President's Comments

Traditions provide continuity and a sense of identity for individuals and society as a whole as we face periods of confusion, stress, or change. These rituals are a source of comfort and stability; for a little while, at least, we know what will happen next, and we can plan what will follow.

Those of us at Northeast Missouri State University are proud of our traditions: Homecoming Weekend, the Lyceum Series, the Joseph Baldwin Lecture on Founder's Day, the graduation procession in academic regalia. We recognize and seek to maintain their important role in the redefinition and affirmation of self-purpose. As we launch a new academic year, it is my sincere hope that you will be able to return to your alma mater for at least one of these meaningful occasions. Your presence could constitute the beginning of a vital new phase in your life.

SUMMERTIME SUMMER YOUTH

by Thomas R. Shrout, Jr.

Summertime at NMSU sometimes resembles a junior or senior high school more than a university campus, and there is a good reason why. Each summer some 1,000 youngsters participate in the Band, Piano, Strings, Art, Science, Choral Music and Baton Twirling and Drum Major camps held on campus.

Most of those attracted were high school age but the range did include many junior high students and one seven-year old baton twirler.

The camps always have had an outstanding reputation in Northeast Missouri, Southern Iowa, and Western Illinois but this year the reputation reached throughout the midwest, drawing students from Ohio, Arkansas, Kansas, Illinois, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Tennessee.

The late Karl Webb, former head of the Division of Fine Arts, started the camps in 1953 when he opened the Band Camp. The first summer he had 21 students enrolled.

"We had three objectives in mind when we started the band camp," said President Emeritus Walter H. Ryle, III. "We wanted to serve the public schools of Missouri, Southern Iowa and Illinois in giving the band students special training and inspiration. We also saw the camps as an important means of training future teachers. Finally, we saw the camps as a way of recruiting future students."

Those same objectives still hold true today. Virtually the only changes which have been made are in the personnel and the name. Six years ago the camps, with the exception of the baton camp, became collectively known as the "1000 Hills Summer Youth Program." Now, Dr. Thomas Duden, NMSU Director of Bands, heads the program and each camp has at least one faculty member who provides the expert instruction.

Dr. Duden noted the degree of perfection the students are able to achieve. The instruction is so concentrated and the students are so interested, the camp is often the only place where many students have an opportunity to achieve at such high levels.

"The camps are a good measure for the kids. They find out how they stack up against students from other schools," Duden said.

In music, many of the students come from small schools where there are so few students that there is a lack of instrumentation to perform much of the literature that high school students should be mastering, Duden noted. At camp they have that instrumentation plus the quality of performers and concentration of work it takes to play much of the more difficult material.

The past year more than 800 students enrolled at the "1000 Hills Youth Camp" and another 400-plus in the Baton & Drum Major Camp. For a time Duden kept some informal figures about the recruiting factor that the camps have for the University. "From the time the camps first started up until the mid-60's, half of the kids I knew personally who had attended camp came on to the University and half of those played in the band."

The enrollment in all camps has been steadily increasing especially the Band and Baton camps where the directors are two headline performers themselves. Col. Arnard D. Gabriel, conductor of the United States Air Force Band and Orchestra, headed the band camp and Renee Stuedemann, 1972 Miss Iowa and a top 10 finisher in the Miss America Contest, lead the Baton camp.

The past year more than 800 students enrolled at the "1000 Hills Youth Camp"

"You might think of both of these people as perfectionists. They demand a lot out of the kids and they get it," Duden said. "At the same time both provide tremendous inspiration to the students which carries over and helps them perform better during the coming school year."

Col. Gabriel is known for not accepting anything less than correct rhythm, intonation, balance and notes. He refuses to go past a passage until the students can play it correctly.

"He goes over and over and over it until the band members play it correctly and then he goes on until he comes to another passage they cannot play," Duden said. "I'll never forget the time a few years ago when Gabriel had picked "Pineapple Pole" as the concert piece. In that number the clarinets have a particularly difficult section and Gabriel told the clarinet section the first day of rehearsal that they would have to memorize the difficult section before the end of the week," Duden noted.

One young lady's jump timing was off from the rest of the group as she is seen in the air while the rest of the group rests firmly on the ground.

Col. Arnald D. Gabriel demands as much of himself conducting as he does of his students playing.

Piano camp participants, more than any others, did their studies in quiet seclusion.

"The night of the performance that's always held on the last night of camp, Gabriel announced to the audience that the clarinet section had memorized a very difficult section and to demonstrate their hard work, he would have them stand and play it for the audience. The clarinets stood, played the section perfectly and Gabriel then started the concert," Duden recalled.

Duden went on to say this is why the band students perform so well each summer. "Gabriel makes the students learn the hard parts whereas many times in the student's high school, the conductor has to skip over them for lack of time and hope the kids learn the part at home.

Gabriel is well known throughout the music industry. Doc Severinsen, leader of the NBC Tonight Show Band, said of Gabriel: "Besides being one of the finest Colonels and best musicians in the world today, he brings to the world of music qualities of integrity and courage that we usually associate only with battlefield heroes . . ."

In August of 1969, he was awarded the first "Citation of Excellence" ever presented by the National Band Association. The award was created to recognize the efforts of individuals who have made outstanding contributions toward the development of the musical and educational significance of bands and band music.

Every year the camp activities culminate with a joint concert Friday evening in Baldwin Hall Auditorium by two high school bands, under the direction of Col. Gabriel; the high school choir and madrigal group, directed by Clay H. Dawson, NMSU assistant professor of music; and the high school stage band. A capacity crowd was on hand for the three-hour performance and they responded enthusiastically to the program.

The choir gave a smooth, well-balanced performance of several numbers including the Casey arrangement of "The First Time I Saw Your Face" and Beck's "Song of Moses."

The Purple Concert Band performed the difficult De Nardis "Universal Judgement" with sensitivity. But, perhaps the highlight of the evening was the exciting performance of Tchaikovsky's "Overture- 1812" by the White Concert Band along with the entire brass section from the Purple Concert Band.

The sound from 122 talented young performers on stage, two bass drums in the balcony simulating canons, plus random chimes amplified electronically created an atmosphere of excitement and power. The audience showed its approval of the finale by rising spontaneously and giving the kids a standing ovation.

Earlier that afternoon, parents and visitors were treated to the junior high music and orchestra concerts plus an Art Show in Baldwin Hall. The art camp was under the direction of Dr. Mary Belle Martin, associate professor of art, and the String Camp, William E. Fitzsimmons, associate professor of music.

During the week the art students were frequent visitors to the quadrangle as sketching and painting out of doors was part of the curriculum. Also included was studio drawing and painting a model, media workshops and discussion of the creative experience by members of the NMSU art faculty.

Two weeks after the completion of the "1000 Hills Youth Camps" the Baton Camp opened with 438 students enrolled, up from 138 the year before. Much of the credit for the leap in enrollment goes to Renee Studemann who directed the camp.

Renee has a glittering baton twirling record, including winning the Junior National Twirling Championship when she was 12, one of the youngest ever to win the title. She also went on to win the senior national championships.

This was the first baton camp Renee had directed. "I wanted to provide the inspiration as well as instruction to the students so they would want to continue baton twirling when they went back home," she said.

The camp was divided into beginning, intermediate, advanced and super advanced with classes in two baton, three baton, drum majoring, fire baton and majorette. In addition Renee held classes in modeling, makeup and clothing. She spent half time teaching and other half administering the program and supervising the ten instructors.

Some of the students had not had any baton lessons at all when they came to camp, but many like 15-year-old Cindy Anderson of Des Moines, Iowa had been studying baton with Renee for some time. Cindy won a trophy in the A-1 baton competition held in Pershing Arena on the Saturday before the beginning of camp and was taking super advanced lessons while at camp.

Cindy and 14-year-old Susan Stalphenes of Humbolt, Iowa also a student of Renee, agree "learning new tricks" was one of the main reasons for coming to camp with "blind catches" being the hardest to master. Both girls had started baton lessons after being inspired by friends.

One of the highlights of the baton camp was the performance of the "Sigarettes", a drum and baton corps from St. Louis. The corps is the Missouri State Champion and has been training for the national competition. The girls with their leader, Sugar Smith had decided that the camp would provide them an excellent opportunity to both learn more about baton and to study practice for the upcoming competition.

The girls performed to the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" complete with red, white and blue uniforms. Sugar Smith is proud of her corps. It started seven years ago with 12 girls. Today there are 36 performers, including nine of the originals.

One twirler of whom Sugar is particularly proud is her seven-year-old daughter, Heather, who participated in the camp along with the other girls. On Thursday evening, Heather surprised her mother and everyone in the audience when she twirled between routines of the Sigaretts before the other 400 girls in the camp.

The other camp members quickly recognized her advanced ability and rewarded her with a standing ovation which was symbolic of the spirit and appreciation of excellence prevalent at all the camps. Perhaps Renee Studemann said it best when she spoke of entering the Miss American pageant: "I entered to pass things on to my students. Beauty is a very minor part of it."

But what could be more beautiful than an attitude like that? An attitude of unselfish devotion to students and teaching.

This has been the key to both the 1000 Hills Summer Camp and the Baton & Drum Major camp over the years, the attitude of a handful of teachers dedicated to seeing young minds challenged so they will become enriched with the knowledge passed from one generation to the next.

The Sugarettes from St. Louis practiced on routines throughout the camp and gave a two-hour performance in Baldwin Hall Auditorium for the entire camp the last night.

THE BULLDOG TIGER

by William H. Cable

More than 40 years ago when Don Faurot was etching an illustrious coaching mark on the NMSU sports scene, one of his versatile athletes was a lanky, colorful 6'3" kid from Lancaster.

The gangling youngster, John (Hi) Simmons, later joined his famous mentor at Missouri University as a member of the Tiger staff. Faurot, who led Ol' Mizzou out of gridiron mediocrity after guiding the Bulldogs to a nine-year record of 63-13-3, stepped down in 1967 as athletic director on the Columbia campus.

Now his former pupil has followed him into the retirement ranks. Simmons, nicknamed "Hi" as a teenager, called it quits as the Bengal baseball pilot in June after 35 seasons at the helm.

His coaching tenure was the longest ever at Mizzou. Moreover, his list of achievements will be difficult for anyone to match or exceed. So will his dry wit and humor which kept his players loose.

During a career climaxed by his induction into the College Baseball Coaches Hall of Fame last winter, the Tigers grabbed a national championship, finished second three times on the national level, won 11 conference titles, sent scores of players into professional baseball, and about a dozen into the major leagues.

Simmons participated in football, basketball and track for the Bulldogs while majoring in history. He was also a member of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity, from which he received the Distinguished Alumnus award in 1970.

"Hi" actually matriculated to NMSU in the fall of 1923, performing that year on the football field for H.L. "Curly" McWilliams. But then he dropped out of school to earn money teaching in a rural school before returning to the campus for the 1925-26 academic year.

His athletic endeavors in a purple and white uniform included broadjumping and running the quarter mile and on the mile relay in track, holding down the center spot on the basketball team, and manning the halfback post on the football field. Simmons captained the hardwood quintet in the senior season of 1927-28.

"We wore leather football helmets in those days, and I was always getting knocked out," he recollected with a chuckle. "However, I have fond memories of my days and friends in Kirksville. The school wasn't large, so it was easy to get acquainted. And we certainly had a lot of fine athletes."

Between 1925-27, Bulldog gridiron aggregations chalked up a 21-3-2 ledger. Basketball teams on which "Hi" played were 31-19.

Since there was no baseball program during his athletic days in Kirksville, Simmons' diamond activity was limited to semi-pro league in northern Missouri and southern Iowa.

"I could've signed a professional baseball contract to perform for $65 a month," he recalled. "But I was making almost that much pitching only on Sundays in semi-pro ball, so it would've been foolish for me to do so."

His first teaching job after graduation in 1928 was at Milan where he coached every sport, including girls basketball. "My best basketball player was a red-headed girl," he laughed. "I also taught physical education and history."

Then, he went to Mountain Grove for six years to direct all athletics and serve as high school principal. In 1935, Faurot persuaded Simmons to move to Missouri. At the start of his long tenure at Columbia, he was freshman taskmaster in football, basketball and baseball.

"Hi" was promoted to the head baseball post in 1937, and aside from two years in World War II naval service, he continued to help with football and handle gridiron scouting assignments until Faurot's retirement from coaching in 1956.

Simmons' former mentor describes his old student as a "superb all-around athlete and a fine team man" in college. "His leadership qualities as a performer carried over into his coaching career," Faurot remarked. "His players respected him. He was a quiet coach, but a strict disciplinarian who got a lot out of the boys."

"As a football scout, he made clever reports to the staff and players, using colloquialisms and slang. However, he never underestimated opponents, even if their records were poor."

Simmons was married in 1939 to Jan Vleck, then a counselor at Stephens College. She is currently assistant director of housing at the Columbia campus. They have three sons—John, 31, a buyer for Marshall-Field in Chicago, Don, 26, a second-year law student at Missouri, and Robert, 22, a Columbia clothing store manager.

"It's tough giving up something you've enjoyed doing as much as I've liked coaching baseball at Missouri, but this is a young man's game," observed the 67-year old Simmons recently. "I want to enjoy life while my health is still good."

He has many pleasant memories over the years. "But my greatest joy in coaching was seeing players develop their talents," he revealed. "I took great pride in that, and that's one reason I stuck with it so long."

Simmons says he and his wife have a lot of things they want to do and see. However, when "Hi" isn't traveling, he will probably be hunting, fishing, playing golf and participating in another favorite pastime—watching his Tigers toil on the diamond.

His coaching tenure was the longest ever at Mizzou. Moreover, his list of achievements will be difficult for anyone to match or exceed. So will his dry wit and humor which kept his players loose.

President

Davis

President Davis

So much can be learned about a man when one takes the time to simply look at a plaque on his office wall.

Michael, Cathy, Mrs. and Dr. Davis at their home in Elmhurst.

by R. Russell Harrison

"Someone has said that if you put your nose to the grindstone, your shoulder to the wheel and your ear to the ground, you will be in an awkward position," said Dr. Neal Davis. "Probably so, but I plan to do just that in the important and painful first months of my presidency at Judson Baptist College.

Dr. Davis, a one time area resident and NMSU graduate, is 36 years old and Judson is a 17 year-old small, private, two-year college of the Arts and Sciences in Portland, Oregon. The relative youth and dynamics of this now united new president and college with the motto "Education through Encounter", will prove to be challenging for both.

Assuming the Presidency of Judson on August 1, 1973, after serving as Dean of Students at Elmhurst College in Illinois for the past six years, Dr. Davis was born in Arkansas but reared in southern Missouri. He is a 1958 graduate of William Jewel and after receiving the Master's at Northeast he earned the Ph. D. degree in educational administration at the University of Missouri-Kansas City in 1970.

Dr. Davis, who is his own higher education success story, was a successful business executive with Western Auto and the owner and operator of a shoe store in Edina for four years. He sites his business experience as a definite plus in higher education today. "College administrators must be knowledgeable in business management to cope with the fiscal problems facing us today. In fact, I don't really consider that in college administration I have left the business field," Davis stated.

President Davis also served as a teacher-coach at the Hurdland, Mo. High School in 1960 and was an admissions counselor at William Jewell College while operating the Edina shoe store. He joined the staff of William Jewell on a full-time basis as Director of Student Activities from 1964 until his move to Elmhurst in 1967. He was a high school basketball coach and his team compiled a record of 26 wins and only 4 losses. Volunteer coaching also entered the picture and proved successful as he coached the Knox County Junior League baseball teams which finished with a combined record of 61-10 in 1960 and 1961.

Another big plus on the new President's side quickly is the enthusiastic support for Dad from the Davis family. Mrs. Davis, the former Patricia Duncan, loves a college atmosphere and attempts to personally know as many of the students as possible.

The Davis' have two children, including fourteen-year-old Cathy and twelve-year-old Michael. All members of the family are camping enthusiasts, rock collectors and Dr. Davis is a hiking buff having completed his eightieth mile of hiking along the shores of Lake Michigan this summer.

Although the new President loves his hobbies in geology, hiking, art and photography, subjects in which he is quite well informed but modest to discuss, one senses more his true love for Christian principles in everyday life and the challenges facing him in his new assignment.

"My family and I are very close and involved with our church. In fact Judson learned of me through a church contact rather than an education colleague," Davis said. The Davis family were active members of the First Baptist Church in Elmhurst and Dr. Davis served as chairman of the Board of Deacons last year.

"We hate very much to leave Elmhurst, it is a fine city and a fine college," Davis said. It was obvious to this visitor that both the college and many of the residents of the city have a mutual feeling for the Davis family due to the warm respectful greetings exchanged between Dr. Davis and students and townspeople as we toured the Elmhurst campus and part of the city.

In discussing his new position at Judson, Davis related the story that he had recently heard stating the problems at Harvard might be considered solutions at Boston University. "I guess I am saying that other colleges' problems would be solutions at Judson," Davis said.

Judson is tiny, but it has financial problems which are gigantic. It is too new to have untapped alumni support and it is a private institution in a part of the nation which has some of the finest and best supported public institutions in the world. "My challenge is to increase the enrollment, attain full accreditation, develop a strong academic program, pay off debts, cultivate the constituency and gain both visibility and respectability for an institution which can fill an even more important place in the post-secondary education system of the Pacific Northwest."

And then the tall red haired President smiled across the desk and said, "Now that I have told you the problems, let me tell you the many outstanding features of Judson." He cited a beautiful campus and laughingly pointed out that with the school's enrollment of 125 it probably was the only College or University in the world with a fifth of an acre of campus per student.

"We have a dedicated and academically able faculty attempting to provide a Christian education for the young people who choose Judson for their first two years of college." He praised the library and pointed out the strong support for the College of the Conservative Baptist

Pre-moving cleaning turns up some old memories for the 36 year old college president.

Association of Oregon.

"It is my feeling that Judson Baptist College can become an outstanding Christian College. Before this can happen, debts and dreams will have to be translated into fiscal stability and academic excellence. My contacts over the past several months with students, trustees, Conservative Baptist leaders and alumni lead me to believe that Judson Baptist College can become a unique, positive, Christ-centered institution where academic excellence and practical Christianity co-exist in a complementary configuration. My own interest in field experience programs, travel opportunities, life-long learning, lay leadership and inter-disciplinary study will (hopefully) be incorporated as time goes by. In the near future, however, I must go about the business of listening, learning and leading. 'Keeping the doors open' is not such a glamorous goal, but there are times when nightmarish realities must be faced before idealistic dreams can be shared. In the not-too-distant future, I envision great things for Judson; in the near future, I plan to get my feet wet . . . and I am sure that I shall pick up some mud in the process."

"At Northeast Missouri State the counseling discipline which I hope I learned was the discipline of 'listening'. I am rather eclectic as a counselor and somewhat directive as an administrator, but it is especially important to 'listen' (in all contexts) for feelings, words, ideas and problems. The 'education' of faculty, students and all other constituencies at Judson—including the education of the President, must (ideally) come 'through encounter'!"

Dr. Davis sits with his wife, Pat, as they display some of the rocks they have picked up on recent hiking ventures.

"I dream of a college where students can learn to work, worship, win and witness; these attitudes (or call them skills or abilities, if you prefer) precede wisdom and wealth. May those students who continue to select Judson Baptist College be rewarded with a quality Christian educational experience which wears well in the world," Davis said.

A beautiful motto hangs on President Davis' office wall which obviously he has followed in the past and will continue to do so in his new presidency. It reads, "Yesterday is already a dream, and tomorrow is only a vision; but today, well lived, makes every yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope."

Dr. Inman Named Division Head of Home Economics

Dr. Lydia Inman has been appointed head of the division of home economics and professor of home economics at Northeast. The announcement was made by Board President Mrs. Mary Alice Bunney following the meeting of the Regents Aug. 6 in Kirksville.

Dr. Inman received both her bachelors and masters degrees from Iowa State University. In 1963 she was awarded the Ph.D. degree in education and home economics from the University of Minnesota.

Prior to her coming to NMSU Dr. Inman was Coordinator of Resident Research at Iowa State University. She also taught at Iowa State, in addition to Oklahoma State University and Michigan State University as well as in secondary schools in Iowa and Illinois.

Dr. Inman is a member of several professional and honorary organizations including the Iowa Home Economics Association, the American Home Economics Association and the International Federation of Home Economics.

She has numerous publications including three articles in the Encyclopedia International on cooking utensils, cutlery and the vacuum bottle; "How Our New Household Equipment Laboratory Was Planned And Built", published in What's New in Home Economics.

Board Approves $12,457,110 Budget for 1973-74

The Board of Regents at NMSU approved the University's 1973-74 operating budget of $12,457,110 at a meeting held Aug. 6. More than half the total amount, $6,822,248, will be funded to the school from the General Revenue of the state of Missouri. The remainder will come from the following sources; student fees, $2,227,197; sales and services $243,500; and student housing system and food services $3,164,165.

Approximately 75 percent of the total budget will be spent on salaries. Faculty and staff members will receive a five percent salary increase as a part of the new budget. In addition, fringe benefits and additional adjustments due to promotion in rank will push the total amount spent on salary increases to 5.5 percent.

Norton, a participant in football, basketball and track at NMSU between 1961-63, was honored by Pepperdine for his "contributions to humanity through sports."

More than nine million dollars per year are returned to the city of Kirksville, the state of Missouri and the United States government by the University and its personnel in the form of purchases, savings and taxes.

University President Charles J. McClain noted the tremendous impact the NMSU budget has on the Northeast region of Missouri.

"This area of the state receives a limited amount of state revenue for support of state agencies. Thus the impact of the revenue of NMSU is doubly powerful and tremendously vital to the economy of this part of the state," Dr. McClain stated.

Dr. McClain also applauded Governor Bond and the General Assembly for dealing fairly and prudently with the University in appropriation of funds for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Dr. Krueger Named Dean of Instruction

At the May meeting of the Board of Regents, Dr. Darrell W. Krueger was selected to replace Dr. Earl Ludlow as dean of instruction. Dean Ludlow retired and was named dean emeritus of instruction and professor emeritus of education at the August Commencement exercises.

Dr. Krueger joined the faculty in July 1971 as assistant professor of political science. Now as dean of instruction he heads the University's 14 academic divisions.

The 30-year-old new dean is a native of Salt Lake City. He received his undergraduate training at Southern Utah State College, Cedar City, where he majored in political science and minored in history.

In 1969 he received his Master of Arts degree from the University of Arizona-Tucson, writing his thesis on the Indians of Peru and Bolivia. Dr. Krueger received his Ph.D. in August of 1971 from the same institution, writing his dissertation on The Political Integration of the United States Indians: A Case Study of the Gila River Reservation. While at the University of Arizona, he was selected as a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

P. R. Center Named for Col. Robert L. McKinney

The Board of Regents at Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville, has acted to name the public relations offices on the NMSU campus the "Robert L. McKinney Public Relations Center." The offices are located in a remodeled section of the former Practical Arts Building.

Col. McKinney served the University in numerous capacities and most recently as head of the Division of Public Relations and Information and Assistant to the President. He died unexpectedly on January 29 from a heart attack while on University business in the State Capitol Building in Jefferson City.

Col. McKinney was a 1936 graduate of NMSU. He joined the University staff in 1938 as private secretary to President Emeritus Walter H. Ryle. He enlisted in the Missouri National Guard in 1940 and was soon called to active duty where he established a distinguished military record.

At the time of his death the President of the Board, Mary Alice Bunney of Shelbyville, said: "He was a friend to the students as well as the administration and will be missed by all. In fact, the Board of Regents considered him as our right hand man. I personally feel a great loss."

Board Reorganized Bunney, President Burk, Secretary

The Board of Regents elected Mrs. Mary Alice Bunney president of the Board at the May meeting. Mrs. Bunney had been acting president since February when former president Judge James R. Reinhard resigned when he was named judge of the 10th judicial circuit.

Mrs. Bunney is a former school teacher in Shelby County. She was first appointed as a Regent in 1963 by Gov. John M. Dalton. She holds the distinction of being the first woman ever appointed to the NMSU Board of Regents. She and her husband, George, live in Shelbyville.

Elected vice president of the Board was William O'Donnell Lee of Moberly. Lee is a lawyer with the firm of Hunter, Chamier and Lee. He is in his third year with the Board, having been appointed in 1971 by former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Samuel A. Burk, Kirksville, is the new secretary. Burk is founder and principal owner of Community Broadcasters Incorporated. The corporation operates KIRX and KRXL-FM radio stations in Kirksville where Burk is president and general manager.

Burk was appointed to the Board in April along with William Quinn of Maywood and Albert Rendlen of Hannibal by Governor Christopher S. Bond. Quinn is a Lewis County pork producer and Rendlen a partner in the Hannibal law firm of Rendlen and Rendlen.

Seven Receive Emeritus Status

Seven faculty members were honored with emeritus status at Summer Commencement exercises to be held August 10, 1973. The granting of the emeritus status was featured along with the address of the 1973 College Basketball Coach of the Year, NMSU alumnus Gene Bartow of Memphis State. Bartow is a 1952 graduate of NMSU.

Receiving emeritus status were Dr. John D. Black who had been professor of zoology since 1948; Dr. Earl D. Ludlow, former dean of instruction and professor of education since 1964; Dr. R. L. Terry, professor of education since 1958; Frances Walsh, assistant professor of English since 1957; Clarence L. Murphy, associate professor of education since 1952; Richard St. Clair, associate professor of education since 1946; and Dr. J. C. Wright, professor of education since 1965.

Some 222 students received the Bachelors degree and more than 275 students the Masters degree at the commencement exercises.

The following people were honored at a spring reception for ten or more years service. Those with ten years are (left to right) Jane Ellen Byrd, assistant professor of English; William Matthew, Principal of Ophelia Parrish; Dr. Tom Duden, Band Director; Dr. Dale Jorgenson, Head, Division of Fine Arts; Dr. McClain; Mrs. Wilma Payne, Resident Director of Ryle Hall; Dr. Leon Karel, professor of allied arts, 25 years service; and Richard Newman, security patrolman, 25 years.

University Hires Macon Attorney As New Counsel

Ray E. Klinginsmith, a Macon attorney, has been appointed attorney at Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville, effective Aug. 16. Klinginsmith presently is legal counsel and loan officer at the Macon-Atlanta State Bank. Klinginsmith's appointment was announced recently by Mrs. Mary Alice Bunney, president of the NMSU Board of Regents.

Klinginsmith will succeed Clyde Burch, who requested that he be relieved of his duties in order to devote full time to teaching and directing of the University's Law Enforcement Education program.

Klinginsmith, who is a native of Unionville, earned his B.S. degree in business administration from the University of Missouri-Columbia in 1959. He earned the J.D. degree from the same institution in 1965.

In addition he did one year of graduate work in Capetown, South Africa. From 1965 to 1972 he was engaged in

Study Indicates University Support To Local Community

A recent study completed by a team of researchers at Northeast shows that NMSU contributes $15,821,447.33 to the Kirksville-Adair County community each year. The study reveals that in terms of a group, students make the largest financial contribution to the community, accounting for 56 per cent of the total amount.

Students contribute $8,784,587.33 yearly. This averages to $1,410.50 per student per year.

Total faculty expenditures with related faculty income brings $3,644,398 into Kirksville. On the average, each faculty member contributes $11,179.13 to the community yearly.

Non-teaching or staff employees of the University contribute $1,581,738 of their salaries to Kirksville each year. This is 86 per cent of their total salary which is the highest percentage of any University employees.

Another significant contribution comes from visitors to Kirksville drawn not only from University activities, but to visit students, faculty and staff members. For instance the NMSU sports program contributes $110,000 to the community each year. This figure was computed estimating that 20 per cent of the sports attendance was from outside the community and that the average per diem expenditures of each person amounts to $20.

Finally the University itself spends money in Kirksville. The expenditures total some $828,244 each year. In addition NMSU pays utility bills totalling $266,772 each year.

NMSU To Receive Centennial History By Mid-October

One year ago the Nemoscope featured an article on the upcoming production of the book The Centennial History of the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College by Dr. Walter H. Ryle, President Emeritus. At that time, the expected delivery on the book was to be during January 1973.

Numerous delays have caused the production of the book to fall behind schedule but it will be available for distribution by mid-October.

The purchase price of the one-volume history is $6.75. All those alumni and friends who wish to purchase a copy should fill out the order form on page 14 of this news section and send it with their personal check or money order made out to NMSU, to the Alumni Affairs Office, 10 McKinney P.R. Center, NMSU, Kirksville, Mo. 63501.
