104 RBI's and a .242 average.

Individual pitchers shared laurels with the men at the plate. Sophomore Mike Dahlberg (Lombard, Ill.) chalked up a 1.09 earned-run average, improving Bob Miller's (St. Louis) 1.15, established in 1969. Wehrmeister fanned 55 bastmen, 17 in one contest, and junior Ted Wilson (Florissant) struck out 51 to shatter Larry Anderson's total of 50 three years ago.

Sophomore Rod Rea (Kirksville) tied Mike Hooker's record for fewest hits allowed in a season (20). Wehrmeister captured five of six decisions, bettering Rick Morgan's four triumphs in 1969. Dahlberg tied Morgan's figure with a 4-1 ledger.

Wilson wiped out his own record for most games hurled (11) as he went to the mound 12 times. Dahlberg was in 11 encounters.

The Bulldog mound staff whiffed 242 men, 86 more than the record-setting 1969 crew, and spun a 2.36 ERA, second best since 1968.

Blakley paced his team in batting, home runs, hits, total bases (56), RBI'S (19), and tied Bettis for runs scored (17) and stolen bases.

Day collected seven doubles to lead the Bulldogs in this category. Hurn, who swatted two grand slam round-trippers for a team first, was the RBI ace with 22.

"We'll lose only three performers from this group," Nugent noted. "Granted, they're good ones — Blakley, Miller and Daues — but the experience gained by our freshmen should really help us in 1972."

Four yearlings, Wehrmeister, Day, Hollander and outfielder Terry Rigdon (Kirksville), were usually in the starting lineup during the last weeks of the schedule.

"I really felt we'd be stronger than last year, but we performed beyond my expectations," Nugent exclaimed. "The first-year men did a superb job, and I was happy with the improvement in the hitting of Bettis (.333), who was a jayvee last spring. Wehrmeister, who suffered an injury to his glove hand, really improved his hitting average late in the campaign." The 6'4", 200 pound infielder-pitcher jumped his average from .187 to .285 in the final six outings with a sparkling .444.

What was his most satisfying victory in 1971? "Probably, the 16-1 win over Southern Illinois (Edwardsville)," the Bulldog boss replied. "They've been invited to the NCAA playoffs for the second straight year."

Charles Blakley (right), (St. Joseph) slotback on the 1970 Northeast Missouri State College football team, poses with his coach, Russ Sloan, after a banquet, honoring the MIAA Conference Football co-champions. Blakley received plaques at the banquet, citing him as the squad's "Best Hustler" for the second consecutive year, and one of the "Outstanding Senior Backs". He was selected by his teammates for these awards. Blakley was chosen to the league's honorable mention listings last fall. He led the Bulldogs in punt returns, second in kick-off returns, third in pass receiving, and fourth in rushing. The 5'10", 170 pound back was a Bulldog tri-captain, and was the recipient of the 1971 Stickler Cup presented annually to the outstanding NMSC athlete. A standout on the Bulldog baseball team, Blakley was recently drafted by the St. Louis Baseball Cardinals.

Conference Champ Bulldog Roundballers Finish in Top Sixteen of NCAA Tourney

Last fall, any hope of Boyd King concluding a 25-year basketball coaching career at Northeast Missouri State with an MIAA title was written off as wishful thinking.

NMSC was returning one starter and just four lettermen from an edition, which tumbled to the conference basement for only the second time since the mentor assumed his responsibilities in 1946.

However, the Bulldogs amazed even their most loyal supporters by notching the school's seventh crown under King's leadership and registering 18 victories, the most since 1959-60.

What caused the turn-about in the performance of the Kingmen? "It's a little difficult to pinpoint, but I'd have to say we worked together well, played hard, and had pretty good reserve strength," King theorized. "And we seemed to relish the challenge of clashing with strong clubs, the ones that were supposed to beat us."

The mentor, who will call it quits as the Purple and White taskmaster on June 30, quickly emphasized his small starting unit, averaging only 6'2" per man, was not comprised of "great shooters", as the final team field goal percentage of .406 would indicate.

Claude Wilson (Chicago), 6'3" senior forward, paced the Bulldogs in scoring and accuracy from the floor. He poured in 418 points for a 16.1 average and logged a .443 percentage, finishing seventh in scoring and 12th in the field goal category among MIAA leaders. He was also eighth in rebounding with an 8.2 average.

Charles Currie (Decatur, Ill.), 6'3" senior pivotman, led the league in pull-down caroms, averaging 12.2, a "fantastic feat for a man his height", according to King. Currie collared 667 rebounds during his tenure, and is now second in the Purple and White record book for single season backboard achievements.

The 210-pound jumping-jack was runnerup in Bulldog point production this year with 330, a 12.2 clip, ranking 14th in the loop. He was also 14th in MIAA shooting accuracy from the field with .436.

Wilson, termed by his pilot as one of the "best one-on-one operators in this area", completed his four-year career with 1054 points. Currie pumped in 690 as a Bulldog.

Both players were tapped for 1970-71 all-league recognition, the first time two NMSC cagers earned these honors in the same year since 1964-65.

Forward Lou Gregory (East St. Louis Ill.) was seventh among MIAA carom leaders with an 8.3 average. The 6'3" sophomore, who hit an 11.0 pace, was an honorable mention choice for league selections.

Other top ranking Bulldogs in MIAA statistics were sophomore backliner Jim Magruder (Oakland, Ill.), second in free throw accuracy (.848), freshman reserve guard Joe Boyer (Festus), fifth among charity line artists (.794), senior backliner Dave Davis (Huntsville), sixth in the same department (.785), and freshman reserve forward George Saffarrans (Palmyra), ninth among free throw aces (.753).

King discussed the loss of his five seniors, who also include reserve centers Steve Jurkins (Springfield, Ill.) and Ned Goss (Waynesville). "They're quality performers, and the team will miss them," he declared. "Davis, one of the most underrated guards in the MIAA, didn't put many points in the scorebook, but he committed very few turnovers, and upset our opponents with his ball-hawking tactics. Jurkins helped us a lot on the boards, and possessed fire and pep which was bound to rub off on everyone." The mentor said Goss, a 6'6" postman, provided some badly needed size on the bench late in the campaign when junior Keith Matzen (Bettendorf, Ia.) sustained a knee injury.

One school standard was shattered this winter. The Bulldogs connected on 495 free throws in 27 contests, erasing the old mark of 435 in 23 encounters six years ago.

How did the 1970-71 crew compare with the NMSC title winners? "In some respects, this was one of our finest squads," King replied. "Who would've thought a year ago we'd finish as one of the top 16 teams in the 1971 NCAA College Division playoffs? Yes, a coach has to be proud of a group that played far better than he had a right to expect before the season started."

Willard Sims Named New Basketball Coach As King Steps Down

Willard Sims, assistant basketball coach at Northeast Missouri State College for the past seven years, was named head basketball coach, beginning July 1, according to College President Charles J. McClain.

The action was announced following the February meeting of the College Board of Regents.

Boyd King, the current mentor, had earlier indicated his intentions to retire from his position on June 30 after 25 years of service.

In commenting on the selection of Sims, Dr. McClain said, "I'm pleased that we were able to fill this important post from our own ranks, and I'm confident that Coach Sims will justify the confidence shown in his ability by the athletic committee, the administration and the Board of Regents."

"I'm certainly very pleased, and I will try to repay the confidence placed in me," Sims exclaimed. "However, foremost in my mind at present is helping our team win the MIAA Conference championship." At that time the Bulldogs were leading the league with a 9-1 record and went on to capture the championship.

The new Bulldog headmaster was a basketball student of King from 1950-51 through 1953 to 1954. He was named to the 1951-52 and 1953-54 All-Conference teams.

After receiving a B.S. degree in education from NMSC in 1954, he taught physical education and coached at Kirksville Junior High School. He also served as assistant football coach at Kirksville Senior High School.

Sims was awarded the M.A. degree from NMSC in 1955. A year later, he was released by the New York Knickerbocker professional basketball club after a tryout.

For the next seven seasons, he directed basketball quintets at Waterloo (Ill.) High School, posting a 120-58 overall mark. His squads claimed two conference championships and two district titles.

He is married to the former Nelda Patterson, and they have three children, Dana, Scott and Jay.

Wrestlers, Raquetmen, Golfers Have Good Year

A campaign sprinkled with bright spots and disappointments is now history for the Northeast Missouri State wrestlers, who concluded their schedule on March 13 by finishing in a deadlock for 37th at the NCAA College Division championship.

Coach Bruce Craddock's matmen wrote a successful 7-2-1 ledger in dual competition, placed third in the Northwest Missouri State Invitational, and seventh in the Southwest Missouri Tournament.

However, their most heart-breaking moments, according to Craddock, were when they had to settle for a runnerup spot in the MIAA Conference championship on March 6. "We were shooting for the school's fourth consecutive league title, but we didn't get the job done," he lamented. "We knew we had to remain healthy in the upper weights, or we could be in trouble. We lost three starters late in the campaign."

"Our winning streak of six duals and triumphs over Southern Illinois (Edwardsville) and Northwest Missouri State were probably the highlights of the campaign," Craddock continued. He also emphasized the fourth MIAA title claimed this winter by senior tri-captain George Simmons (St. Louis), who added a heavyweight medal to his collection.

In the NCAA finale at Fargo, N.D., only two Purple and White grapplers advanced beyond the first round. Senior tri-captain Ray Moncavage (Mt. Carmel, Pa.) lost a quarterfinal match to Mankato's Ken Stockdale, eventual flight crown-wearer. "Ray had an opportunity to wrestle back for fifth or sixth, but he would've needed to lose too much weight again, so he forfeited the match," Craddock explained.

The other early survivor was Simmons, who also advanced to the quarter-finals.

What were the most pleasant surprises this past winter? "I'd have to say Fye, who won the 118-pound title at the conference meet as a freshman, and Proctor, who gave us a big lift at 177 and 190 this year" the mentor added.

Northeast Missouri State's tennis and track squads had to settle for the "bridesmaid role" in the May MIAA Conference spring championships at Rolla. Coach H. A. Walmsley's netmen finished second to Northwest Missouri State, and Coach Kenneth Gardner's thinclads earned a runner-up spot to defending champion Southeast Missouri State.

The Bulldog racquet crew, which was protecting a string of seven straight league titles, captured victories at only No. 1, 5 and 6 singles, as the Bearcats outpointed the Purple and White, 44 to 33. Kurt Marin (St. Louis) was the winner at No. 1. Two Chicago freshmen, Fred Melone and Don Martin, were successful at 5 and 6.

NMSC's No. 1 doubles team, Marin and Terry Taylor (Marshalltown, Ia.), took an unblemished 23-0 ledger into the flight championship, but was upended by the Bearcats' top duo.

Marin was undefeated in his first 17 matches at No. 1 this spring before losing to Bradley University's Dave Umbarger on April 30.

Despite an inexperienced squad composed of four freshmen and only two upperclassmen, the Bulldogs posted a 14-7 dual record this year.

Gardner's trackmen overhauled Lincoln University in the final event of the Conference meet to edge the Tigers, 59 to 58, for runnerup honors. SEMS rolled up 69½ points for the Indians' third successive outdoor crown.

Tom Geredine (Kansas City) was Gardner's only double winner, erasing the MIAA long jump mark with a leap of 24'4" and collecting a gold medal in the triple jump with a measurement of 49'7". Don Allbritton (Rock Island, Ill.), hampered by an ankle injury, still managed to break his league pole vault standard with a height of 15'0". Al Fulton (Kankakee, Ill.) won the high jump, clearing the bar at 6'8".

Geredine was the first NMSC thinclad to win back-to-back individual titles at major college meets. He logged a 51'1½" in the triple jump at the Drake Relays for a school record after leaping 50'10" the week before at the Kansas Relays.

Allbritton re-wrote his school mark in the high jump, soaring 6'10¼" during the decathlon competition at the Kansas Relays. The versatile All-American finished fourth in the exhausting two-day affair with a career high of 7021 points.

Northeast Missouri State's golf season was not a "smashing success", according to Boyd King, but the coach expressed pride in his linksmen's scrappy performance May 15, in the 1971 finale.

NMSC, 6-3 in dual competition, concluded the campaign with a third-place finish in the MIAA Conference championships at Rolla.

"However, as was the case during the regular schedule, our scores at Rolla weren't good," King declared. "But third place was higher than expected, and the kids kept battling, never giving up."

The Bulldogs amassed 815 strokes in the 36-hole affair, 45 behind the winner Southwest Missouri State, and 11 shy of runnerup Missouri (Rolla).

Junior Chuck Hull (St. Charles) fired rounds of 83 and 75 to tie for eighth, and freshman Tom Roberts (Iowa City, Ia.) carded an 80 and 79 to finish in a deadlock for 10th.

The remainder of King's six-man contingent was off the pace of the medalists. Marty Herington (Milan), another yearling, shot 79 and 85; junior Jack Swan (Perry, Mo.), 82 and 85; sophomore Bill Daniels (Kirksville), 80 and 87; and sophomore Bill Huffman (Iowa City, Ia.), 90 both days.

"Playing the ball down in the tournament definitely affected all golfers," King observed. He said he was pleased with Hull and Roberts' final round and Herington's first 18 holes.

The Bulldogs, who competed only twice on their home course, had just one player, Hull, averaging below 80 this season. The St. Charles swinger charted a 79, and Daniels was next with an 80. Herington participated in the final six meets, notching five dual victories against one setback. Roberts wrote a 5-3-1 mark, and Hull logged a 5-4 ledger.

All members of the 1971 squad are expected back next spring, except senior John Haack (Marengo, Ia.). King hoped Jack McClain (Kirksville), who handled the third slot last year, would be available. He did not enroll this spring semester.

First Four Officers Commissioned In New College R.O.T.C. Program

Colonel John F. Gerrity is shown administering the oath of office to the first four officers ever to be commissioned by the college. The new officers are (left to right): Richard L. Brobst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brobst of Meadville; Carl R. Philips, son of Rex W. Philips of Selma; Aubrey R. Van Houten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Van Houten of Moberly; and James D. Welsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Welsh of Glenwood.

College President Charles J. McClain spoke to the graduates and told them: "The military in many respects is analogous to the American educational system. Each began in infancy in the 18th century; each has been nurtured by creativity, courage and foresight; each constantly seeks the broader horizon of truth and knowledge to provide the means for our common goal — a happier and more productive society for mankind.

The modern military has a trend which may be considered healthy and all American. Young officers are questioning methods and techniques, not as insubordinates but as a means of expressing their creativity. Although they must establish their thinking is correct and to the benefit of all, if they seem impeded at first, they will be vindicated as was the creative General Billy Mitchell — for this is part of the greatness of America."

In closing McClain said: "In 1892 Louis Pasteur responded to the greeting of the French Academy on his 70th birthday, by saying: 'You bring me the deepest joy that can be felt by a man whose invincible belief it is that science and peace will triumph over ignorance and war, that nations will unite not to destroy but to build, and that the future will belong to those who have done most for suffering mankind.'"

It is expected that the number of graduates will increase to 50 by the spring of 1973 according to Colonel Gerrity. The ROTC unit was first established in fall of 1969 on the NMSC campus and is required for all entering male students.
