President's Comments

EDITOR'S NOTE: President Charles J. McClain made the following remarks welcoming more than 2,200 parents to the NMSU campus on the 26th annual Parents' Day on Nov. 5.

Once again we meet in this great hall to welcome students and parents to the University on this very special day. We are gathered here to share with you the pride and appreciation we feel for the honor of participating in the education of your sons and daughters.

Ours is an awesome responsibility. We are engaged in a great human struggle of cultivating and nurturing this nation's most valuable resource. We dare not accept such a challenge lightly.

During this pathetically brief interval we have with your sons and daughters, we share a dream for them:

We would have them learn the value of knowledge and the humane uses of it!

We would have them learn the importance of scholarship and its potential for improving the human condition.

We would have them learn about life through the process of education and, by the consent of scholars of all nations, realize that true scholarship is a tedious and laborious process.

We would have them learn that each of us must accept the consequences for the choices one makes.

We would have them learn that one's ultimate satisfaction comes through service to others and that all of these can only be obtained when one has come to selfhood—for only then can one focus attention on a higher purpose.

As your sons and daughters leave our companionship, we want them to be tough-minded, yet humane citizens who have the courage and the will to experience the problems and the pleasures of our time.

To the degree we fail is to recognize our humanness—to the degree we succeed is to recognize the limitless potential of man for improving the human condition so that life may be enriched for all!

Through learning, the latter is achieved and it is our mutual trust and faith in the process of education that allows us to share the dream.

We are honored by your faith in us. Thank you for coming!

Letters

Dear Mr. Harrison:

It is with regret that I decline attendance at the 50th anniversary of class '27 due to a previous commitment.

As I read the class names, so carefully compiled, I was saddened by the large number listed deceased. Many of them were good friends of mine in college days. Alpha Sigma Alpha was a bright spot from freshman year on.

Our dedicated faculty members had to be of highest quality for I found great respect from employers for my training. Those employers were in the fields of education, newspaper, retail research and army depot, overseas code books.

The English, journalism, art and psychology courses that I enjoyed as a student opened an avocation in free-lance writing, with sales to seven metropolitan newspapers. The larger ones being New York Herald-Tribune, Chicago Sun, Seattle Times, Des Moines Register and St. Louis Post-Dispatch, plus a daily column under a pseudonym.

Past vocational honors during my 46 years teaching here include: Service on Illinois State Education Publicity Committee, chairman of local Testing Program, reading consultant at county meeting, release (to Scott Foresman) of original plan for teaching phonetics and membership in Delta Kappa Gamma International, in which I served as a state chairman.

So, on this 50th anniversary, I send thanks to NMSU for the training and inspiration that made possible a thoroughly happy teaching career for me. Also, I pay tribute to those wonderful instructors whose lives I was privileged to encounter.

May God bless NMSU and its ever-growing student body.

P.S. In my Junior year, I worked on the Echo staff. Also on the Index.

Sincerely,

Mary H. Friday

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Thank you, your staff, the Administration and Board of Regents for the most successful homecoming. The whole thing was so dignified, yet down to earth and heart-warming. The Great Spirit and the wonderful work you are doing gives alumni a great feeling that all is well, yes even great, at NMSU.

Thanks again, and may God bless all of you.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor:

I am always very much interested in NEMOSCOPE, especially Alumni Notes. May I add a bit to your last reference to me. Also with me is my husband, Paul L. Jones, retired Macon County banker for 50 years.

In remembering our college days I'm thinking of one year when six of us girls roomed together on East Jefferson Street. We have kept in touch all these years by Round Robin and frequent reunions. We are: Ethel Newmyer-Alexander, (my sister), 112 Country Club, Trenton, Mo. 64683, Elizabeth Uhe-Fuller, St. Ann's Home, 3825 N.W. 19th St., Oklahoma City, Okla. 73115, Lillian Whaley-Duncan, Box 252, Browning, Mo. 64630, Lucy Reddish, Scotland Co. Nursing Home, Memphis, Mo. 63555, Helen Pfiffer-Cummings, 308 East Monument, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80902, and myself, Lena Newmyer-Jones, 804 Jackson, Macon, Mo. 63552.

In a recent Robin letter one of our members who was expressing her appreciation of these years said, "We had such good times at school. We didn't know any better than to like studying our lessons and loving our teachers".

I'll enclose a check for my annual dues, lest I forget. Thanks for NEMOSCOPE and especially Alumni Notes.

Sincerely,

Lena N. Jones

Dear Editor:

This is to notify you of the death of my husband, Buel F. Eneyart. He was graduated from Missouri State at Kirksville with an A.B. degree in 1923. He went on to receive his doctorate from the University of Southern California in 1940.

He was always proud that in his earlier years at Kirksville he had known John R. Kirk. For he started to Kirksville when it was a normal school probably about 1911. Being a boy who had to work for his education, accounts for the fact that he did not receive his A.B. degree until 1923.

Yours truly,

Dear Mr. Harrison,

The "Button" with my 1927 picture was delightfully received as was the Alumni banquet picture and I wish to say a BIG "Thank You" for all the lovely souvenirs so graciously showered on us. The food was excellent and the whole thing a delightful affair showing much thoughtful preparation for our pleasure.

The campus seemed like a completely strange and unfamiliar place but it is wonderful to see such progress and improvement—wish I were starting all over again!

Thank you again for all the nice things you and all who helped did to make the anniversary one to be long remembered.

Sincerely,

Virginia Armstrong

Dear Mr. Harrison,

It was a pleasure to meet you and see the progress made at the University.

I appreciate the many courtesies offered and the gifts presented to the members of our class. It is difficult to believe I graduated 50 years ago. How can we obtain a copy of the picture taken after the banquet?

My family joins me in expressing thanks for the many things that were done to make Homecoming such a memorable occasion.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Harrison,

Here is my check for a single year's membership in the Alumni Association.

Since I left K.S.T.C. in 1963 I've had stops in Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Sweden, and North Carolina. I'm now the Production Control Manager for KMW-Johnson, Inc. here in Charlotte. We are one of the world's leaders in Paper Machinery Manufacturing.

Russ, I'm sure you don't remember me but I remember you. We were in school together in '55 prior to my hitch in the Navy. When I returned in the Spring of '60, you recognized me while I was standing in line to register.

I have not been back on campus since '65. I'm sure many changes have taken place.

Please say "Hi" for me to any of the Business personnel who may still be there from my time.

I enjoyed the NEMOSCOPE very much. Keep up the good work.

Regards,

Dear Editor:

General John J. Pershing must have turned over in his grave, if he saw the article about his "Joy in Education." To think that a university student would call cavalry, cavalry!

It reflects not only on the student and the instructor, but also on the Northeast Missouri State University.

Sorry,

Dear Editor:

I received the alumni magazine this morning. I enjoyed reading it, renewing my knowledge of the whereabouts of my colleagues.

At various times I have received publications from NMSU. Please continue to send them. The address below is correct. My last assignment of teaching in the Business Education Dept. was represented with 17 years of teaching in Hannibal High School, retiring in the spring of 1973. However, I have continued by sub-teaching in the High School and the Vocational Area School, including the current school year.

Yours truly,

Dear Editor:

I enjoyed receiving and reading the Fall issue of the NEMOSCOPE. It was particularly pleasant to see the pictures of the Kirk field and the first football team. I had been with mother this summer when she was trying to locate them in the Archives. I enjoy reading Alumni Notes and so far have always found an item about a friend or classmate.

Keep up the quality of the alumni publication. I enjoy it so much.

Mr. Mason's name is synonymous with the SEMO State University Golden Eagles Marching Band and his 20 years of dedication to that group brought national prominence to the university and to the city. He devoted more than 42 years to music education in Missouri and came to SEMO in 1957 from Jackson where he had served as director of music for the public schools. Shortly after joining the university faculty, he originated the now well-known concept of the "marching marquee." During Mr. Mason's tenure with the Golden Eagles, it claimed more national television time than any other band in the country from 1957 to 1975. Beginning in 1957 with a 37-member band, Mr. Mason built the group, constantly honing it to perfection, to about 170, and the Golden Eagles in their blue and gold uniforms became one of the country's premier marching bands. The band appeared during televised professional football games 23 times, including 16 performances for the St. Louis Cardinals and a performance at the 1971 Super Bowl Game in Miami, Fla. Although best known for his work with the Golden Eagles, Mr. Mason also took an active interest in promoting the development of area high school bands and was responsible for the summer music camps at the university. He was accorded numerous honors, including an award in 1976 at the Southeast Missouri District Teachers Association as one of five persons recognized for meritorious service to education. Mr. Mason was a member of the Centenary United Methodist Church and the Cape Girardeau Rotary Club. Surviving are his wife, Lois Schutte Mason of 106 Sunset, Cape Girardeau; a son, Bardon Mason, also of Cape Girardeau and three grandchildren. Funeral services were held in Cape Girardeau, with burial in Memorial Park there.

Rotary Scholar to study in Spain

Jeff Burns

After he is graduated in May 1978 from Northeast Missouri State University, Jeff Burns will continue his studies—in Spain.

He will attend the University of Madrid on a Rotary Foundation Graduate Fellowship for an academic year of study.

On the Rotary Fellowship, he will serve as a goodwill ambassador for his country and for the service organization Rotary International. To win the fellowship, Jeff was sponsored by the Florissant Rotary Club. In turn, the scholarship committee of the Rotary Foundation made the final choice from several candidates.

"I think NMSU has given me lots of opportunities to develop the leadership abilities taken into consideration by the scholarship committee," he says.

Some of the positions he has held at NMSU include Student Activities Board president and vice president, Student Senate vice president, KNEU campus radio advisory committee chairman, Sport Parachute Club vice president, and Industrial Arts Club coupon book project chairman.

Besides his extracurricular activities, Jeff has academic credentials, too. He had a President's Honorary Scholarship all four years at NMSU. To keep his scholarship, he was required to maintain a 3.75 grade point average on a 4.00 scale. During his college career, he stayed on the Summa Roll that lists all undergraduates with a 3.90 or above grade point average.

To be eligible for the graduate fellowship, Jeff must have completed his undergraduate degree before he goes to Spain in fall 1978. He says he hopes to finish all requirements for a Bachelor of Science in Education with emphasis in woodworking and mechanical drawing.

As part of the requirements for his degree, he is a student teacher at McClure North High School in Florissant, his hometown. He is the son of Mrs. Mildred Burns of Florissant.

An extra requirement he has imposed on himself is an internship in state government during spring 1978 although he could be graduated earlier.

How does he combine his interests of education, woodworking, mechanical drawing, and government? "I like to work with my hands but I also like to work with my head," Jeff answers.

From study at the University of Madrid, he plans to become more fluent in Spanish, he says. He selected Spain as the country where he would study because of previous background in the language in high school and college. He actually will take classes in history and psychology in Spain, not only language studies.

Jeff says he is lucky because the Rotary Club of Madrid just reopened after 40 years because of the trend toward democracy in Spain. A club must be present in the country where a Rotary Scholar studies.

Another recipient of a Rotary Scholarship is Ray Klingensmith, dean of administration and general counsel at NMSU.

In 1961 Klingensmith attended the University of Cape Town in the Republic of South Africa. While he was there, he traveled 15,000 miles speaking to 35 Rotary Clubs in southern Africa.

The fellowship had a "major impact" on his life, he says. The graduate studies he pursued at the University of Cape Town gave him the encouragement and self-confidence he needed to continue his education. He went on to earn his law degree.

While Jeff's future plans have not been finalized, he says his fellowship will "open doors" for him as an educator, attorney or whatever he decides to be.

Some other NMSU students who have been Rotary Foundation recipients are Mary Ann Templeton (B.S.E. 1977) of O'Fallon, now in Costa Rica; Walter Ryle IV (B.S.E., B.A. 1954; M.A. 1956), associate professor of history at NMSU, at Oxford University in England in 1956-57; Francis Sporer (B.S.E. 1961) of Fulton, at Glasgow School of Art in Scotland in 1962; and David Earl Norton (B.S.E. 1965) of Macon, to tour India in January 1978.

Salary Improvement Requested by Thomas R. Shrout Jr.

NMSU will be seeking $11,183,681 in general revenue funds from the governor and state Legislature to operate the University for the 1978-79 fiscal year. The amount represents a 14.5 percent increase over the 1977-78 appropriation.

The Coordinating Board for Higher Education acted on the appropriations requests from the state's public colleges and universities in October, recommending $10,837,463 for NMSU. This is the highest recommended percentage increase NMSU has received from the Coordinating Board since the Board came into existence in 1974.

The CBHE voted the increase after NMSU President Charles J. McClain testified that the University built its budget request based on resources needed for students to achieve specific education objectives.

"Our general revenue request would provide us with the resources necessary to meet our goals and objectives," President McClain said.

Although the CBHE did not recommend all of NMSU's request, it did recommend 97 percent of it which was a greater percentage than any other state university.

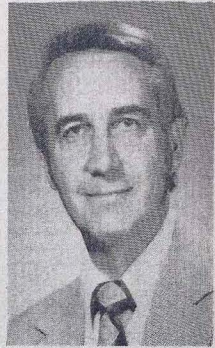

"We are pleased with the Coordinating Board's action," President McClain said. "The staff and board have worked hard to develop recommendations which take into account institutional differences and needs."

The recommendation made by the CBHE is considered critical in the appropriations process since the proposed state budget developed by the governor for higher education usually is based on the CBHE recommendation. Last year the governor's figures, except for Lincoln and Northeast, were adopted by the legislature. Lincoln's and Northeast's figures were raised in the legislative process only to have Governor Teasdale veto the amounts back to his recommendation. If appropriated, much of the proposed increase for NMSU would go to improve salaries and to meet inflationary costs.

In the area of capital improvements, the Coordinating Board has recommended one major project for NMSU, $750,000 for Phase I remodeling of the Pershing Building. The project has been recommended by the CBHE for the past two years, but has not been adopted by the governor and the Legislature.

The Coordinating Board recommendations now go to Governor Teasdale who usually announces his figures in early January in a budget message to the General Assembly.

Emeritus faculty pursues interests

by Cathy Dvorak

"Where are they now?" and "What are they doing?" . . .

These are questions many former students and colleagues ask about the Emeritus Faculty at Northeast Missouri State University.

The NEMOSCOPE staff tried to catch up with members of the Emeritus Faculty to give a report. Some answered, some were away, and a few were too ill to respond.

Here's the story on the current activities of the Emeritus Faculty:

Walter H. Ryle

Continued professional responsibilities, travel, reading, sports, and hobbies fill the time of Emeriti.

President Emeritus Walter H. Ryle retains an office on campus at 200 Kirk Memorial. He continues with a mission given him when he was an undergraduate pursuing his B.S.E. in History in 1913-16 at NMSU.

E.M. Violette, professor of history, told him "It's time for someone to begin collecting material" about the history of NMSU. Known for his book on the history of Adair County, Violette himself had begun to write a preliminary history of the Normal School.

Beginning in the fall of 1914, Dr. Ryle began filling away material which he used to publish the "Centennial History of the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College" in 1972.

Since his retirement in 1967, Dr. Ryle has been working on several other histories including the background of the Ryle family in England and America, the Terrill family and the Stark family.

He also says he hopes to record historical observations in a book called "Stories of Yesteryears." Rather than a straight history, the book will describe events seen through the eyes of people at the time. Some events to be included are the 1924 Democratic Convention in New York City, the first convention of the American Legion in Paris, and the second inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

And, of course, the history of the second century of NMSU now is being collected by Dr. Ryle.

Eli Mittler

Since his retirement in 1975, Dr. Eli Mittler has become a "cattle baron," he says. He is president emeritus and professor emeritus of education.

On his little farm just outside the city limits of Warrenton, he has three steers.

Dr. Mittler has remained interested in his professional organizations. He is president of the Daniel Boone Area Retired Teachers Association of Missouri.

In people-oriented activities, he has been instrumental in "organizing and building a sheltered workshop" for handicapped persons in the Warrenton area. He also serves on the board of governors of Area II Health Services Agency beginning a three-year term.

Another project of his is to write the history of his family. Since most of his family came from Germany, he has been reading about the history of Germany. "Maybe 'Roots' caused me to do that," he says.

He and his wife, Charlotte, also do some traveling. They reside in Warrenton.

Charlotte Mittler

My husband calls me a "roadrunner," Charlotte Mittler says. She retired in 1974 as assistant professor emerita of social science.

She always is on-the-go, and enjoys visiting shopping centers in St. Louis and Columbia so she spends a good deal of time on Interstate 70.

Mrs. Mittler and her husband, Eli, have made trips outside of Missouri as well. They recently have visited the northeastern states and Canada.

She reads bestsellers, historical novels and fiction as another pastime.

One hobby is knitting. "I am currently on a binge of stocking caps," she says. She also makes sweaters, coats, afghans and scarves.

"We both are certainly enjoying our retirement to the hilt."

Paul Selby

Dr. Paul O. Selby keeps an office on campus at 201 Kirk Memorial, next door to Dr. Ryle's office.

Dr. Selby, who retired in 1960, also does research work in history and biography. He is dean emeritus of instruction and professor emeritus of business education.

One of his more recent publications is "Biographies of the Regents of the Northeast Missouri State University 1870-1973" released in 1973.

In his biographical work, Dr. Selby has shown quite an interest in Mark Twain. A short article of his on Mark Twain's grave was published in the summer 1977 edition of Mark Twain Journal. The original six-page manuscript has been added to the Mark Twainiana collection of Yale University.

Other publications he is researching include a chronology of the life of Mark Twain and a book connecting Mark Twain with northeast Missouri.

Henry M. Boucher

Henry M. Boucher, dean emeritus of students, also stays involved with NMSU. He and his wife, Madeline, participate in University activities. Among his affiliations, he belongs to the Alumni Association.

He continues to be concerned with people in northeast Missouri as well. Boucher is vice chairman of the Governor's Advisory Council on Aging; treasurer of Northeast Missouri Area Agency on Aging; and part-time coordinator with the Department of Social Services for the State of Missouri.

As a coordinator, he says, "I work particularly in the areas of nursing homes, nutrition sites, and transportation for the elderly."

Another project is his 160-acre farm located five miles southwest of Kirksville. He oversees its livestock and grain operation.

Retiring in 1972, he makes time for his hobbies including golf and travel.

Walter H. Ryle

Eli Mittler

Humberto Alvarez

Recently retiring in spring 1977, Dr. Humberto Alvarez continues with work "born at the University." He is professor emeritus of Spanish.

He is completing a program for elementary and intermediate Spanish students called "Experimental Spanish Block Course with Tutors."

Another part of his research deals with individualized and independent work studies for students of Spanish.

Dr. Alvarez also has expressed an interest in the founding of a Spanish Resource Center in the Language and Literature Division at NMSU.

His programs and research might be used as a base for such a center, Dr. Alvarez says. In addition, he plans to donate part of his personal library to the University.

He and his wife, Gilda, continue to travel to South America regularly. They reside in Kirksville.

Otho Barnett

Otho Barnett keeps busy as a sports fan and bridge player. He is head emeritus of the Practical Arts Division and associate professor emeritus of practical arts.

Since his retirement in 1968, he and his wife, Martha, have lived in Kirksville and continue to be active in events at NMSU.

Otho Barnett

Ruth Beal

Ruth Beal

Another Kirksville resident is Ruth Beal, dean emerita of women and instructor emerita of English. She retired in 1972.

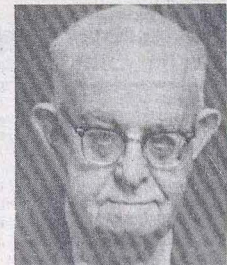

Among her activities are women's clubs and organizations such as PEO. She also does church work. Her hobbies include reading, handiwork, and growing flowers such as lovely chrysanthemums.

"I enjoy my former students coming to see me and notes from them," she says. "I particularly enjoy seeing some of their achievements."

She also travels. Some of her visits have taken her to Florida, San Diego, and points in the eastern and western United States. Places abroad where she has been include Germany, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Russia, Poland, Mexico, and Canada.

Retiring in 1958, Berenice Beggs of Moberly is assistant professor emeritus of English. She recently furnished The Moberly Monitor-Index with a copy of the January-February 1927 issue of the Missouri Business and Professional Woman, a publication of the Missouri Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. The issue has special significance because Moberly Junior College is presently celebrating its 50th year. The magazine contains articles on the opening of the college. It was edited by her sister, the late Beulah E. Beggs.

John Black

Dr. John D. Black, professor emeritus of zoology, says he is enjoying his retirement since it began in 1973. "I travel a lot in the summertime, I read, and I enjoy good music so I'm very content," he says. He also continues with his professional interests. He recently wrote the lead article of the special edition of Osteopathic Annals on education of the osteopathic physician. The title was "Education of the Pre-Osteopathic Student," published in June. He lives in Kirksville.

Walter Browne

As a geographer, Dr. Walter A. Browne, professor emeritus of geography, continues his professional interest through travel. He retired in 1965. He is known to students and colleagues for his college text used nationally called "The American Development" on the geography of America. In line with his book and other publications, he has visited 44 states and has lived in about a third of those. He has actually established residence in nine of those states. He and his wife, Nellie, still reside in Kirksville. Dr. Browne says they continue to receive some requests for six filmstrips made of various parts of Missouri. He wrote a manual for use with the filmstrips.

Kathleen Cherbonnier

Kathleen Shields Cherbonnier has the distinction of being the first full-time teacher of special education at NMSU. Upon her retirement in 1969, she was named assistant professor emeritus of special education. At the spring 1976 conference of the Missouri State Teachers Association, she was honored as past president of the Missouri Federation Council for Exceptional Children. She also was the first teacher of elementary and secondary special education in Jackson, Miss., where she taught from 1948-53.

Sherod Collins

Sherod J. Collins, assistant professor emeritus of speech, also lives in Kirksville with his wife, Hazel.

In 1969, the year he retired, he published a book called "Breaking New Grounds," an autobiography.

A highlight of the autobiography is when he played Paul Allen in the Broadway play, "Dark of the Moon." He participated in 225 performances presented in the United States and Canada while on leave from the University in 1945.

Currently, he is a member of the board of directors of the Bank of Kirksville. He also belongs to the Kirksville Kiwanis Club of which he is a past president.

Berenice Dry

Language studies are the retirement interest of Berenice

S. Dry, assistant professor emeritus of English. She retired in 1976.

"I study French constantly," she says. "I do something every day in the reading of French." She has been to Quebec and plans to go abroad to practice the language.

Reading classic novels also occupies her time. "I like to read proven literature," she says.

She has retained her professional affiliations in retirement including Delta Kappa Gamma, international women's education sorority; Missouri State Teachers Association; and Missouri Association of Teachers of English.

"I miss my students an awful lot," she says, although she is enjoying retirement.

Elizabeth Frazier

Another recent retiree is Dr. Elizabeth Frazier, professor emeritus of reading. She retired last summer.

More than 100 persons attended her retirement dinner planned by former students.

During retirement, she says she plans to continue with her professional activities and connection with the University. She resides in Kirksville.

Hans Hagemann

Dr. Hans Hagemann, professor emeritus of German, retired in 1972 from the Language and Literature Division.

He continues with his professional activities.

He received his A.B. from Clark University; and A.M. and Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

G.H. Jamison

G.H. Jamison has made travel his profession since his retirement in 1956. He is professor emeritus of mathematics.

Since 1956, he has been director of travel at the University. He arranges trips for faculty, staff, and students to almost everywhere.

In fact, Jamison has been almost everywhere in the world himself. He has escorted tours to Chicago, New Orleans, Hawaii, Alaska and Europe. He has visited or has seen all but two countries in the world and "those weren't worth seeing," he says.

Chicago is the most interesting city in the world, he says. And Rome is the most historical.

Charles E. Kaulzarich

Dr. Charles E. Kaulzarich, head emeritus of the Business Division and professor emeritus of business education, is known for his sense of humor. And he's still laughing.

He does humorous after-dinner speaking in the Kirksville area as a hobby. "I feel that people take themselves too seriously," Dr. Kaulzarich says.

He often shares with people his philosophy of life in speeches and in other ways. "Get some enjoyment out of every day, don't let your face grow longer as the day grows older, don't go round looking like a professional lemon tester."

Since he retired in 1976, he and his wife, Laura, have been getting a lot of enjoyment out of each day, he says. One of their favorite pastimes is golf.

Dr. Kaulzarich is a "bogey shooter"; his wife also shoots in the low 40s in a nine-hole round of golf. "She beats me occasionally," he says.

Floreine Kibler

Floreine Kibler, assistant director emeritus of libraries and head reference librarian emeritus, keeps up with reading as her pastime in retirement. She retired June 30, 1977.

Another activity of hers is crocheting and needlework. She currently is making an afghan. "I haven't been able to do it for a long time so now I'm catching up," she says. Her house plants also occupy her time. She and her husband, Butch Long, reside in Kirksville.

Pauline Knobbs

Dr. Pauline Knobbs, professor emeritus of social science education, has co-edited a book on the bicentennial history of Adair County, served as a commissioner on the Kirksville Housing Board, and traveled on a 5,000 mile journey to the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

Dr. Knobbs has accomplished these and many more achievements since her retirement in 1974.

She also is active in the Ann Haynes Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and in PEO Sisterhood.

Currently, she is writing a genealogy of the Dingle family. Dingle is her maiden name.

David March

Another recent retiree is Dr. David March, professor emeritus of history. He and his wife, Lois, reside in Kirksville. Although he retired in summer 1977, he has continued the many projects that interest him.

Dr. March has written several articles for the Missouri Historical Review including "Admission of Missouri" for the sesquicentennial edition in July 1971.

Recently, he made a speech at the annual meeting of the State Historical Society of Missouri in Columbia that will be included in the April 1978 issue. The speech was entitled "Sobriquets of Missouri and Missourians."

He also is working to get the Adair County Courthouse on the National Register of Historic Places. He has been instrumental in putting the St. Mary's Church of Adair and the William Hall House at Lancaster on the register.

interest has been focused on the Adair County Historical Society which he helped to organize. He is a member of the board of that society.

Dr. March has kept his office in 300 Laughlin Building on campus.

Pete Nicoletti

Another person who is just as active in retirement as when working is Pete Nicoletti, director emeritus of business services and assistant professor emeritus of education. He retired in 1975.

He is chairman of the Northeast Missouri Area Agency on Aging, of the Northeast Missouri Council on Aging, and of the Kirksville Advisory Committee on Aging.

Other offices he holds include treasurer of the Macon Baptist Association and Kirksville Divisional Baptist Mission Board. He also is chairman of the Baptist Student Union Advisory Committee in Kirksville.

Professionally, he is a life member of Missouri State Teachers Association, a member of the Retired Teachers Association, and a member of Phi Delta Kappa education honorary.

Nicoletti also has an office on campus at 104 Baldwin Hall where he manages the Northeast Missouri Teachers Credit Union.

He and his wife, Margaret, live in Kirksville.

Dorothy Pearson

Cookbook collecting, raising quail for gourmet eating, and planning meals for the elderly are activities that fit Dorothy Sens Pearson, associate professor emeritus of home economics.

She uses her expertise as a nutritionist to help others and to further her own knowledge.

Helping others, she is chairman of the advisory board for the nutrition site of the Northeast Area Agency on Aging. She has worked with the committee for seven years giving advice on buying, planning and other arrangements for meals at Village 76 in Kirksville.

Mrs. Pearson and her husband, Wallace, raise quail as a gourmet treat. Even the eggs, which are quite plentiful, she says, can be pickled to become a delicacy that is quite tasty.

They have raised waterfowl and turkeys for eating in the past. Other animals they have cared for include pigeons, grand champion Himalyan cats, Manx cats and English bulldogs, some of which have been borrowed to ride in NMSU Homecoming parades.

She and her husband have done quite a bit of research about each of these animals. "We have built a library with everything we raise," Mrs. Pearson says.

Noah Richardson

Noah Richardson retired in 1974 as director emeritus of independent studies in the Extension Division.

He continues his professional activities through Phi Delta Kappa education honorary, Missouri State Teachers Association, and National Retired Teachers Association.

His other interests are historical. He belongs to the Missouri State Historical Society and Adair County Historical Society.

Richardson's reading material seems to reflect his historical interest. "I read biographical and political-governmental books," he says.

He and his wife, Dorothy, share a hobby of raising plants and landscaping at their home in Kirksville. "Our principal interest is roses—hybrid tea roses."

Helen Rieger

Although she is not an emeritus faculty member, Mrs.

Wray (Helen) Rieger holds an honored place in the University family. Mrs. Rieger is the curator of the E.M. Violette Museum located in Kirk Memorial.

Her husband, Wray, was dean emeritus of instruction. He died Sept. 13, 1975. Mrs. Rieger says she enjoys hearing from her husband's former students, although some of them are not aware of his passing. They still send occasional notes addressed to him.

She also was University archivist for many years so Mrs. Rieger was quite helpful in the preparation of this article.

Claudine Terry

Claudine Terry, assistant professor emeritus of music, is into music as much as ever. She retired in 1975, the same time her husband, Dr. Howard Terry, retired.

She directs the choir at the First Baptist Church of Kirksville. In addition, she has been coordinating a Kirksville community choir which will perform "The Messiah" during the Christmas season.

In retirement, she says, "I have more time to spend playing the piano than I did when I was teaching."

Her other musical interests are violin, organ, mandolin and English hand bells.

She is seeking to establish a hand-bell choir in her church. Her church recently acquired a set which consists of three octaves. Twelve people are necessary for such a choir with each person responsible for two bells.

Howard Terry

Dr. Howard Terry, professor emeritus of education, says he keeps busy "carrying things around for her" meaning his wife, Claudine.

His hobbies include photography and carpentry. He takes pictures of his and Claudine's travels.

Dr. Terry also has a workshop in his basement where he makes furniture and toys for children.

"I am turning some projects for Christmas presents," he says.

This past summer, Dr. Terry helped to build a pole barn at the Northeast Missouri Fairgrounds. The Kirksville Rotary Club sponsored the construction of the 60-by-120-foot barn.

R.L. Terry

Dr. R.L. Terry, professor emeritus of education, retired in 1973. He served as state coordinator for Phi Delta Kappa education honorary showing his dedication to education.

His favorite hobby is wood-working. "I don't make anything very big. Just novelties and trinkets."

He and his wife, Betty, travel also as an activity.

Dr. Terry likes to read biographies, histories and who-dun-its. "I was a history major in undergraduate school so I really like history," he says.

In retirement, he says he has reflected on philosophy of education. His conclusion is this statement:

"If teaching is not enjoyable and is not reasonably enjoyable to the youngsters, then they're not going to learn anything."

Elizabeth Wilson

Elizabeth Wilson, assistant professor emeritus in home economics, retired in summer 1977.

She still is active in education recently serving as one of five educators from NMSU who made an on-site evaluation of Moberly Senior High School.

Her other affiliations include legislative chairman of the Kirksville Business and Professional Women's Club and member of Sojourners Club and Kirksville Garden Club.

Miss Wilson is known for establishing the child development program and laboratory at NMSU. She occasionally fills in as a volunteer in University classes.

J.C. Wright

Dr. J.C. Wright, professor emeritus of education, and his wife, Elizabeth, spend their winters in the south. He retired in 1972.

They visit such places as Oklahoma, Arizona and the West Coast, he says.

"My major activity other than the little travels that we've done is reading," he says.

His favorite reading materials are detective and mystery stories.

He also continues with his professional organizations such as Phi Delta Kappa educational honorary. He belongs to the Walt Whitman Club, a group of leading and former educators in Iowa.

Other members of the Emeritus Faculty on whom no current information was available include Cecil H. Allen, professor emeritus; Clifton R. Bell, professor emeritus; Forest L. Crooks, assistant professor emeritus and director emeritus of audio-visual education; Earl C. Cunningham, professor emeritus; John C. Goetze, assistant professor emeritus; Geraldine Gosch, assistant professor emeritus; Charles E. Gross, professor emeritus; Earl Ludlow, dean emeritus of instruction and professor emeritus; Clarence L. Murphy, associate professor emeritus; J.R. Purdy, professor emeritus; Nan E. Wade, professor emeritus; Gardner B. Walker, professor emeritus; Frances Walsh, assistant professor emeritus; Willie Whitson, assistant professor emeritus; and Elizabeth Worrrell, professor emeritus.

University assists Kirksville Energy Awareness Program

by Jeannette Lovren

Jan. 12, 1918—The low in Kirksville today is 22 below zero.

July 15, 1967—Today's high was 113, tying the record set on this date in 1930.

April 10, 1973—Classes at NMSU will be cancelled because of yesterday's blizzard. Eight to ten inches of snow has fallen in Kirksville and drifts of up to four feet have been reported.

Alumni who haven't visited Kirksville recently may have forgotten how extreme the weather in northeast Missouri can be, but members of the Missouri Energy Program of the Natural Resources Department haven't.

Citing the extreme weather as one of the reasons, the Missouri Energy Program has chosen Kirksville to be an energy demonstration city. A $30,625 grant from the Ozark Regional Committee is funding the project known as the Kirksville Energy Awareness Program (KEAP).

The program stresses energy conservation in Kirksville. When completed, the project will provide guidelines for other cities to follow in establishing energy conservation programs of their own, said Dr. Dean Rosebery (B.S.E. 1941), head of the NMSU Science Division and chairman of the project staff for the program.

The idea for KEAP was conceived when Dr. Rosebery contacted the Missouri Energy Program about having an energy education project in the Kirksville schools. The Missouri Energy Program expanded on his proposal and suggested a complete energy awareness program for the entire Kirksville community. In May of this year, the program was officially started with the grant from the Ozark Regional Committee and a proclamation from Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

KEAP, which is believed to be the first program of this kind in the nation, is organized into three main groups: Project Staff, Steering Committee, and Task Forces.

The Project Staff is composed of people who have expertise in an area necessary to the planning of the program, Dr. Rosebery said. Assisting him in chairing the staff is Dr. Olin J. Drennan (A.B. 1949), professor of science at NMSU. Drennan's background in physics and engineering along with his serious concern for general adult education has proven useful in this project, Dr. Rosebery said.

The community involvement is the real focus of this project, Dr. Rosebery said. The project staff is working on the initial planning, but the implementation of the ideas is done by the Steering Committee and the Task Forces, he said.

The Steering Committee is headed by Mac Lutz, plant manager of Donaldson Co., Inc. Vice-chairperson is Barbara Madsen, president of the Sojourner's Club.

Initial members of the Steering Committee and Task Forces were chosen at a Kirksville Town Meeting on July 12. Other members of the community have joined task forces since then. "Several people have called up and asked what they could do," Lutz said. "That is one of the most gratifying parts of the program."

The Task Forces are for individual study of a particular kind of energy use. The 10 Task Forces include: Private Buildings and Institutions, Schools and Universities, Government, Utilities, Public Service, Communication and Evaluation, Single- and Double-Family Dwellings, Multi-Family and Rural Housing, Large Commercial - Industrial, and Retail Stores.

A member of the Steering Committee chairs each Task Force so that direct feedback is possible. A member of the Project Staff also attends each Task Force meeting to aid in clear communication, Rosebery said.

The first major part of the program was implemented in August 1977 when that month was declared "Electrical Energy Conservation Month" by the mayor of Kirksville. KEAP used August to kick off its communitywide drive to conserve energy. Significant results were seen that month through increased energy consciousness and more efficient lighting use, Lutz said.

The major industries reported that they saved enough kilowatt-hours on lighting alone to supply 50 Kirksville residences for one month. Lutz said that the industries managed to save that much by eliminating large lamps in low-usage areas, low-traffic areas, and areas blocked by storage stacks. They also replaced existing lights with lower wattage bulbs in areas where not as much light was needed. "We made better use of our air conditioning, maintained better control in turning off unused equipment, and for 12 days we monitored our electric meter hourly," Lutz said.

Two rural families also reported substantial savings during August while acting as models for the Rural Task Force. The Jerry Findling family used 38 percent fewer kilowatt-hours and the Bob Horn family used 20 percent fewer than in August of the two previous years.

Mrs. Findling, who has five children, said that the entire family participated in seeing if they could conserve. They used the air conditioner as little as possible, turned the water heater to low, watched television less and turned it off when no one was watching it, and spent more time outside.

Both families tried to keep refrigerator doors closed unless absolutely necessary. This was a "novelty" for the children, but they managed," Mrs. Findling said.

Mrs. Andrea Horn said that their family's large self-defrosting refrigerator-freezer was found to be a major user of electricity, and special awareness of its use helped them save during August.

Lutz said that his refrigerator and freezer were the only two things left connected when he went on vacation for two weeks. "We turned off everything, unplugged the clocks, everything. When we got home and checked the meter we were shocked to find out how much energy the freezer and refrigerator used," Lutz said.

Since August, a number of things have been implemented by KEAP including an energy hotline, public service announcements on the local radio stations, energy seminars in the schools and at civic organizations, and distribution of materials on energy conservation in the community.

Pamphlets on insulation, energy-saving lighting, thermostat usage, furnaces and water heaters, solar energy, fossil energy, as well as general information on how energy is produced and how it can be used most efficiently have been distributed to Kirksville residents. The materials were distributed at the Northeast Missouri Fair in August, District Teachers' Meeting in October, and industrial plants in the area.

Cub Scouts in Kirksville have distributed door-to-door home energy savers' quizzes and information on how to read electrical meters. "Through the Scouts and the kids learning about energy conservation in the schools, we hope to get the parents involved," Dr. Rosebery said.

Results of the KEAP efforts have been seen in varied ways, Dr. Rosebery said. The director at the Adair County Nursing Home began re-thinking his energy needs and is having the wall of the home repainted with lighter colored paint which reflects light well. Thus, the necessary amount of light is being produced using less energy, Rosebery said.

The members of the KEAP program have become very conscious of the energy they use, and are trying to implement conservation in their private homes as well as at their jobs, Rosebery said. Two members of the project staff have recently built new homes in Kirksville and each reports that he used his new energy awareness in planning his home. Heat pumps, underground rooms, thermal-pane windows, the correct amount of insulation, and well-planned lighting were some of the things they used in their homes to conserve energy.

"Our program is set up so that we can have all winners and no losers. If we save a great deal of energy or if we just save a little, we're still improving. There's no way to fail with this project," Lutz said.

Rosebery said he feels the program's success will be measured by demonstrated conservation by large users of energy and increased awareness and participation of the public in community conservation efforts. "When the project is completed in March, I hope a permanent conservation commission will be established in Kirksville.

"We urged Kirksville residents to turn up their air conditioners this summer and are encouraging them to turn down their furnaces this winter," Rosebery said.

So if you're coming to Kirksville for the holidays, bring a sweater.

The Kirksville ENERGY AWARENESS Program (KEAP)

And NMSU does its part, too

NMSU is working to conserve energy along with the members of KEAP through its own advisory committee, a new electrical monitoring system, and a proposed area of concentration in energy.

Dr. Charles McClain appointed the Energy Conservation Advisory Committee (ECAC) with Howard Morris, head of the Maintenance Department, as the chairman. President McClain charged the committee with establishing an energy-saving goal and developing a plan to achieve that goal. Student, faculty, and staff members serving on the committee will be discussing all aspects of the conservation program from the mechanics of monitoring fuel, electricity, and water usage to possible incentives for reducing consumption of those resources, Morris said.

To help monitor and to control energy use at NMSU, a central monitoring computer will be set up sometime next year. The system, which costs $185,000, will be purchased with money coming from the 1976-77 Capital Improvements Bill.

With the present equipment, only the total energy input of the campus can be measured. The new computer would enable engineers to determine electrical input for individual buildings and would allow them to shut down energy flow to any building or part of a building that isn't in use.

A third project concerning energy at NMSU is the proposed area of concentration. The proposal to make energy an area of concentration has been submitted to the approval process. The concentration will require 15 hours including a core of five required courses and a number of electives from such areas as business, home economics, science, social science, physical education, practical arts, and language and literature, Dr. Earl McMurray, assistant professor of science, said.

Because energy problems affect every discipline, this concentration could be taken with any major. We want students to get a feeling about energy problems because of the way it is going to affect all of us in the future, Dr. McMurray said.

Mills Returns To Scene Of Football Glory

by Bill Cable

Mittler elected MSTA president

One day last fall, Dale "Paley" Mills returned to the scene of many of his football achievements.

Just before the NMSU Bulldogs met Central Missouri State the afternoon of Nov. 5 at Stokes Stadium, the former running back from Columbia's Hickman High School participated in special ceremonies. The University officially retired old jersey number 31 he wore two decades ago on the gridiron.

It wasn't difficult to understand why it was done. One only needed to read the impressive list of records the two-time All-American established between 1957-60.

By the time he played his final collegiate game against Bradley University, Mills owned 10 NCAA College Division marks, many of which stood until recent campaigns. His name is still in the NMSU record book for 12 standards and he also holds several Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association marks.

Going into the 1977 season, Mills ranked fifth among NCAA Division II and III all-time rushers and ninth among all-time ground-gainers for all NCAA divisions. That accomplishment put him in some pretty fast company that included Tony Dorsett (University of Pittsburgh), Archie Griffin (Ohio State) and Ed Marinaro (Cornell).

Until Jim VanWagner of Michigan Tech matched the feat in 1974 and 1975, Mills was the only Division II and III ball carrier to earn two national rushing crowns. He finished first in the ground-gaining derby in 1958 and 1959.

The 5-10, 175-pounder rolled up 4,502 yards on the ground, registered 407 points on the scoreboard and scored 64 touchdowns by land and through the air via the pass during his career.

Maurice "Rid" Wade, his coach at NMSU, once remarked the secret to Mills' success was "amazing balance as a runner and durability." Except for one game as a senior, when he was sidelined for a few minutes with a chipped front tooth, he was never injured in college.

How did Mills pick up his nickname, "Paley?" His brother, Billy, hung it on him. When he was eight years old, "Paley" was accidentally struck in the head by a clay pigeon at a trapshooting range. Observing his unconscious brother on the ground, Billy called him "pale face," and the name was eventually shortened to "Paley."

Ironically, "Paley" got his opportunity to start collegiately as a freshman when Billy sustained a dislocated elbow.

While performing for the Purple and White, Mills was always the first to say most of the credit for his success should go to the guys in the "trenches", the offensive linemen who opened the holes for him to slip through so rapidly.

He is not jealous about the records he still owns. After all, they aren't monuments to him, Mills points out. "Records are meant to be broken," he adds.

Mills married Sheryl Mogg, whom he met at NMSU, and they are the parents of five children. He now teaches in the Hamilton elementary and junior high school.

NCAA records Mills once held:

1. Three-year rushing record, 4,086.
2. Four-year rushing record, 4,502 (Also a school record).
3. One-year carry record, 248.
4. Two-year carry record, 477.
5. Three-year carry record, 663.
6. Four-year carry record, 751.
7. Three-year point total record, 364.
8. Four-year point total record, 407 (Also a school record).
9. Three-year touchdown record, 57.

10. One-game carry record, 38.

At one time, Mills was also co-holder of the four-year touchdown record of 64, which is also a school record.

Other school records:

1. Most yards rushing in one game, 306.
2. Most points scored in one game, 34.
3. Most touchdowns scored in one game, 5.
4. Most touchdowns rushing in one game, 5.

5. Most yards rushing in one season, 1,385.
6. Most points scored in one season, 124.
7. Most touchdowns scored in one season, 20.
8. Most touchdowns rushing in one season, 20.
9. Most touchdowns scored in a career, 64.
10. Most touchdowns rushing in a career, 61.

FOOTBALL STAR-- Dale "Paley" Mills, former star running back at Northeast Missouri State had his uniform number "31" officially retired at ceremonies prior to the Nov. 5 game with Central Missouri State. Presenting the jersey to President Charles J. McClain, far right, is NMSU Athletic Director Kenneth Gardner. With Mills are his wife, Sheryl, and two of their children, Lance and Tricia Beth.

Dr. Mittler has been a physics instructor in the St. Charles Public School system for 15 years. For the past five years he has served as science department chairman.

After he was graduated from NMSU, he went on to get his Ph.D. from St. Louis University.

He is the son of President Emeritus Eli and Mrs. Mittler of Warrenton.

Basketball Bulldogs Spend A Week South Of The Border

Even the most enthusiastic basketball buff doesn't have his mind on the hardwood sport in the summer time, at least, not as much as the NMSU team this past August. The Bulldogs were not only thinking basketball, they were playing it.

Between Aug. 23-31, a 13-man squad, plus Coach Willard Sims, other staff members and an interpreter, spent a week on a goodwill tour of El Salvador where they met the 1976 Olympic squad from the Central American country four times. The Bulldogs also conducted basketball clinics and went on sightseeing tours when they were not performing on court. NMSU officials indicated the trip was believed to be the first one outside the U.S. for a Bulldog quintet. Tour expenses were underwritten by the El Salvador government.

Incidentally, the Sims men won three of their four encounters with the Olympic squad. The coach summed up the feeling of his group about the trip with this statement: "It was a great experience. They play a very physical brand of basketball, and it took us a game to adjust to it. The trip should be a good recruiting tool, but above all, great public relations for our University."

Alumnus publishes 16 weeklies

by Jeannette Lovern

Keith Dinsmore (B.A. 1973) publishes 16 weekly newspapers in southern Iowa and northern Missouri.

"When's this article going to appear?" the 33-year-old small-town press baron asked prior to the publication date of this issue of the NEMOSCOPE. "You see, there's always something going on—that number could change."

Anticipating change has become second nature with Dinsmore who has seen many of his plans modified. Those changes haven't hurt him though.

When Dinsmore first came to NMSU in 1961, he planned to major in English Education. Midway through his college career, he decided he didn't want to teach, so he began seeking a B.A. in English instead of a B.S.E.

This change postponed his planned graduation date from spring of 1965 to the summer of 1965. That spring, however, he was offered a one-year job with Sigma Tau Gamma, the fraternity he had pledged as a freshman. He decided to take the job, planning to finish his degree the following summer.

Again in 1966, his plans were changed. He was promoted to executive director of Sigma Tau Gamma National Fraternity, a position he held for seven years. During those years, his plans to finish college had gone unfulfilled. But, he did not feel unsuccessful.

"The eight years I spent with Sig Tau was a tremendous experience," Dinsmore says. As executive director, he was in charge of administrative management and public relations, and served as editor of the publications distributed by the organization.

In 1973 Dinsmore and his wife, Sandy, purchased the Fremont Gazette, his hometown paper, and the Hedrick Journal. Both were small-town weeklies located in southern Iowa. "They were offered as a package deal and we were interested in publishing a newspaper, so we bought them," Dinsmore says.

With some spare time that summer, he completed the two courses he needed and earned his B.A. in August of 1973.

With his college degree finally completed, he settled into putting out his newly acquired newspapers. But as in his previous years, life had some unexpected changes for him.

"While researching weeklies, I discovered that many small-town papers were going to die if they didn't convert to offset and share production," he says. Feeling that some small towns would lose their identity without a newspaper, Dinsmore didn't want to see that happen. So, when some of the area publishers approached him about buying their papers, he did.

"We just happened to get into the business at a time when several small-town printers were wanting to retire. Some of them had been wanting to retire for quite some time but hated to see their papers die. We met a need," he says.

During the four years that have followed, Dinsmore has purchased small-town weeklies all over southern Iowa and northern Missouri and is currently publishing 16 newspapers in all. Each newspaper has its own staff with a local person in charge. Dinsmore writes regularly only for his hometown newspaper, the Fremont Gazette. "I don't do other newspapers because I feel you have to live in a community to capture the true spirit of the town in print," he says.

With more than 80 employees, Dinsmore thinks of himself as a personnel manager instead of a news manager. Hiring mostly college graduates, he does consider a person's ability to relate to the community the most important quality in an editor. An editor's ability to maintain rapport between a newspaper and the community is important also, he says. His policy on editorials is one of the things that helps maintain that rapport.

"We work behind the scenes to help our towns," Dinsmore says. Editorials do appear in the newspapers published by Dinsmore, but more often his editors identify the need or the problem and find the people who can best work on it. After enlisting those people, they give them a pat on the back for the work they've done through the print medium.

"We've found this to be more effective than writing editorials. Some people will not respond to editorials or will respond negatively just because the editor took it upon himself to say it," Dinsmore says.

This stand on editorials seems to be satisfactory with the readership if circulation figures are any indication. Since Dinsmore has taken over publication of the 16 papers, at least five have doubled in paid circulation and none have lost circulation. An example is the Hopkins (Mo.) Journal. When he purchased it in May of this year, it had a circulation of 1,000. By September, it had grown to 2,200.

With those circulation figures multiplied by his 16 newspapers, Dinsmore is able to offer package advertising to businesses in the large towns in the area where his readers go to shop. The total circulation for his papers is approximately 25,000 as compared with the Ottumwa Courier, a large daily newspaper in the area, which has a circulation of approximately 18,500.

The advertising from large-town businesses is necessary because "the fate of many small-town newspapers will be determined by whether the small towns are able to sustain business and advertising," he says.

Dinsmore says a small-town weekly serves as a bulletin board for community activities and gives the people another means by which to communicate with each other. "But a good paper does more than that. It affects the lives of the readers in a more immediate way. It plays a Chamber of Commerce role and there's a certain cheerleader aspect also."

The long-term effect is that it establishes the agenda for what's important in a town, he says.

Dinsmore puts in 50 to 60 hours per week publishing his newspapers, and he also serves as founder and president of Southern Iowa Press, a printing plant located in Fremont. The plant is located in an old garage but contains modern efficient equipment. His 16 papers and the newspapers of six other publishers are printed there.

Besides being editor, publisher, and president of a company, Dinsmore is a husband and father of a son, William. His wife is his business manager. "I thought it was hectic when we had just two papers. Now it's unbelievable," Sandy Dinsmore says.

Unbelievable might be the best word to describe both Dinsmore and the number of changes he has known in his 33 years.

PUBLISHER--Dinsmore looks over a front page layout that Kathy Harter Higgins, managing editor of the Eddyville Tribune, has just completed. The Eddyville Tribune is one of 14 newspapers that Dinsmore owns and publishes but does not edit. He appoints a staff of three to four persons in each town to edit the paper.

EDITOR--Dinsmore gathers information for his weekly hometown paper, the Fremont Gazette. He serves as editor of the Gazette and writes a weekly column for it. Besides the Gazette, he also edits the Hedrick Journal.

OWNER--Keith Dinsmore and his wife, Sandy, display some of the 16 newspapers they own. Keith serves as editor of some and publisher of all, while Sandy is business manager. Both Keith and Sandy have attended NMSU.

Slide collection donated to Fine Arts Division

NMSU received an unusual and useful gift this fall as a part of the settlement of the estate of a former student.

The Allied Arts area of the Division of Fine Arts at NMSU recently became the recipient of a collection of 818 35 mm slides from the estate of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Wright. Dr. Wright attended two years of pre-medical studies at NMSU in 1936-38 before going to the Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine.

The collection is chiefly comprised of European landmarks, works of art, interiors of noteworthy buildings, and sculpture. The Wrights were well-traveled and the slides represent their interest in the fine arts area. Dr. Leon Karel, professor of aesthetic education and humanities, said.

The slides will be used primarily for the non-major classes taught by the Division of Fine Arts to fulfill general education requirements of the University, he said.

The collection was compiled by Dr. and Mrs. Wright while on several trips to Europe. Slides of sights in England make up the greatest section of slides with a large number from France, Switzerland, Spain, Germany, and Italy. The Wrights' travels to these countries were mostly private vacation trips but on two occasions, Dr. Wright was invited to European International Conferences to describe research studies he was doing at KCOM on the autonomic nervous system and the cutaneous circulation, Charles Krueger, assistant to the President of KCOM and longtime friend of Dr. Wright, said.

"He was very interested in beauty and culture and enjoyed sharing those things with others," Krueger said.

At the time of his death in December 1974, Dr. Wright was Professor of Physiology, a member of the Executive Council of the KCOM Faculty, and Medical Editor of KCOM.

Mrs. Wright died in April of this year.
