Comments from the College President

The 1971-72 academic year could be a year of decision for Northeast Missouri State College—a decision for this College to move ahead by establishing new goals and objectives and setting new priorities.

We—students, faculty, administrators and alumni alike—are involved in a constant battle of self-preservation through self-evaluation in an effort to determine what the priorities are for the 70's. New priorities for NMSC could mean a shift in emphasis from the traditional roles of the College to ones more relevant to the needs of our ever-changing society.

We are already making changes that will help set a path for this College during the 70's. The nursing education program is being reinstated to meet the increased demands in that area. In addition, there are new programs in law enforcement, sociology, home economics, education and other areas. But our work is never completed! We still have to develop new clusters of excellence for the College if we are to continue to move ahead.

This summer was an unusually productive time for the College. The Kirk building is being renovated to provide additional recreational facilities for students. We are upgrading the student health program by moving facilities into the Old Industrial Arts building, which is being remodeled for that purpose. The new facility is more than three times larger than the former health service facility.

New programs and buildings are all a part of creating the proper environment for making a college a dynamic institution for higher learning. But men and ideas are not created out of mortar and stone. Learning cannot be rigid and brittle like a building; it must be flexible. For if it were brittle, new concepts and new ideas would shake the foundations of our learning and crumble the basis of our educational process. Therefore, we strive for flexibility.

The College has employed approximately 45 new faculty members, including a new Registrar and an Associate Dean of Student Affairs. In a short time, these newly-employed men and women have become deeply involved and concerned with the life and development of excellence on this campus. I think it is with people like these, those that have rendered great service in the past, and our thousands of loyal alumni, that the College will be able to take strides forward during the 70's.

Mrs. McClain and I will look forward to seeing many of you during the 1971 Homecoming festivities.

Homecoming To Feature 'Missouri Through the Years'

The 1971 NMSC Homecoming festivities are scheduled for Saturday, October 23rd, with thousands of alumni expected to return for the day. Pre-Homecoming programs include the queen coronation, pep rally and numerous organization activities to be held during the week of Oct. 18-23.

Homecoming Day will get under way with the traditional parade of bands and floats at 9:30 a.m. The parade will feature Missouri's Sesqui-centennial as its theme, and will be one of the largest ever featured at a Homecoming, according to NMSC band director Robert Scott.

Alumni registration will be held from 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. in the College Student Union, and the annual Homecoming Buffet is scheduled for 11:00 a.m. in the Activities Room of the Union. All alumni and friends are invited to the buffet, which will especially honor the classes of 1921, 1946 and 1961. Special invitations are being issued to members of the classes within a five year period of each of these classes. Dr. Gale O. Jones, B.A. & B.S.E. 1953, President of the College Alumni Association, will serve as toastmaster at the buffet. College President Charles J. McClain will welcome the group and speak briefly about the College. An early adjournment will allow those attending ample time to reach Stokes Stadium for the pre-game activities scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

The Homecoming game will match the Bulldogs against the Central Missouri State Mules at 2:00 p.m. The Bulldogs are off to a good start with an opening game victory against the University of Northern Iowa.

Numerous organization receptions, open houses, dinners and dormitory open houses are scheduled for the day with times and places to be announced. The traditional Homecoming dance will close the day's activities at 8:00 p.m. at the Rieger Armory.

Forty Years of Education and Teaching Earns College Degree for 1971 Summer Graduate

By Tom Shrout

A veteran Missouri teacher, who is a mother, grandmother and in her spare time, a gardener, received her degree on Friday, August 13 at NMSC. For Mrs. Lloyd Kerns of Silex, Missouri, it was the end of a college career that started 40 years ago after she had already taught for two years in a one-room school house.

Mrs. Kerns was born in 1911 near Silex, on the same farm where she now lives. Following her graduation from Vandalia high school, Mrs. Kerns began her teaching career in a one-room school in Pike County.

While in high school, Mrs. Kerns said she took a teacher training course that qualified her for a second class state teaching certificate. Mrs. Kerns recalls, "I thought I just knew everything when I went into teaching. I was the teacher, principal, superintendent, janitor, everything for the fabulous salary of $75 a month for an eight month school year."

That first year at the Indian Creek School Mrs. Kerns had 18 students and six of them were first graders.

After completion of her first year of teaching she was qualified for a first class teaching certificate that was renewable every three years upon the completion of eight hours of college credit. After her second year of teaching at Indian Creek, Mrs. Kerns entered college at Southeast Missouri State in Cape Girardeau. She went there for several summers and also attended Southwest Baptist College at Bolivar.

After she completed her first summer of college work at Southeast Missouri State College, she transferred to Hopkie school, also in Pike County. Mrs. Kerns taught there for one year and then moved to Pea Ridge school in Lincoln County.

While she was at Pea Ridge, Mrs. Kerns recalls, "We had a new county superintendent, and she decided all of her teachers in that county should go to Northeast Missouri State College. She even told the board that if I didn't come to Northeast Missouri, they would lose their state money. They believed her." In the summer of 1937 Mrs. Kerns entered Northeast Missouri State College.

She says the first few summers at Northeast she primarily worked toward keeping her certificate current. She was still teaching at Pea Ridge when she met her husband-to-be, Lloyd. They were married and she continued to teach until one month before her first son, Cameron, was born.

Mrs. Kerns decided to give up teaching and turn her attention to raising a family. Three more children followed—Olin, Norine, and Neal. In 1949 the Kerns family was living in Pike County again and according to Mrs. Kerns, the schools needed teachers so badly that she decided to go back to teaching. She had let her certificate expire, but the county superintendent allowed her to take an examination. She passed and again was back in the classroom.

By this time the state department of education had imposed stricter standards and told her she would have to complete eight hours of college work every two years, including a number of specific requirements. So it was back to school in the summers and teaching in the fall. Since 1949, Mrs. Kerns says she has noticed many changes. She has gone to school under five college presidents, Dr. Eugene Fair, Dr. Walter H. Ryle, Dr. F. Clark Elkins, Dr. Eli F. Mittler and Dr. Charles J. McClain. But one of the big changes is in the style of education. "When I first started children were supposed to be seen and not heard. Children were not allowed to be up doing various things, or as they now say, 'doing their own thing'. Now education has become individualized."

But at the same time she feels some of the changes haven't been for the better. "In math you're supposed to make it so interesting that they will learn those facts. But if you don't drill the students, they don't learn them and when they get to the point they need them, they don't have them."

Mrs. Kerns is one of ten children. She jokes about her age and math teaching ability. One day she was telling her students about the time Helen Keller spoke at a teachers convention in St. Louis. One of the students said, "Why Mrs. Kerns, you're not old enough to remember Helen Keller. How old are you?"

So she decided to make it into a math lesson. "I was born in 1911 and it is now 1969. How old am I?" said Mrs. Kerns. One energetic youngster said, "Mrs. Kerns, you're 80 years old."

Later when she was telling her husband about the student adding rather than subtracting, he told her that was a slam on her age to have a student misjudge it by 22 years. But the teacher came out in Mrs. Kerns and she said, "I think it's more of a slam on my teaching ability."

Two of Mrs. Kerns children were on hand for the graduation ceremonies in addition to her husband, who is a field representative for the United States Department of Agriculture. Her youngest son, Neal, joined his mother in receiving his B.S. in Education. Her oldest son, Cameron, graduated from the University of Missouri at Columbia in 1962. And her two other children, Olin and Norine, both graduated from Northeast Missouri State College in 1967.

Norine, who is Mrs. Lyle Thompson, was in Kirksville for her mother's graduation. She teaches fourth grade in the Ferguson-Florissant school system in St. Louis County.

Does Mrs. Kerns plan to go on for a Master's? No, at least not just yet.

She's stretched her college education over the past 40 years, and because of changes in requirements, collected about 30 more credit hours than it normally takes to graduate.

But now she has made it and it is back to the farm in Silex and her hobby of gardening. She plans on spending some time with her four grandchildren, but soon it will be September and back to the classroom and this time Mrs. Virginia Kerns, B.S. in Ed.

Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity Observes Fiftieth Anniversary

After 50 years as a chapter of Sigma Tau Gamma National Fraternity, Beta Chapter at NMSC finally received their charter this summer.

Basil Hunt, B.S.E. 1958 & M.A. 1959, president of the national fraternity, rectified a 50-year old inequity when he presented local chapter president Jay Crump an official charter at the Beta Chapter Golden Anniversary Banquet in the Student Union Building on July 31st. The chapter has been without an official fraternity charter since a group of Sigma Tau Gamma founders from Warrensburg forgot to have one printed after they installed the local chapter as the second one in the fraternity in 1921.

A large crowd from 15 states attended the Golden Anniversary Reunion. Honored at the banquet were six of the chapter's charter members. O. Gen Hocker, B.S. 1920, of Mexico received the 1971 Robert Nagel Jones Distinguished Service Award given annually to an alumnus member who has given distinguished service to the chapter. Hocker also acknowledged the appreciation of charter members for their honor.

Reunion festivities began Friday, July 30th, with social gatherings at the Holiday Inn and the Shamrock Inn. Saturday's activities were kicked off by a morning golf tournament at the Kirksville Country Club.

A Saturday luncheon at the Student Union Georgian Room honored 13 past presidents of Beta Chapter in attendance. Frank R. Ficke of Belleville, Ill., secretary-treasurer of the Goetze Educational Foundation announced that Chet Robbins, a preosteopathic student now iving in Kirksville, had been chosen to receive the 1971 P. O. Selby Scholarship Award given to an outstanding member of the undergraduate chapter.

Saturday afternoon featured an alumni reception and tour sponsored by the NMSC Alumni Association.

Ben E. Pitney, B.S.E. 1955 & M.A. 1962, head basketball coach the past five years at Missouri Baptist College, Hannibal LaGrange campus, has been named assistant basketball mentor and temporary instructor in physical education at Northeast Missouri State College.

Pitney's appointment, effective June 15th, fills the vacancy created with the elevation of Willard Sims, B.S.E. 1954 & M.A. 1955, to head coach replacing retiring mentor Boyd King, B.S.E. 1937.

The 38 year old Pitney, a graduate of Hannibal High School, attended school and played basketball at Hannibal LaGrange. He transferred to NMSC where he was a member of the basketball squad. In addition to the B.S.E. & M.A. degrees, he has done further graduate work at Murray State College in Kentucky.

Before returning to Hannibal College, he directed Illinois high schools squads for nine years. He was at West Pike from 1957-61, leading the team to three conference championships. Pitney also coached Bridgeport to one conference title and two regional crowns between 1961-65, and served one year at Princeton.

Marcia Mossbarger Ends Miss Missouri Reign Bringing Many Honors to Her State and College

Hurriedly, she blew a whistle ending the day's class. She then picked up the gym equipment, changed clothes, and flew off on a 280-mile trip across Missouri to make an official appearance.

If it can be said that there was a Queen of the Road in Missouri during the past 12 months, then Marcia Mossbarger, B.S.E. 1970, and the 1970 Miss Missouri, certainly could also lay claim to that title.

Not only has the blonde Brookfield beauty been the most popular Miss Missouri, ever, she has been the busiest, traveling some 52,000 miles in Missouri for some 83 appearances, including several national or regional television appearances throughout the Midwest.

Long working days became a way of life for Miss Missouri after she won her title at the Miss Missouri Pageant last July. Appearances were squeezed in between a full-time teaching schedule at Chillicothe High School where she teaches girls physical education. Despite a demanding personal appearance schedule taking her back and forth across the state, she was able to instruct a full three weeks each month. Recognizing her arduous efforts, the Missouri Teacher's Ass'n. put her picture on the cover of its magazine.

Now, with her year coming to a close, she can look back on what has been a "beautiful dream."

"I never had the faintest idea I would win, even, when it was down to the last two. I'm glad I had this opportunity to travel throughout the state and meet all the people of Missouri who are really great people."

Her year started off in style when she returned home to Brookfield to a warm reception, including more than 1,500 people and Lt. Gov. William Morris to honor her.

"I soon learned that my time was not always my own," she said. In a few days she was off to Springfield for the grand opening of a J. C. Penney store, the largest in the Midwest. It was the first of 14 grand openings she would participate in.

In August, she traveled nearly 7,000 miles, making appearances at fairs, centennials and civic clubs, in addition to several trips to St. Louis where she worked with a fashion and finishing school as well as a leading choreographer to help her with her talent presentation.

On one of the trips to St. Louis, she threw in the first ball at a St. Louis Cardinal baseball game. "I remember standing there on the pitcher's mound. Joe Torre didn't think I could get it to him. I threw him a high fastball that nearly went over his head. He added they could use another good pitcher."

In Atlantic City, she received a great deal of publicity, and enjoyed a large cheering section. Brookfield and area fans chartered a jet to take 112 persons to Atlantic City. It was the largest delegation from any state, with the exception of Mississippi which sent an entire orphanage which their state winners once attended.

After school was in session, the hectic schedule started. Often she would finish classes at 3 p.m. then have to drive more than 200 miles for an appearance and finally arrive home at about 2 a.m.

One day in September, she attended the M. U.-Air Force game in St. Louis then flew to Kansas City to appear at a local pageant there that night.

Shortly after that, she had her most embarrassing moment of the year. "I had met Lt. Gov. Morris at my homecoming, then again at Blue Springs. Suddenly, I met him unexpectedly for the third time. Would you believe that every time I had on the same dress."

In coming months, she showed some of the other dresses as she presented 27 fashion shows for Rotary clubs, womens clubs and even the Unique Jaycees of the Missouri Training Center for Men. Her fashions were part of her $1,500 wardrobe from the Purple Shoppe, the official fashion headquarters for Miss Missouri.

In February, she made another appearance she won't soon forget as she officially helped Governor Hearnes open Missouri's Sesquicentennial celebration in St. Charles.

Help is right . . . the governor had to call in Miss Missouri to help blow out the 150 candles on the huge Missouri birthday cake. A few seconds later, her funniest incident of the year occurred when the master of ceremonies was introducing the guests at the head table. He introduced one of the state's representatives and then his wife, Marcia Mossbarger. Everyone laughed.

In March, she made her first out-of-state appearance since August when she appeared at the Miss Illinois Pageant near Chicago. In a seven-day period, she flew to Nashville for a United Cerebral Palsy telethon and then to Denver for the grand opening of a ski resort. After a couple of days in Denver, she left there at 4:30 a.m. to be in St. Louis by 10 a.m. for the grand opening of one of the largest shopping centers there.

In April, she traveled out of state twice, first for the tenth anniversary opening of Six Flags Over Texas near Dallas. Since Six Flags had a new park opening in Missouri and one in existence in Georgia, they invited Miss Missouri, Miss Georgia, and Miss Texas to their gala opening. Two weeks later she was in Monroe, La., with 14 other state queens who had been to Atlantic City. The occasion was the dedication of the Louisiana Purchase Gardens.

A representative from each state in the Louisiana Purchase attended and raised her state flag.

April, May and June were her busiest months as she made the civic club circuit in addition to all the local pageants in the state.

"There's been a lot of fun in being Miss Missouri," she said. "But there is more work than most girls realize. I spend hours preparing for an appearance by writing a speech or learning background information on a town. Then there may be three or four hours on the highway one way. Then I'm always expected to look 100 percent beautiful. But once there, the friendly people make every appearance an unforgettable one."

She said she is looking forward to the 1971 Missouri Pageant to be held in Mexico on July 22, 23 and 24. "I'm looking forward to showing Phyllis (Phyllis George, Miss America) the type of pageant we have in Missouri. She is such a friendly person, I'm sure everyone will enjoy seeing her."

Miss America, of Denton, Tex. will appear at the Miss Missouri Pageant July 22. It will be the first appearance by a reigning Miss America in central Missouri in many years.

"If I had one wish, it would be for every girl to experience what I have for the past 12 months. Some people have the idea the pageants are old fashioned or in the category of the beauty pageant. Ours is an opportunity pageant for $4,000 in scholarships and the chance to represent the state. I am very grateful that I had the opportunity to represent this great state . . . and maybe in some small way I have paid my parents back for all they have done for me, by making them proud of me," Miss Missouri said.

"Excuse me now," she added, "I have to drive from here (Brookfield) to Cape Girardeau tonight."

Wherever she travels, from Atlantic City to Kansas City and from Blue Springs to Willow Springs, her dimpled smile and natural charm have won the applause of thousands of Missourians and put a similar sign up on many marquees throughout the state. The sign usually reads: MARCIA MOSSBARGER — the Beauty of Missouri.

HUNDREDS OF NMSC FRESHMEN consumed some 20 roasted pigs at the freshman pig roast held as part of the fall orientation program on Tuesday, September 14th. The pig roast was planned by Associate Dean of Students, James Ritter, and proved to be a popular part of the get-acquainted activities. The roast was held on the College picnic grounds, and College administrators were in charge of the serving line.

NMSC Summer Environmental Studies Institute Was Termed Complete Success by Participants Involved

Do you remember going to school and sitting on those hard, wooden seats that were either made for a six-foot second grader or a two-foot sixth grader? The rooms were painted in those nondescript colors that looked like someone had taken the last few dabs of paint from about thirty cans to get enough to paint the room. The teachers always seemed like they were 100 years old and made you memorize that eight times eight was 64 not 46?

When it came time to learn something about plants or animals, everyone squirmed in their seats trying to watch the best they could from 30 feet away while the teacher put two drops of iodine on a sliced potato and it was supposed to turn blue—proving something to the effect that when you put iodine on a potato, it turns blue. Finally, the bell rings and for ten minutes you can get outside.

Today the classrooms still may be painted in a bland mixture of colors and some of the teachers probably seem like they're 100 years old. But the iodine on the potato stands to undergo some revolutionary change. It will still turn blue, but a student could very likely discover this and thousands of other things on his own.

This summer from July 12 to August 13, Northeast Missouri State College conducted an Environmental Studies Institute for 26 elementary and four high school teachers. The teachers received $50 a week and seven hours of college credit. Later, they will attend seven meetings during the school year to discuss changes in the environment. The program was set up in cooperation with the Kirksville Upper Elementary School.

One of the NMSC faculty members and a staff member for the institute, Dr. Jack Magruder, says the idea of the institute is to help make the teachers more aware of their environment so they can take what they have learned back to the classroom and hopefully help their students achieve a similar awareness.

Dr. John Settlage, associate director of the Institute and also an NMSC faculty member, adds, "Our goal is to build trust between the students and the teachers so the kids can be taught an awareness of the environment and through this awareness, develop an appreciation of the environment. In the past grades have always destroyed trust between students and teachers."

The first thing the instructors did in the institute was to make the grading a self-evaluation system. Each week the participants submitted their evaluations to the Institute leaders. One participant said, "We were actually much harder on ourselves in the grading. This way there were no excuses about a teacher's grading system. We were the only ones responsible for the grades."

Another institute participant, George

KIRKSVILLE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL STUDENTS seem to be enjoying themselves as participants in the Environmental Studies Program held on the NMSC campus this summer. Some 25 to 40 elementary and junior high students from the Kirksville area took part in the summer program.

Pipes said, "To justify this (grade) is a very difficult task because there is no quantitative justification in what we did; but do we have to have quantitative justification to judge other people? I feel I have gained an abundance of experience by sharing other people's feelings and awareness."

In the morning the teachers put themselves in a role-playing situation. One member of the institute would act as the instructor in a typical school room and the rest would assume the roles of the students. One participant, Mrs. Ruth Hunsaker, a third grade teacher in La Plata says, "In this way we got a feeling of what we will be trying in our classrooms later on."

Later students from kindergarten through twelfth grade in the Kirksville and La Plata area were asked to join in the program.

Magruder says, "The first day we were trying to call all over the area to round up 20 kids to help us with our program. But after the first week there were 35 kids attending regularly and on one day we had 42."

On that first day the students were surprised when they were handed polaroid cameras and told to go out in groups and take a picture of power. Settlege says this is where we help to build trust between the students and the teacher. "No instructor told students how to break up into groups or how to operate the cameras. They didn't even go along with the students to look over their shoulders to make sure they were doing things right. We just turned them loose."

Magruder says it is important for the teachers not to impose their ideas and prejudices about a subject on a student. "We throw away all the preconceived notions about education and in fact, we reverse the learning process," says Magruder. There was no discussion about what power was before the students went out with their cameras.

One of the hall walls of the NMSC Science Building is lined with the results of the project. One student brought back a picture of the sun, another of a muscle and one of a telephone. All represented power.

The instructors make no attempt to compare one student's efforts with another. The program stresses that it is important to allow each student to pursue the direction in which he points.

The Institute came about last spring when Dr. Dean Rosebery, head of the NMSC Science division; Bill Harrison, a member of the Kirksville Public School faculty; Settlege and Magruder all attended an Environmental Studies Conference in Boulder, Colorado. The program was under the American Geological Institute in Boulder and was directed by Robert Samples who helped devise the Environmental Studies Institute.

Samples operates under the premise that every student is in an environment and he can learn from it. A major distinction of the program is that three environments are considered. The first is the inner environment of the child. The second is the immediate environment in which he finds himself and the third is the global environment.

While in Boulder, Samples put the NMSC faculty members through many of the same exercises that the Institute participants went through this summer.

When Rosebery returned to Kirksville he decided to apply for a grant from the National Science Foundation for an institute this summer on the NMSC campus. The program was set up with the idea that most of the teachers coming from the Kirksville Upper Elementary School, with the aid of Harrison, might be able to incorporate a similar program more easily into their curriculum.

This is the first program of its kind anywhere in the country, according to Rosebery. "The national office at Boulder is watching the program because this is the first time a group of teachers have taken the program with the idea of incorporating it into the curriculum," he said. Later on in the year there will be four two-day sessions to partially evaluate what has been done and to pick up additional information about the environment that will happen as the seasons change.

Rosebery admits that one of the weaknesses may be that many teachers will feel that they will be unable to operate without any structure. "Some teachers must know exactly what is going on at all times and cannot tolerate the noise levels that are associated with this program," said Rosebery.

He adds that another problem is that some of the programs may pose high teacher threat. Studies in similar institutes show that the teacher sometimes has his picture taken by students faced with an assignment to take a picture of those things that are bad, unpleasant or that are predators.

"This also causes some problems because the traditional educational format calls first for a list of goals and objectives, taking action to meet these goals and objectives and finally an evaluation of whether or not the goals and objectives were reached. "It is hard for us to list our goals and objectives because we don't know which direction the course might lead us," Magruder said.

Recently a group of ten, eleven and twelve year olds took a field trip to a farm near Kirksville. Six adults were along and this time the group did have a list of goals, to gather dead wood for the Kirksville Upper Elementary School so some of the projects tried this summer might be repeated in the fall.

But by this time the students and the teachers had become so aware of their environment, the original goal, although completed, did not keep the group from exploring other avenues of interest as they arose. Almost right away the students discovered a bat under the bark of one of the dead trees. Some of the students took a close look and then carefully replaced the bark so as not to disturb the bat during his daytime snooze. The rest of the students who were not interested in the bat were off doing other things.

One student found a garter snake and another, animal tracks in the mud of a creek side. But all along the students and the instructors enjoyed a working relationship each respecting and trusting the other.

By the time the two hour trek through the weeds, sticktight, cow manure and creek bottoms had ended, the instructors had their dead wood for their classes this fall, the students had explored their own avenues of interest and each had become more aware of his environment.

In evaluating the program Rosebery says, "It is one of the most fascinating programs ever. Many of the teachers were reluctant to take the course to start off with because many said they didn't know anything about science."

But soon most of the participants were spending their free time in outside study of questions that had come up during the course of discovering their environment.

During the last week of the institute, many area administrators attended the institute for a one day session to see the new methods of learning the teachers were employing and were asked to do many of the things that their teachers had done during the past five weeks.

One of the favorite activities was to have the students take a picture of those things which are good and then pictures of those things that are bad. On the NMSC campus the flowers and trimmed shrubbery often were pictured as being good. The thing shown most often as being bad was the smoke stack on the NMSC power plant which sits almost in the middle of the campus behind the sunken garden and the quadrangle.

Rosebery says that they soon discovered that the person taking the picture and the person viewing it would often have a different interpretation of what is good and what is bad. "Each person has his own value system and who is to say if it is right or wrong?" said Rosebery.

He then told of walking across campus one day and seeing one of the school age children in the institute with a camera. Rosebery recalled, "I asked him what he was doing and he said 'I'm trying to take a double exposure with the polaroid camera. I want to show the smoke stack falling down on the power house.' I don't know if he was able to do it, but oh, the idea of it."

Sports Highlights

Northeast Missouri State's 1969 and 1970 Bulldogs performed a "Cinderella" role by finishing in a deadlock for the top spot in the MIAA Conference after pre-season prognosticators rated them no better than third or fourth. However, Coach Russ Sloan views the 1971 campaign as the "most challenging one" in three seasons at the helm of the Purple and White.

Graduation took its toll, as 13 quality performers departed from the scene. Only nine seniors appear on NMSC's 1971 pre-season roster, which contains 16 lettermen.

Sloan viewed the results of this spring's 20 practices with mixed feelings. "Our youngsters on defense showed more than I anticipated, but I don't quite know what to think about our quarterbacking," he emphasized.

Glaring holes must be filled at seven of 11 defensive slots, including positions manned by third team All-American linebacker Aubrey Johnson and honorable mention All-American end Ken Bebermeyer.

If Sloan's returning defensive underclassmen and several newcomers shine in pre-campaign workouts, the mentor might have good reason to erase a big frown from his brow. Particularly impressive among youthful defensive candidates in the spring were tackles Dave Waterkotte and Tom Bueker, end Dave Flee and "wildcard" Rodney O'Bryan.

Then too, middle guard Jim Gephardt, linebacker Craig O'Sadnick, an honorable mention all-conference choice, halfback Randy Dawson, and safety Kevin Miller will be in the fold next autumn. Linebacker Ken Powers and halfback Mike Dahlberg, both of whom started at times last year, can be counted on, too.

The unstable quarterback situation was created by the loss of Don Cummings, fifth among the 1970 NCAA College Division total offense leaders and holder of seven school records. Bob Gibson, returning monogram recipient, and Mesa (Colo.) Junior College transfer Geoffrey Engen appear to be the leading candidates for signal-calling duty.

Sloan must plug three other offensive gaps. Split end Mike Berentes, listed among the All-American honorable mention, established six new school marks during his career. Tackle Gary Lacey, second team all-MIAA, and slotback Charles Blakley, honorable mention all-league, will also be missed.

However, looking at the positive side of the ledger, all top ball carriers will return. That means Sloan will have the services of two honorable mention all conference selections, Lenvil Elliott and Pete Robertson, who accounted for 853 of NMSC's 1148 yards on the ground.

All-MIAA tight end Tom Geredine, who hauled in 31 aerials for 574 yards and three touchdowns, will be a vital cog in 1971, if the Bulldogs can put the pigskin in the air effectively. Speedster Larry Jones, who switched from Fresno, (Calif.) State, should be an explosive pass-catching threat as a slotback or wide receiver.

Interior lineman Bart Crawford, Dale Gildehaus, Greg Erson and Randy Ball, now with a season of experience under their belts, should provide the Bulldogs with improved blocking up front. Crawford and Erson were among several to learn new positions this spring. Erson moved over to the tackle slot on offense, and Crawford had a trial as a defensive tackle.

"We simply have to rely on some fellows going both ways or playing more than one spot, because of our lack of depth," Sloan elaborated. "We may have a long way to go before becoming a good team, but I can be certain of one thing. We'll have the same winning attitude that prevailed on our two previous championship clubs."

Five high school graduates and two junior college transfers have been recruited by Basketball Coach Willard Sims to play next season for Northeast Missouri State College.

The junior college products are Bob Lewis, 6'2" guard from Palmer (Ia.), and Mark Seip, 6'7" forward from Parkland (Ill.).

Ted Petchell, 6'5" freshman forward from School of Osage, Dave Giles, 6'7" frontliner from Bloomington, Ill., Les Dawdy, 6'3" guard from La Plata, Dean Pink, 6'6" frontliner from Kirksville, and Gary Bowne, 6'4" forward-guard from Adams, Neb., comprise the first year members.

Lewis, a former Salisbury (Mo.) standout, averaged 23.8 points for Palmer last season, helping his quintet capture its Juco Regional before being eliminated in playoff competition by Ellsworth (Ia.), eventual national champion. He also played two years of service basketball.

Seip, an all-state prep choice while performing at Tuscola, Ill., averaged 27.0 points per clip, and was listed among the top 10 pointmakers two years ago in his state. He was a starter on the freshman squad at Southern Illinois University (Carbondale), hitting at an 18.0 pace.

Petchell was an all-district selection in high school. He paced the Central Missouri region in scoring, averaging 27.0 points per contest. Petchell also grabbed an average of 20 rebounds.

Giles, a 6'7" frontliner, capable of playing forward or center, was sought by a number of colleges and universities. He led Bloomington High School to the State Sectional Finals, averaging 19.7 points and 11 caroms per game. Giles was a second team Illinois All-State choice, made two all-tournament listings, and was selected by teammates as the squad's Most Valuable Performer. He was also picked to the Central Illinois All-Star mythical aggregation.

Dawdy, who averaged 19.8 points and 13 rebounds per clip last season, was selected to the Tri-County All-Conference, All-District and All-State teams, leading his quintet to the first round of the Class S State Tourney. The 6'3" prep forward will be moved to a backline spot, according to the NMSC mentor.

Pink will be the second member of his family to wear a purple and white uniform. His father, Dr. Ralph Pink, member of the NMSC Health and Physical Education Division, was a starting backliner on famous Bulldog quintets immediately after World War II.

The younger Pink averaged 14.0 points and 12.0 rebounds per clip as a senior center last season, performing on the North Central Missouri Conference championship club. His accuracy at the charity line was 72 percent. He was selected to his all-conference team and the Chillicothe Invitational All-Tourney group.

At the conclusion of the 1970-71 campaign, the 6'6", 196 pound frontliner was one of 100 prep all-American Seniors chosen by the U. S. Basketball Writers Association, Coach and Ath- lete Magazine, and Sunkist Growers.

Bowne, a 6'4", 195 pound performer, poured in 507 points and grabbed 328 rebounds as a senior for Adams, coached by Larry Coorts, former NM-SC cager. He led his squad to the semi-finals of the state tourney. Bowne made honorable mention All-American, honorable mention all-state, and first team all-conference his final two years of high school.

He also excels in track, placing in the hurdles and broad jump at the State Meet. Bowne tied for first in the high hurdles with a time of :14.9 seconds in the low hurdles with :20.6; and first in the broad jump with 20'10".

Twenty wrestlers have indicated they will enroll at Northeast Missouri State this fall, according to Coach Bruce Craddock, who also announced his schedule for the coming season.

Candidates in the 118-pound class include Tim Highly of Maquoketa, Ia., Rich Cates of St. Charles (Francis Howell) and Darrell Boaz of O'Fallon (Ft. Zumwalt). Others are: 126--Rich Bender of Affton, Tom Highly of Maquoketa, Terry Wies of Francis Howell, Gary Davis of Ft. Zumwalt and Mark Littrell of Smithville; and 134--Joe Pollizzi of Affton, and Ron Venhorst of Muscatine (Ia.) Junior College.

142 pounders--Oswald Thomas of St. Louis (Northwest) and Rod Kluever of Muscatine Junior College; 144--Mike Gluba of Addison Trail, Ill.; 158--Gary Hertling of Olympia Fields, Ill. (Rich Central); 167--Bob Kampe of Camanche, Ia.; 177--Bill Shouse of Brookfield; 190--Dan Parks of New London, Ia.; and heavyweight--Robert Georger of St. Louis (Cleveland).

Jim Schmidt of Davenport, Ia. and Ron Yanley of Mt. Pleasant also plan to attend NMSC.

Pollizzi, Thomas, Kampe, Shouse and Georger were state prep champions, and Parks finished third in the Iowa meet.

"I was generally satisfied with our recruiting efforts, and several from this group should help us next season," Craddock exclaimed.

The 1971-72 slate shows 11 duals, four tournaments, two quadrangulars, one triangular, and the MIAA Conference championships at Rolla on Feb. 26.

Thirteen baseball players have been signed by Northeast Missouri State College Coach Sam Nugent for the 1971-72 season.

All prospects are high school graduates except Terry Eggablood, pitcher-infielder from Marshalltown (Ia.) Junior College, and Walter Kinkeade from Missouri Baptist College in Hannibal.

The 11 high school performers include Mike Crist of Kirksville, Kent Lapsley of Kahoka, Farron Klemme of Hartsburg, James Smith of Ashland, Dan Smith of Dexter, Jim George of Hallsville, Al Rohrbough of La Plata, Terry Hayes of St. Louis Lafayette, Gary Charipar of Cedar Rapids (Ia.) LaSalle, and Bob Sawicki and Dennis Allen of Union.

Crist, an infielder and outfielder, batted .429 last summer as a shortstop for the Kirksville Optimist team in the Missouri-Iowa Babe Ruth League. The Optimists captured the Iowa title, and represented that state in the National Babe Ruth Tourney where Crist posted a .576 figure. His 1969 Kirksville Optimist squad finished second in the Missouri-Iowa circuit.

Lapsley, selected as Kahoka's most outstanding athlete, can pitch or perform at second base, according to the NMSC mentor. He paced his squad in hitting and RBI's averaging about .500 at the plate. Lapsley played for the Keokuk (Ia.) American Legion team this summer.

Klemme, a 5'11", 170 pound infielder-outfielder, was his team's most valuable performer the past two seasons and most valuable senior athlete this past year. He landed on his all-conference listings as a junior and senior. Klemme carried about a .365 average this summer as a member of the Jefferson City American Legion nine.

Dan Smith, an honor student was tutored by A. J. Nugent, the NMSC mentor's brother. The Dexter outfielder-catcher carried a .457 average for his Connie Mack team last summer, and batted .480 this summer. The 5'11", 187 pounder was the outstanding football lineman for the SEMO Conference last fall, helping his gridiron crew finish second in the Missouri AAA playoffs.

James Smith, a 6'1", 175 pound shortstop-pitcher, was tabbed as his squad's most valuable player the past two years and made all-conference as a junior and senior. He charted a .385 average with the bat last season. Smith hit about .350 in summer competition.

George, who can catch or play first base, was an honor student and logged a .320 batting average in high school. He was the backstop for Centralia's Ban Johnson club. George is 6'2" and weighs 183 pounds.

Rohrbough averaged .415 at the plate during four seasons at La Plata High School where he also excelled academically. The 6'2", 170 pound first baseman hit about .385 in Babe Ruth League competition this summer.

Hayes, a 6'0", 182 pound catcher-outfielder, was freshman class president, member of the band and student council and basketball and baseball senior co-captain. During his prep baseball career, he charted an overall .360 figure, spearheading his team to the Missouri State High School championship the past two seasons and making honorable mention all-state as a senior.

He also carried a cumulative .354 average for the Ballwin American Legion Club, the 1970 state runnerup.

Charipar, a 5'9", 170 pound protege of Larry Anderson, former NMSC pitching ace, was a third baseman for Cedar Rapids LaSalle and his local American Legion squad.

Allen, an infielder, is 5'10" and tips the scales at 168 pounds. He was an all-star third baseman for the Union Legion team this summer.

Sawicki, the other Union product, is a 5'11", 165 pound pitcher. He paced his high school in strikeouts, most innings hurled, and most games won. The southpaw was the leading moundsman for his Legion nine.

Twenty-one football players, including five junior college prospects, have been recruited by Northeast Missouri State for the 1971 season, according to Coach Russ Sloan.

"This isn't a large group, but I feel we'll get immediate help this fall from many of these new fellows," the Bulldog skipper remarked.

Eleven of the sixteen high school signees are from the St. Louis area, four of whom performed for Washington Public High School and three for Riverview Gardens.

Junior College products are Bill Brotemarkle, 5'11", 210 pound line-backer from Florissant Valley; Geoffrey Engen, 6'2", 190 pound quarterback from Mesa (Colo.); Nate Derrell, 5'11", 180 pound defensive halfback and John Scripsick, 5'11", 180 pound kicking specialist, both from Pratt (Kan.); and Paul Whalen, 5'10", 170 pound split end from Pittsburgh, Pa.

F. L. Sexton, superintendent of Consolidated School District No. 2 at Sullivan, Mo., was honored at a reception given by the Board of Education and the Community Teachers Association in the high school auditorium. The end of the 1970-71 school year marked the close of Sexton's service to the Sullivan schools, where he was superintendent for 23 years. He, his wife, Leta, and two children, Carol Ann and Jeral, came to Sullivan from New Haven where he had served as superintendent for two years. He had been superintendent at Baring for four years prior to his time in New Haven. Mr. Sexton received a master's degree in administration in 1939 from the University of Missouri. To measure the success and impact he has had in Sullivan, one only has to look at the progress in education that has been made during his term of service. The Sullivan school system has grown from a three building unit situated on one campus to a two-campus complex plus purchased land for the third campus; from a faculty numbering 21 to a faculty of 85; from a student body of 650 to a student body that numbers well over 2,000 students. The district has grown in costs and financial worth also. Back in 1947 the yearly expenditure for education was approximately $100,000. Today the system operates on a million and one quarter yearly budget. Listed as one of the greatest accomplishments in Mr. Sexton's career is the building of Sullivan's present high school. The building is valued at over a million and one half dollars, and was built with one $600,000 bond issue, a feat that gave F. L. Sexton state-wide recognition. Mrs. Sexton has been a primary teacher and their daughter, Carol Ann and her husband, John Alspaugh of Columbia, both hold degrees of Doctor of Mathematics Education from the University of Missouri. Jeral, the Sexton's son, is a design engineer at McDonnell Aircraft in St. Louis. In speaking about his retirement, Mr. Sexton says, "After forty-two years, I am looking forward to new adventures, the renewal of old friendships and the greater enjoyment of my family, especially the grandchildren." July 1, 1971, Mr. and Mrs. Sexton planned to hitch up their shiny new Airstream travel trailer and see places that they have wanted to see for several years.
