Family Day Set For Saturday, Oct. 10

Hundreds of parents and other family members will come to campus this weekend for the University's 1998 Family Day, Oct. 10. Visitors will have a full day of activities from which to choose, including a Mainstage production by the Theatre Department, an "Americana" concert by the University Wind Symphony, and a retrospective exhibition, to name a few. Faculty, staff and their families are invited to attend all of the Family Day events.

Family Day officially begins with a reception on the Student Union Mall at 9:30 a.m. hosted by Truman's Parents Council. Following the reception, President Jack Magruder and Student Senate President Mike Daming will welcome the day's visitors at the Family Assembly in Baldwin Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. Franklin Street also will perform.

A tailgate lunch will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Red Barn Park. Tickets are $4 and must be purchased in advance in the Public Relations Office, McClain Hall 202. Students' lunches are free with the presentation of their meal cards. Redwing, a band of Truman physics professors, will provide musical entertainment.

The afternoon will get off to a busy start. Bulldog Football and Women's Soccer both kick off at 2 p.m. The men take on Washburn (Kansas) in Stokes Stadium, and the women challenge Rockhurst at the soccer field. Football tickets will be available all week at the ticket booth in Pershing Building. General admission tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. Reserved seating costs $7. Students, faculty and staff are admitted free to general admission seating with their University IDs.

The Women's Soccer Team also plays on Sunday, taking on the University of Missouri-Rolla at noon. The Men's Soccer Team will challenge St. Edwards at 3:30 p.m. on Friday and UMR on Sunday at 2 p.m. Admission to all of the weekend's soccer games is free.

Also at 2 p.m. is the Theatre Department's production of Brandon Thomas' period farce, Charley's Aunt in Baldwin Auditorium. The performance is set in the round with all seating on the stage, so seating is limited. Students wishing to accompany their families to the performance should make reservations at the box office, 12:30-5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Cost is $1. The performance will also be presented at 8 p.m., Friday.

Family Day guests are also invited to view the William E. Unger Retrospective Exhibition on display at the University Art Gallery. The Gallery will be open from noon to 4 p.m. on both Oct. 10 and 11. The Austrian-born painter's art records the heritage of Truman State University and provides a pictorial legacy for the University and the surrounding community.

The Red Barn Arts and Crafts Festival, sponsored by the Kirksville Arts Association, has become a Family Day tradition for many visitors. Kirksville's largest downtown festival will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Oct. 10 at the Kirksville Court House Square.

The "king of college campus entertainment," as proclaimed by CNN Headline News, will perform at 8 p.m. in Baldwin Auditorium. Craig Karges will entertain the entire family with his fantastic display of illusion and psychic happenings using total audience participation. Tickets for this SAB event will be sold for $2 throughout Family Day. The performance is free to students.

Other events on Saturday include a mass at 5:30 p.m. and chili supper, 6:30 p.m., at the Catholic Newman Center. Cost for the chili supper is $3 for adults; $2 for children.

On Sunday, Oct. 11, the University Wind Symphony will present an "Americana" concert at 3 p.m. in Baldwin Auditorium. The concert is free and open to the public. See related story, p. 3.

For more information about Family Day, contact the Public Relations Office, McClain Hall 202, 785.4016. Unless indicated, all events are free and open to the public.

Hausner Tells World War II Experiences Symphony

Karl Hausner has one mission – to raise awareness of the little-known plight of Eastern Europeans after World War II. As an Austrian, Hausner was inducted into the German Army at age 15.

Hausner will speak about his World War II and subsequent experiences as part of the Monday Nights in Ryle Series, 7:30 p.m., Oct. 12, in Ryle Hall main lounge. His program is part of an ongoing reassessment of Cold War Europe in light of recently released information from Soviet archives.

As a prisoner of war in the East, Hausner survived a slave labor camp and immediate postwar atrocities against German-speaking civilians in the Soviet zone. He was then expelled by force from his Austro-Hungarian homeland, the Sudetenland. In his writings, Hausner describes being “liberated” by Soviet troops and Czechoslovakian partisans after the Germans left his village in May 1945.

Soviet soldiers “arrived, removed all the horses from the barns and departed. Every male who was located had to go along. Of the five men who were forced to join, none ever came home again,” Hausner said. “During the next few days rape and robbing was committed by the Soviet troops whenever and wherever possible,” he said. Systematic torture and murder was the rule throughout, and within two months about 200,000 Sudeten-

German people, including many women, were brutally slain.

After enduring slave labor and spending his 16th birthday in a mining labor camp in 1945 and early 1946, Hausner was transported to Bavaria, which was under United States occupation and control. He later emigrated to the United States, but injuries related to his harsh experiences led to blindness. Nevertheless, he founded his own company, invented electronic diagnostic and surgical devices, and maintained a successful career. Hausner and his wife, Hermine, who also lost several family members at the hands of the Soviet occupiers, have built a chapel on the Hausner Farms in Wisconsin. The chapel is dedicated to the memory of expellees and victims of war.

A question-and-answer session will follow the presentation. For further information, call Chris Gregory at 785.5766.

Questions should be addressed to Susan Job, University Career Center, at 785.4353.
