SUMMER
1966

President's Corner

For many years we have been interested in collecting documents of various kinds relating to the history of the Teachers College. If such materials are not collected and properly filed, they become lost and thus obscure certain parts of the history of the development of the College. These old documents are often destroyed unthoughtedly by people who have no personal use for them.

I need especially three types of documents. First, I am seeking catalogues of the College that were published from 1868 to 1900. The College was established in 1867, but during its first year no catalogue was published so that the series of our official catalogues commence with the academic year of 1868. If you have one of these catalogues or know where one can be secured, I would appreciate it if you would send it to me if you no longer have any use for it. These bulletins are extremely useful to one who is attempting to reconstruct the history of the growth of the College. Such material may be in a collection of papers that you may have inherited from your grandparents or great-grandparents, for remember that this College has been publishing these bulletins for near a century. Second, I would like to have commencement programs of the College from 1872 down to 1925. The date 1872 is the year in which this College held its first commencement for its first four-year graduates. Third, I am looking for a diploma that was signed by Baldwin, one by Nason, one by Blanton, one by Dobson, one by Kirk, and one by Fair. We want to frame these diplomas and display them in the Missouriiana Room in the Pickler Memorial Library. No doubt, many of these diplomas are now in the possession of individuals who would be pleased to give them to the College for this purpose. I would be especially pleased to have one of the diplomas signed by Joseph Baldwin in 1872, the first year that he signed the diplomas for a four-year graduate of the College.

I shall greatly appreciate help from anyone in locating these particular articles concerning the historic past of our College. Please get in touch with me personally if you possess such articles. Other documents of various kinds that you may wish to give to the College will also be truly appreciated.

AN EXPANDING NEIGHBORHOOD

by

Will W. Davis

I am here today to represent my boss, Governor Warren E. Hearnes, and believe me, I feel a great degree of inadequacy.

But, I am a resident of Shelby County and it is always nice to have an excuse to come back to Northeast Missouri—even though I could only get here by flying in and out without enough time to stay.

Governor Hearnes asked me to express his regrets that he could not be with you today, but most of you here know that he has been here before and I am honored to follow a good friend of mine at a dedicatory ceremony—the first lady of Missouri, Mrs. Warren Hearnes, known to most of us as “Betty.”

I mention that I am from Northeast Missouri, but may I say that I hope the next session of the legislature complies with the thinking and desires of this college's student body, faculty and alumni and agree that it should be named “Missouri State Teachers College.”

We are here today to dedicate something more than bricks and mortar. In fact, this college and the buildings it contains are more than the students and faculty. A college—especially a teachers college—is an opportunity, an opportunity to hundreds and thousands of people to enjoy and participate in knowledge.

For a moment let us consider the tremendous impact that this very school has had upon the social and economic life of the people of Missouri. Think of the opportunity that has been given to generation after generation of students during the 99 years that its doors have been open. Think also of the opportunity that will be here on the campus for untold generations tomorrow and many tomorrows after that.

If future students are to have these opportunities, the State of Missouri must meet a challenge—a challenge that involves numbers, but cannot be equated on an adding machine or fed into a computer, and still retain the human involvement and the human equation of success, failure and the contribution to society.

Only a few years ago enrollments of institutions of higher learning totaled less than 25,000. This fall we expect to have more than 65,000 students enrolled in our university system and our state colleges. An additional 18,000 or 19,000 college students will attend classes on junior college campuses.

These figures may give us reason to think long and hard. But they will be pale statistics when we project those thoughts into the future. By 1975—less than ten years from now, we can expect to have 216,000 students enrolled in our public and private universities and colleges, and if these projections hold true, we can expect between 10,000 and 12,000 students occupying the facilities of this campus.

My friends, we are faced with problems—problems in providing facilities, problems in determining criteria not determined by hours earned in classrooms, problems in how to finance such an upsurge so needed if these United States, Missouri and this area is to provide the intelligence and training so necessary in a world growing more complex every day.

The dedication of these buildings today represents just a single way that the State of Missouri is meeting the challenge of numbers—a challenge which involves and concerns all of us today and throughout all of our tomorrows.

Will W. Davis, Press Secretary to Governor Warren E. Hearnes, speaking at the dedication of the Student Union and addition to Pershing Building August 9.

It would be useless for me to say that these problems will be solved by this dedication, or by our best efforts next year or the year after. Until we can solve those problems, let us abide by Peter Marshall's famous prayer which advises:

“God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change. The courage to change those I can, and the wisdom to know the difference.”

I know that this Student Union Building is a long-time dream of Dr. Ryle, and I also know that this dedication was made possible through patience and many disappointments. I am honored that I was asked to be a part of a dream come true.

Highlights in the History of Kirk Auditorium

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article by Dean Selby was written for the fiftieth anniversary issue of The Index, published July 1, 1959.

The Kirk Building was built in 1922-3 and was first named the Auditorium-Gymnasium Building, but at the insistence of the faculty and the Board of Regents, it was christened the John R. Kirk Auditorium. In 1959 the Board renamed it the Kirk Building to avoid confusion with the new auditorium in Baldwin Hall. The cornerstone was laid on July 21, 1922, with Lieutenant Governor Hiram Lloyd as the principal speaker of the occasion. The first student assembly was held in the Kirk Auditorium on April 24, 1923. The first convocation exercises were held there May 18, 1923.

The first basketball game was played there on January 21, 1924. For several years there were no seats in the balcony, long benches accommodating the students. The present balcony seats were installed about 1926. The hardwood floor was laid in squares capable of removal with a concrete floor underneath. A place under the stage was provided for storing the hardwood floor and for the folding seats for the Auditorium. However, the wooden floor was seldom moved and it was replaced in 1932 with continuous flooring. An electric scoreboard for basketball was added in 1938.

The permanent balcony seats numbered 586. The main floor has held 696 folding-seats and around the upper edge of the balcony seats bleachers or chairs have been placed to hold 200 more. To this number there have been added 100 chairs on the stage. The maximum seating capacity is therefore 1582. There have been crowds which occupied all of these seats plus another hundred standing or sitting on the steps of the balcony.

It is believed that the largest number of people ever to attend a program in the Auditorium was assembled on the occasion of a visit by Richard Halliburton, noted adventurer and writer. Halliburton spoke for a breathless hour to an audience of 1700 consisting of high school seniors and the students of the College in an afternoon program. At some of the conference basketball games when no one may have seats on the main floor there have been an estimated 1300 persons present. Fortunately for the larger student body and the increased interest in scholastic events the College will now have facilities which can handle much larger numbers.

Besides the student assemblies and the College basketball games, the Auditorium has had a multiplicity of uses. It has been the scene of many intramural athletic events, men's physical education classes, an occasional physical education class for men and women, classes in Problems of Healthful Living, classes in Current Affairs and other oversized groups, junior high boys' activities, junior high assemblies, annual and semiannual meetings of the Northeast Missouri State Teachers Association, state and district meetings of professional and business men and of club women, a national convention (the American Osteopathic Association) the two College baccalaureate services each year, the two commencement programs each year, commencement programs for Kirksville Senior High School and Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery, the concerts of the Civic Music Association, various evening lectures, wrestling matches, the State Poultry Show, district high school basketball tournaments, district high school contests in music and forensics, typewriting exhibits, some independent concerts and plays, student and faculty recitals, band and orchestral concerts, oratorios and other choral productions, light operas, student plays, club minstrels, political mass meetings, Boy Scout jamborees, Shrine ceremonials, banquets, Kirksville Senior High basketball games, summer motion picture shows, the annual Parents' Day program and the annual High School Senior Day. Upwards of three hundred dances and parties have been held in the Auditorium.
