President's Comments

We are quite excited about the prospects for next year. First-time freshman enrollments have increased significantly from last year, and we expect to welcome some 1,350 new students this fall. Many of you helped by referring students to your alma mater, and we are grateful for your loyal support. Not only will we have more students, they are good quality students.

While strongly committed to the University's traditional mission in the area of teacher education, the past ten years have brought about many changes. Today the University's curricular offerings have expanded to meet new demands for majors and degrees in non-teaching fields. New programs have been added which have attracted students seeking career options outside the field of education. Additional new programs are being planned in gerontology and business administration at the master's level. These also will provide additional career options and will reflect our philosophy of providing current offerings which are designed to serve the needs of our students.

One of the challenges we face—indeed, one that all higher education institutions face—is keeping up with inflationary costs. While the University has continued to receive excellent support from the legislature and from area legislators for funding (7 percent increase), the Governor chose to reduce this amount to 2 percent. However, we will continue to set as our priorities quality programs, quality faculty, and low tuition charges to our students. We are quite aware of the fact that the principle of low tuition was instrumental in allowing many of our alumni to earn their degrees. We will not make cuts or policy changes in these areas for this year.

As we look to the future of higher education in general and in particular to the future of NMSU, we are stimulated by the opportunities that lie ahead. Your continued loyalty and support are needed and much appreciated. I thank each of you. If your University can be of further service, please let us know.

Best Personal Regards,
Charles J. McClain, President

Students needs key to Residence Hall programs 6

Today nearly half of the University's students are housed in the residence halls, which have seen extensive changes throughout the years. Despite large numbers, individual identity of each student is still a priority.

New Administration/Humanities Building nears completion 12

NMSU's new Administration/Humanities Building is the home of two academic divisions and administrative, student service, and faculty offices. Soon it will be one of the busiest places on campus.

Mr. R. Russell Harrison
Northeast Missouri State University
Kirksville, Missouri

Dear Mr. Harrison,

The report that was given in Nemoscope Summer 1975—page 35—about me was correct.

I do not know who sent it in to NMSU, but I thank them.

At present I am Regent of Pike County DAR—Daughters of the American Revolution—I was treasurer in 1976 of Pike Co. Retired Teachers Association, now Publicity Committee of this organization. I am a life member of AAUW, member of Louisiana Garden Club, Anchor Circle of Methodist Church, OES, and Past Matrons Club. Thanks to my health I can keep active and I am always interested in Northeast Missouri State University. Many of my former pupils are attending NMSU.

Sincerely,
Edna E. McDannold

Dear Mr. Harrison,

To you and your staff I wish to give my thanks for the delightful time I had as a guest at the banquet and luncheon for the class of 1926.

It was indeed a memorable time for me; one I shall always remember.

The corsage, the picture, the plate and the book were gifts I appreciate and treasure.

My sincere thanks.

Sincerely,
Anne Mudd Parcels

Dear Co-Students:

I was greatly surprised to receive notice of Homecoming NMSU '76. I certainly would have been happy to have attended, but suspect there would have been no other of classes as far back as 1908 or 1909, and wonder how you even knew I am still alive and healthy. If you have names and addresses of any of that long ago, will you please let me know.

Those were happy days and I enjoyed several years of teaching in Missouri before joining my husband in California in 1911, where I have made my home, raised a family of three, grandchildren five, ten, one of whom is now a junior in Arizona State University at Tucson, and one a freshman in San Diego University of California, the others ages from 1st grade to high school.

My husband died in 1965. I now reside in an apartment where I do my own work with a cleaning woman twice a month.

I taught some in Calif. and am proud to say I still have a diploma on file in San Diego Education Department for teaching in high school. Arleigh and I both took work in Calif. universities and he held several good positions, one of which was County Superintendent of Imperial County for twelve years.

Thank you for remembering me. I was Effie Pearl Enyeart, but since coming to Calif. I am and have always been Pearl Shibley.

Dear Alumni Office,

Thank you so much for the beautiful time at Homecoming. I am looking forward to more of the same.

By the way, did you ever find my picture pin.

New members appointed to NMSU Board of Regents

Mrs. Mary Erwin, Shelbina, and Mrs. Marietta Jayne, Kirksville, have been appointed to the NMSU Board of Regents by Missouri Governor Joseph Teasdale. Both new members were confirmed by the Senate for the six-year terms and attended their first meeting of the Board on June 21.

Mrs. Erwin is a native of Shelby County. She was graduated from Union Chapel Rural School, the Monroe City High School, and Northeast Missouri State Teachers College. For 45 years she served as a teacher and administrator in the Shelby County schools. She was elected to two terms as Shelby County superintendent of schools, serving from 1959 through 1967. During her superintendency, the county was reorganized into the present two school districts, Shelby County R-IV (South Shelby) and Shelby County C-1 (North Shelby). She retired from the education profession in 1970 after serving as principal of the Hunnewell Building for the Monroe City R-I District.

She is a member of the Iota Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, Shelby County Historical Society, and is a 43-year member of the Grange. As delegate to the National Grange from 1952 to 1962, she was honored to the highest position National Grange offers to women. She is a member of the Shelbina United Methodist Church.

She was married to Paul E. Erwin on May 6, 1931. They owned and operated a 426-acre farm in the Oak Dale community and were breeders of registered angus cattle until January 1, 1977, at which time they sold their farm and built a new home in Shelbina where they now live.

Mrs. Jayne is a native of Kirksville. She was educated in the Kirksville public schools. She received the A.A. degree from Gulf Park College in Gulf Port, Mississippi, in 1940, B.A. degree from Northeast Missouri State University in 1941, and a B.S. degree in Secondary Education from the University of Missouri in 1942. She is a former teacher in the Kirksville public schools and served twelve years on the Kirksville School Board, including four years as president.

She is married to Edward R. Jayne, prominent Kirksville attorney, who also served as a member of the Board of Regents from 1961 through 1967. They have three children including Edward R. Jayne II, a graduate of the United States Air Force Academy and now Associate Director of the Office of Budget and Management of the United States Government in Washington, D.C.; H. Martin Jayne, also a graduate of the Air Force Academy, an attorney now serving with the Air Force Legal Department in Arkansas; and Thomas Reed Jayne, an attorney serving as clerk for Federal Judge Kenneth Wangelin in St. Louis. Mrs. Jayne is active in a number of organizations in the Kirksville area.

Educator Honored

Dr. Elden A. Lichty (B.A. '28) was recently honored as one of the four pioneers in the field of junior community college education in the state of Illinois. At a banquet in his honor on Nov. 18, the Illinois Council of Community College Administrators made a presentation to Dr. Lichty and three other distinguished men in the field.

Dr. Lichty is credited with identifying the seven guidelines for the establishment of junior colleges, which were incorporated into the Illinois Public Junior College Act of 1965.

After receiving his B.A. from Northeast, he continued his education at the University of Missouri where he received his master's in 1929 and his doctorate in 1945.

He was a founding faculty member of the Muscatine Junior College where he served for nearly 15 years as instructor of psychology and Director of Athletics. In 1945 he became principal of the Illinois State (Normal) University Elementary Training School. After involvement with the American Association of Junior Colleges, he developed a program at I.S.U. to prepare professionals to serve the Junior colleges. His work in this area earned him the respected title of Dean of Community College Professors throughout the state.

In October of 1976, he was awarded the "stretch" Miller Friend of Sports Award at I.S.U. for his involvement in the University's Athletic events.

Student needs key to Residence Hall programs By Bruce Arnold

From the boarding houses of the 1900's to the modern residence halls of today, the University student housing program has undergone extensive changes.

In 1930, if you were fond of rearranging your furniture, you were to first ask permission, according to the Book of College Courtesy. In A B C's For Freshmen, 1937-38, it was thought to be "in the best interests of the students to remain in their rooms after 9:30 p.m." Dating was restricted to Wednesdays, and weekends.

"Hot bath water was to be provided at least twice a week," for students in 1940 and proper attire for the women's dining halls in the early 60's was "dresses or skirts, Monday through Thursdays." Slacks and Bermuda shorts were allowed on Fridays and Saturdays only.

Today, the philosophical, as well as the physical features of residence hall living, have changed.

"When you consider a student spends 65 percent of his/her time in the residence hall, the potential for student growth is unlimited," said Ron Gaber, director of Housing at the University. With this in mind, Gaber is developing a series of programs for the student.

His philosophy revolves around the idea that "students are adults and if given responsibility, they will accept it." Two primary expectations of residents are to respect one another's rights and accept responsibility for one's actions. Based upon this responsibility, students are free to exhibit their choice of behavior.

Currently, the residence halls house 2,276 students, nearly half of the University's population, in seven halls: Blanton, Brewer, Centennial, Dobson, Grim, Missouri and Ryle. Fifty-one per cent of those students are freshmen.

With such enormous numbers, Gaber thinks identity for each and every resident is the number-one priority. In order to achieve this, qualified housing personnel is of the utmost importance. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin at La Crosse with a master's degree in student personnel, Gaber believes trained and qualified personnel are instrumental to a successful housing program.

Starting this year, residence hall directors are required to have a master's degree in either student personnel or guidance and counseling with past residence hall experience. Assistant hall directors are required to have a bachelor's degree and experience in residence hall living. Both are required to live in the halls.

Along with these professionals, student resident assistants are employed on each floor of the hall. They must have a 2.2 cumulative grade point average and have lived in a residence hall for a minimum of one semester.

An extensive training program for housing personnel was initiated this year. Personnel were expected to return to campus one week prior to the fall semester to attend several workshops and prepare the halls for opening. An eight-week, one-hour course entitled, "Introduction to Residence Hall Personnel" is required of all Resident Assistants.

The Residence Hall Association, also a new concept in the program, provides a central resource pool to develop hall leadership and programming. It also provides the students with an effective way to review policy and make recommendations for change. Programming includes educational experiences such as guest speakers on a variety of topics, intramural athletic competition, and inter-hall visitation. This year movies have been sponsored, authorities on plants, race relations and assertiveness have spoken, a bridal fair has been given, and numerous athletic events have been scheduled. "The Residence Hall Association is encouraging and supporting student input into the development of a better residence hall environment," Gaber said.

Such events help the residents get to know one another and establish an identity with college life. By developing this identity, students can better handle their own problems and learn to live together in the residence halls, according to Gaber.

To Paula Switzer, head resident at Centennial Hall, "it's like acting as a big 'sis at times." Just the fact that she's been through college and lived in the halls, contributes tremendously to her ability to relate to the girls. As far as the new philosophy, Paula believes "we've come a long way just in the last year." A look at the purpose of the residence hall council proves that. In 1974-75, the sole purpose of the organization was to "determine and maintain orderly and courteous standards of behavior within the hall."

Today, this purpose has changed to "improve and support residence hall living." "There's a better feeling about residence hall living," says Paula. Students enjoy living in the halls. They can contract to paint their room, pick up necessities at "The Short Stop" and attend any number of hall-sponsored events.

Besides the philosophical change in structure, a great deal of physical renovation is also taking place. This year's renovation plans include Dobson, Ryle, and Missouri Halls.

In Dobson, one wing of the first floor has been completely remodeled for a lounge, mailroom, and recreational facilities. In addition to this, each floor is now equipped with a kitchenette, a color T.V., a lounge, and a recreation area, according to Gaber. All hallways have been carpeted and walls repainted.

During the Christmas break, the Ryle Hall lounge was completely remodeled, redecorated and refurbished. The remodeling included all new carpeting, furnishings and repainting.

Renovation of Missouri is scheduled for this summer, said Gaber. Expansion will take place on each floor to provide new lounges, recreation and kitchen space. All hallways will be carpeted and painted.

Eventually, Gaber hopes to have all halls carpeted to cut down on the noise level. With the present support that he has received from the administration, he feels that this goal will be achieved. Total cost of Ryle & Dobson renovation was $310,000.00. This money was generated by the intake from the halls, said Gaber.

The student is the prime concern and whether they be housed in the "cardboard castles" or Centennial Hall, students' needs are still the same and the Housing Office at NMSU is trying to meet those needs.

The Short Stop in Centennial Hall sells necessary items to students.

A floor lounge in Dobson Hall features comfortable furniture and modern design.

Mrs. Creola Jones Counselor retires from NMSU

On June 30, 1977, Mrs. Creola Jones retired from NMSU after nine years of service as a Freshman Counselor. Her retirement completed 35 years of experience as an educator. Jones taught for 26 years in the Cairo School System; she established the first guidance program at Cairo High School and served as the school's first guidance counselor.

Jones was recently honored at a reception held in NMSU's Alumni Room, hosted by the Freshman Counseling office. At the reception, she was presented an engraved silver tray from Sigma Kappa Sorority, which she has sponsored for the past several years.

She attended Moberly Junior College and holds a B.S.E. degree in Elementary and Secondary Education and a M.A. degree in Counseling and Guidance from NMSU. Jones is a member of the Business and Professional Women—of Kirksville and has served as past president of the Kirksville Club.

MSU extends humanities programs an era of specialization and classified responsibilities, creators are recognizing the perate need for general education. Consumer advisory councils urge consumer education; industrial magnates employees who can adapt fluid positions rather than specific, narrowly defined jobs.

Northeast Missouri State
University, in an effort to meet this need, offers several general undergraduate humanities courses and a graduate degree lectures and music in their homes. Correspondence, assignments, and examinations are mailed to the professor on campus, and returned with individual comments.

This summer a five-day
workshop entitled "The Art Museum as a Learning Resource" will be offered in conjunction with the St. Louis Art Museum. Methods of unifying the arts into a general field of study will be presented, especially using the resources of the museum. In addition to this workshop Northeast will offer FA 611, Humanities II, a graduate class in the history of the arts, in St. Louis.

Two other five-day courses, one in aesthetics and one in related arts, will be presented this summer at the famous camp for music and art at Dartington Hall in England.
Faculty from NMSU will be teaching these classes and several students from the United States are expected to join the English Scholars.

The humanities faculty believes that humanities classes should continue to be offered to both degree-seeking and non-degree students by independent study and extension because humanistic attitudes in education and study, as well as a methodological approach to the arts, are invaluable to the average consumer as well as the scholar. Those interested in learning more about a particular course or program should write to the Division of Fine Arts, Northeast Missouri
State University, Kirksville,
Missouri, 63501.

Aesthetic Education Humanities The master's program is the only one of its kind in the country, and is available partially through correspondence and extension classes. For example, FA 503, Related Arts-Humanities, a course that allows people to broaden their understanding of the arts and Western culture, is available both as independent study and as an extension course this term. As an independent study, audio-visual materials—more than 100 slides, music and poetry tapes, lecture and student response cassettes—are sent back and forth between student and professor. This course is currently being offered as an extension class in St. Louis to 40 people, including teachers, administrators, and nurse officers.

Another independent study course offered for both graduate and undergraduate humanities credit is a Music Appreciation course, aired on radio stations for the second term of its pilot program. Students receive a course syllabus and complete a script of the serialized program, and listen to weekly

Outstanding Counselor named

Mrs. Merle Lewis, counselor at Putnam R-I High School, Unionville, was named Outstanding Counselor in Missouri for 1976 at the Missouri Guidance Association convention in Jefferson City, Oct. 3-5.

Prior to her appointment in 1971 as counselor at Putnam R-I, Mrs. Lewis taught in the rural elementary schools of Milan and Unionville.

She received her master's degree in elementary school administration from Kansas City Teachers College in 1959 and her bachelor's degree in education from Northeast Missouri State University in 1952. Currently she is working on a doctorate from the University of Kansas. She is Association.

Liberal Arts essential to Nursing Program

Fibula and clavicle, gauze and anesthetic are all part of a nurse's daily life. But so are U.S. History notes, English composition papers, and music appreciation albums. "What have these to do with nursing?"
you might ask. "Everything," would answer Dr. Grace Devitt, Head of the University's Nursing Division. The baccalaureate degree program here offers professional education in nursing based on the belief that man is a bio-psycho-social being whose behavior is an adaptive response to forces influencing his life. The first two years of study are spent pursuing a program of liberal arts and pre-professional studies. After admission to the Division of Nursing, the junior and senior years are devoted primarily to the nursing major and related courses.

These have been the goals of the nursing program at NMSU since its reinstatement in 1971.
Between 1961-1970, the baccalaureate program in Nursing was offered under the Division of Health & Physical Education.
In 1970 the decision was made to close enrollment and phase out the program. A feasibility study conducted by a committee of concerned citizens and chaired by Dr. William FitzSimmons, University professor of music, advised that the program be continued under an autonomous academic division. At that time the recommendation was followed, and a faculty was appointed with Dr. Grace Devitt as the Head of the Nursing Division.

Dr. Devitt is an active executive in the National League of Nursing, the professional organization for nurses in this country. She chairs the Heartland Region, a group of midwestern states, as well as presiding over the Missouri League. Her intention is to promote and maintain the high standards of quality necessary in professional nursing, and to further nursing as an important discipline within higher education.

Sen. Norman Merrell

Senator Merrell criticizes CBHE budget

By Thomas R. Shrout, Jr.

Governor Joseph P. Teasdale vetoed about $500,000 out of the appropriation approved for
Northeast Missouri State
University by the General Assembly for the 1977-78 fiscal year. The action by the Governor came July 29. Also cut from higher education was $303,000 slated for Lincoln University. The cuts leave both institutions with two per cent increases, the smallest of all the publicly funded colleges in the state.

Teasdale in vetoing the recommendations of the legislature said: "If I had allowed them (the increases), you would have every other university wanting to circumvent the budget process. I'm backing up the Coordinating Board for Higher Education (CBHE) which made the initial funding recommendations that Teasdale adopted.

However, the Governor did not back the Coordinating Board's $5 million recommendation for funding of the Missouri Student Grant Program. He let stand the additional $1 million passed by the legislature. About 80 per cent of the funds for this program go to private colleges.

Following the veto, Kirksville
president Dr. Charles J.
McClain issued the following statement:

"Needless to say, I was surprised to learn of the governor's action. How can one rationalize recommendations ranging from 15 per cent for some institutions to two per cent for others?"

"I am hopeful that we can work with the Governor in such a way that he will reconsider his action. I believe Governor

Teasdale wants to be fair.
"It is more a matter of providing all the information to make an objective decision and I do not personally believe he has been fully informed."

Earlier in the year, Senate
President Pro Tem Norman Merrell said he felt the CBHE had "stepped out of bounds in getting involved in the budget making process for the state's colleges and universities."

Merrell told a regional meeting of the Missouri State Teachers Association that the CBHE's role should be "to prevent overlap of programs and to encourage programs where ones don't exist and where there are demands for

Vincent Price

Vincent Price performs in spring Lyceum Series

VINCENT PRICE, well known to motion picture, television and theatre audiences, is equally well known to lovers of art, collectors of cookbooks, readers of his books and newspaper articles, as well as the thousands who have seen his one-man shows and listened to his lectures. This versatile man appeared on campus Feb. 22 at 8 p.m. under the auspices of University's The Lyceum Series.

Born in St. Louis, Vincent Price's initial aim in life was to become a teacher and collector of art, an aim stimulated by his purchase of a Rembrandt etching when he was only 12 years old. He attended Country Day School in St. Louis and went to Yale University to major in art. He continued his studies at London University while working for a master's degree.

While in London he satisfied another artistic interest—the theatre, and obtained his first theatrical role as a lark when he applied for a role and got it. From that point on, his thoughts turned to the theatre and his first role was in the London production of "Victoria Regina." Vincent Price was brought along to play Prince Consort Albert opposite Helen Hayes, and this American debut made him a star overnight.

Since that time he has been a leading film, television and stage star, and it was as a guest on the late Edward R. Murrow's "Person to Person" program that a nationwide audience became aware of his extensive art collection in his home in Beverly Hills. He is patron of several contemporary American artists and has received an honorary doctor's degree from the California College of Arts and Crafts, and LL.D. from Ohio Wesleyan University and a DFA from Columbia College in Columbia, Missouri.

Mr. Price has starred in more than 100 films, among the best known of which are "Song of Bernadette," "Laura," "Dragonwyck," "House of Seven Gables," "The Ten Commandments," "The Raven," "The Pit and the Pendulum" and "The Abominable Dr. Phibes." He has appeared on more than 500 major television shows and more than 1,000 radio shows. In addition, he has appeared as narrator with orchestras such as the Saint Louis Symphony, the El Paso Symphony, the Denver Symphony, and with the Roger Wagner Chorale. His recordings of poetry, especially the works of Edgar Allan Poe, have become classics.

A man of many talents and interests, Vincent Price seems to be equally proficient in all of them. Certainly his platform appearances have earned for him a reputation as one of the best speakers of our time.

Higher education a tradition for Myers family

Until queried by the Alumni Office, Ida Witte Myers B.S.E. 1957 & M.A. 1960 says she hadn't "given much thought to our way of life." We (husband Michael) had children in college 22 years—at one time the three sons, their wives and myself were all enrolled at NMSU." Now living at R.R. 1, Rutledge, Mo. 63563, Mrs. Myers retired in June, 1975, after 10 years as a teacher and 13 years working with special services for the handicapped in southern Iowa. The list of her family's educational accomplishments reads like a "Who's Who in Education." Dr. Michael J. Myers B.S.E. 1959 & M.S. 1960 also holds a B.S. degree from M.U. and the Ed. D. from New York U. He and his wife, Callie L. Hicks Myers B.S.E. 1959 & M.A. 1961, live at 2619 Irwin, Park Ridge, Ill., where he is assistant superintendent at Maine Township Sr. H.S. and she is principal of the elementary school. Max A. Myers B.S.E. 1963 & M.A. 1966 and wife, Mary L. McGee Myers B.S.E. 1963, live at 608 W. North, Bloomfield, Iowa, where he teaches math and aviation in the high school and farms. Mary Lou teaches second grade in Bloomfield. Charles W. Myers lacks just a few hours for a degree from NMSU. He and his wife, Judy Ann Slocum Myers B.S.E. 1963 & M.A. 1970, live in Memphis, Mo. Charles worked as a government engineer in Alaska for nine seasons and is now co-owner (with parents, brothers and sisters) and operator of 1650 acres in Scotland County. Barbara Myers Callahan B.S.E. & M.A. from Southern Illinois U., is married to James D. Callahan, B.S.E. from M.U. and M.A. from the University of Illinois. They live in Godfrey, Illinois. Barbara is an elementary teacher and Jim is a high school counselor, both in Alton, Illinois, and both are working on doctoral degrees at Southern Illinois University. Dr. Beverly E. Myers Cuevas, B.S. & M.D. from the University of Missouri, is married to Dr. Phillip C. Cuevas, B.S. from the University of Southern California and D.D.S. from the University of Texas. They live in Laguna Beach, California. Beverly is a practicing pediatrician at Childrens Hospital, Orange County, Calif., and Phillip is a dentist in Santa Ana. The Myers family tradition of higher education will surely continue, as the oldest of 14 grandchildren is now considering which college he will attend in two years.

Henry C. Gardner, Alumni Association member of Unionville, Mo. 63565, is president of Farmers Bank of Unionville.

Marilyn Johnson Brazil, former student and Alumni Association member, and husband, Jack, live at 2752 St. Lawrence, Riverside, Calif. 92504. He is president and she is vice president of Brazil Van & Storage. Their children are Kathy, Erin, Jackie and Kirsten.

Coordinating Board names new commissioner

The Coordinating Board for Higher Education has named Bruce Robertson as its new commissioner. He replaces Dr. Jack Cross who resigned under pressure in May 1976. Before coming to Jefferson City Robertson served as assistant chancellor for research and development in the New Jersey Department of Higher Education.

Robertson holds the doctor's degree in history from the University of Wisconsin and has been on the faculties of Kent State and Rutgers Universities.

One of the biggest challenges facing Robertson will be to develop a system for determining funding recommendations for the state colleges and universities. The paltry increases recommended by the CBHE in recent years has been the source of much irritation to college presidents.

Another challenge will be the implementation of a state master plan for higher education currently being developed by a cross section of more than 100 individuals from across the state. CBHE members reportedly were impressed with the master plan he developed in New Jersey by Robertson.

The master plan is not complete, but when it is implemented it is expected to impact the kinds of programs, the funding amounts and the governance of each of the state institutions as well as the relationship of the private schools to the educational needs of the state.

Bruce Robertson, new commissioner for the Coordinating Board of Higher Education

Former student promoted to assistant vice president

Former NMSU student, Jolene Delaney, has been promoted to assistant vice president of Kansas City ISC Financial House, Inc., consumer finance subsidiary of ISC Financial Corporation. She will continue her responsibilities as administrative assistant in the home office. Miss Delaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Delaney of near Adair, has worked for Financial House for 12 years and is the second woman to hold this position. She is a recent recipient of the Black Coat Award in recognition of outstanding service and loyalty to the company. Currently there are 220 Financial House branch offices serving customers in 22 states. The Financial House concept combines personal and family loans, financing for household appliances and furniture, life and property insurance and a year-round tax service.

Ice House Theatre hosts summer workshop

Time: 1854. Samuel Clemens, the author better known as Mark Twain, is a young man of nineteen. Place: Hannibal, Missouri. Setting: The Stillwell Cold Storage Company, a newly built ice house—the first of its kind west of the Mississippi. The hired hands have taken axes and chisels, hooks and grapples out onto the river, the same that riverboats paddle in the summer, and have hauled huge chunks of ice by horses led back to the ice-house. Thick walls, heavily insulated, keep the temperature inside below 30 degrees. The men, red-faced with stinging hands, take their seats inside, waiting for the curtain to rise.

Sound strange? It's an anachronism, but the stage, actors and theatre seats are all in the Stillwell Cold Storage Company building today. The theatre is appropriately called the Ice House Theatre, and is the setting for NMSU'S SUMMER THEATRE WORKSHOP. With the support of the Hannibal Foundation and the Missouri Council on the Arts, many young professional actors at the theatre have achieved successful careers. In June of this year three company members are playing important roles "on Broadway."

One of the main purposes of the theatre is to provide a "laboratory" situation in which college students can improve their knowledge and skills in theatrical production by working with professional actors and technicians. Fifteen hours of credit are offered at the Ice House Theatre by the drama department. Up to nine hours of academic credit are granted for a summer's participation in acting, technical theatre, and business.

The company will assemble Sunday, June 19, to begin rehearsals the following morning, and the season will end on the evening of August 14. Six plays will be chosen to run in a season of summer stock, one of which will be selected for its appeal with children. For more information about the Ice House Theatre program, write: Alfred H. Srnka, Department of Drama, NMSU.

Dr. Ted Mittler

Mittler elected to State Teachers Association

Dr. Ted Mittler (B.S.E. '61 & M.A. '67) was recently elected 1st Vice President of the Missouri State Teachers Association.

Mittler has been a physics teacher in St. Charles for 14 years and has served as science department chairman for the past four. He received his doctorate in educational administration from St. Louis University in 1976.

In education, Mittler has served as president and chief negotiator for the St. Charles Community Teachers Association, member of the Greater St. Louis Teachers Association Presidents Council and host committee member for the Missouri State Teachers Association convention.

In the community, he has been president of the St. Charles Junior Chamber of Commerce, secretary of the City Charter Commission, director and executive committee member of the Missouri Jaycees and a member of the Municipal Park Board.

NMSU awards first Specialist Degree in Education

Larry D. Crim B.S.E. 1963 & M.A. 1970 and Steven M. Lowenberg B.S.E. 1971 & M.A. 1974 were the first recipients of the Specialist Degree in Education from NMSU on August 13. The degree is a six-year program which recognizes achievement beyond the master's level and is presently offered only in Education Administration. There are 27 specialist candidates presently on campus and a total of 30 officially enrolled in the program. Crim is Superintendent of Scotland County R-I School in Memphis, Mo, and Lowenberg is high school principal at Palmyra, Mo.

Mary Belle Martin

Instructor shows watercolor

Mary Belle Martin, assistant professor of art at Northeast Missouri State University, has had a watercolor accepted in the juried regional art exhibition, entitled "Women Artists 77" in the University of Missouri-Kansas City Fine Arts Gallery.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Kansas City chapter of Women's Caucus for Art and the Missouri Council on the Arts.

Computer aids energy awareness

Have you tested your E.Q. (Energy Quotient) lately? For instance, did you know that the U.S. consumes its fossil fuels one million times faster than the rate of production, that more than a third of the world's energy is consumed by the six percent of the world's population living in the U.S., and that by the year 2000 American total energy demand will be twice as much as it is today?

To acquaint the public with the complexities of the energy-environment situation, the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) has developed a nationwide network of Citizen Energy Environment Workshops. Denman Evans, University assistant professor of science, and 64 other scientists met at the Northwest College and University Association for Science in October. They attended sessions and supervised the final assembly and calibration of the ERDA's Energy Environment Simulator, a key teaching component of the workshops. Throughout the year Evans will give 20 workshops to interested community groups in northeast Missouri and northern Illinois.

The admission-free workshops center around the simulator which resembles an "electronic time machine." It is an especially designed analog computer that simulates real world energy conditions and, as Evans says, "gives its players a chance to run the world for awhile."

Energy resources, energy demands, and environmental effects are programmed into the device. As the clock speeds time by at the rate of a century a minute, participants must make decisions about the allocation of energy resources. They do this by turning dials on remote panels in response to the changing situation. The simulator constantly translates these commands into new conditions. The sequence continues until all the fossil fuels are exhausted -- and the game ends. The object is to maintain a supply of fossil fuels for as long as possible and to keep the environment as clean as possible.

From remote panels, Evans says, teams of players control the outcome. In the energy supply category, they must choose from coal, petroleum, gas, hydroelectric, nuclear and geothermal reserves. The players control the energy distribution into two pools: either chemical or electrical. The energy demands are divided into three major areas--industrial, transportation, and household-commercial. The last section of the simulator deals with the environmental impact--air pollution, thermal effects, radioactive wastes, etc.

Evans says that most Americans don't realize we are facing an impending crisis.

"We can't continue our exponential growth with fixed supplies. Soon, within the next 3 to 4 years, we must move toward alternate fuels such as solar energy, geothermal, nuclear power, and trash. The University is very fortunate to have been chosen to participate in this important citizen awareness project."

Evans urges any adult group interested in participating in a workshop to contact him. The workshops are designed to last up to three hours and can accommodate 25-30 persons ideally, but may be adapted to include larger groups.

Director of Counseling and Testing retires from Navy

Dr. Robert M. Wright, NMSU Director of Counseling and Testing, has recently been awarded "Certificate of Retirement" from the U.S. Navy after 36 years of affiliation. Wright served 5 years active duty, 17 years on ready reserve duty, and 14 years on the inactive (retired) list. During his naval career, Wright accumulated over two thousand hours of flight time as a Naval Aviator.

His naval affiliation began in October 1940 when he was inducted at USNR Air Base (Fairfax Field) in Kansas City, Missouri, where he completed solo flight training.

Wright received his wings in July 1941 after completing intermediate and advanced flight training in Florida and served as a flight instructor from September 1941 through February 1943. He was then assigned to duty aboard the USS Cowpens, which operated off the Atlantic Coast near Trinidad, prior to sailing for the Hawaiian Islands.

Wright received his first combat experience in the October 1943 bombing attack on Wake Island; from then through July 1944, he participated in 15 major Naval Operations in the Central, Western, and South Pacific areas and was awarded Air Medal and Unit Citations. Wright also served in the Saipan area of the Pacific prior to the invasion of Japan.

In November 1945, Wright was released from active duty and has since served several years of reserve and inactive duty. He was awarded the "Certificate of Retirement" on March 7, 1977, with the rank of Lt. Commander, USNR (Ret.).

Wright said he viewed his naval career as a broadening experience which gave him the opportunity to meet many people in many types of situations. He feels he has gained many administrative skills and a sense of maturity from his naval career. He still holds a high degree of interest in the Navy and is proud of his affiliation with it. Wright views his naval retirement as an end to just one phase of his life and said that the secret to a happy life is to remain active.

Wright has served NMSU as Director of Counseling and Testing and Professor of Education since July 1958. His hometown is Lebanon, Missouri. He was married to Jean Prine of Mobile, Alabama, in September 1941. Their daughter, Barbara Jean, received both the BSE and MA degrees from NMSU.

Dr. Denman Evans, University assistant professor of science, demonstrates the Energy Environment Simulator. The simulator is an "electronic time machine" that determines the environmental impact of long-term use of coal, petroleum, gas, hydroelectric, nuclear and geothermal reserves.

OLD MAKES WAY FOR NEW

The Bulldog Inn was razed in stages during June to make room for the new campus mall. The Inn, a tradition with students since it was built in 1933, used to house an eating establishment, a place to pause from studies.

Stenographic Services of the University took over the building in 1967 when the coffee shop was closed.

New Administration/Humanities Building nears completion

By Terrie Jo Snyder

Deep-red bricks, large-tinted glass windows, and canvas energy-saving awnings comprise the outside of the long, angular-shaped structure covering approximately 71,962 square feet. Upon entering, the sense of spaciousness could be almost overwhelming, but soon the center of attention becomes a large, circular lightwell, an architectural creation, soon to be the point around which much activity at NMSU will revolve. WELCOME to the inside of the new Administration-Humanities Building.

Plans for the $3,082,000 structure began in the spring of 1974 with an appropriation of capital funds from the Missouri Legislature, says Ray E. Klinginsmith, dean of administration and general counsel. Klinginsmith says that the building, which is currently in its final stages, began in May 1975 by the Reed-Lawhon Construction Company.

Although construction continues, classrooms were finished and classwork began in the new building on June 7, the opening day of the first summer session. The Divisions of Language and Literature and Social Science, Stenographic Services, and several faculty members were the first to occupy the new building.

The circular lightwell psychologically and physically divides the building; one side houses administration, the other, academics.

Financial Aids, Housing, Freshman Counseling, Registrar, Business Office, Stenographic Services, and Data Processing will be located on the ground level of the administrative side. Located directly above these offices will be the President's Office, External Relations, Campus Planner, Budget Director, Dean of Administration, Dean of Instruction, Dean of Graduate Studies, Dean of Students, and the Admissions Office. Klinginsmith says that all offices are scheduled to be moved into their new locations by the beginning of the fall 1977 semester.

Since the building was designed to be more than a home for administrative offices and classrooms, the use of color and modern furnishings strive to make the building an exciting and appealing place where employees and students would want to be. They also serve as decorative guides. For instance, beige carpeting, large potted plants, and brightly colored sofas decorate the administrative side.

Terry Smith, dean of students, says he feels the "most important" purpose served by the new building will be to "consolidate a great number of offices into one building, which will allow the University to more effectively serve students." Since about "two-thirds of student services" will be housed there, Smith says he feels that this will allow administrators "more student contact." Smith says he views the consolidation of offices as a convenience for visitors and students.

Purple carpeting decorates the academic side. Why purple? Because it's the traditional Bulldog color. But the choice of purple is about the only thing that can be described as "traditional" about the building, especially the academic area.

A typical classroom, in addition to purple carpeting, has off-white walls, red-orange chairs, and grayish-white chalkboards. The chalkboards also may be used as projection screens. Larger classrooms can accommodate up to 85 students, while smaller seminar rooms were designed to serve as few as 15.

Further innovation may be found in the building. One architectural goal that was considered in the overall plan of the building was to design a structure that would actively involve students in their own educations. An example is the Psychology Office, part of the Social Science Division, which is housed on the second floor of the academic side. Special features of this area include a Psychology Statistic and Computer Lab for data reduction and analysis, a Control Room and Research Booths to aid students in experimental research, and a Research Room for instructional demonstrations and group research. This area also will contain an animal colony-storage room to be used to house laboratory animals such as rats, and will serve as a storage space for psychological laboratory equipment.

Dr. Gilbert C. Kohlenberg, head of the Social Science Division, says he feels that this new facility will be an improvement for the Psychology Office which was previously housed in the Laughlin Building. He says the new building will provide his division with "more room and office space."

Some members of the Social Science Division have moved into their new offices. Bing Kun Shao, professor of economics, says that compared to his old office that the new one is "certainly an improvement" and that he is "satisfied" with it. Commenting on the building itself, Shao says "I like it so far."

Dale Robert Martin, associate professor of geography, says his new office will be "more private" and will give him "more space." Martin described the building as "beautiful" and says it has a "nice atmosphere."

A "pleasant environment" as Kathy Loy describes it, is also evident on the third floor which houses the Division of Language and Literature and its new Individualized Learning Center. She is currently directing the Writing Clinic, located in the Individualized Learning Center, while working on a master's degree. Loy says she feels that the new facility will offer students more "variety" of learning situations than did the clinic previously located in Nason Hall. The new center will serve up to 60 students. It will facilitate individualized reading, small and large group study-discussion sessions, and will make available the use of various audiovisual materials.

Dr. Edwin Carpenter, head of Language and Literature, says he feels the building is a "very workable facility" for his division. Speaking for his staff, Carpenter says everyone is "extremely happy about the move." Carpenter says he feels that faculty morale will improve as a result of the new environment, and with it the quality of division programs.

Students relax on red sofas which decorate the Language and Literature Lounge area.

The new Administration/Humanities Building as seen from the University quadrangle.

A view of the new Administration/Humanities Building from the corner of Franklin and Normal Streets.

Herman Wilson, professor of English, described his recent move to the new building as a "frustrating state of transition." Wilson was working on a research project when his books and personal office belongings were moved from Nason Hall to a locked seminar room in the A-H Building. For several days, Wilson was unable to get to his materials and says that for a short time he felt like "a man without a country." Despite the temporary inconvenience, now that Wilson is in his new office he says he likes the privacy, book space and built-in equipment. He says that in general he is "pleased about the whole thing."

Such temporary inconveniences are all a part of moving and Wilson's experience is not unique. Jolene Motter, Stenographic Services receptionist and stenographer, says that shortly after Steno moved into the new building that a box of printed work was misplaced in a storage area. After the work was reprinted, the original copies were found. Motter says that right now, while construction continues, that some people are having trouble locating the new Steno quarters. She says that when many visitors walk through the door that their expressions seem to say, "Oh, I've finally found you!" Motter says she likes the new building and describes it as "new, nice, and clean."

Student reactions also were favorable. Senior Carol Banderman says she likes the new building because "it's new." Recent alumnae Mary Ann Templeton says that the "architectural set-up" of the building should be "conductive to learning" and says she feels the building has a "good atmosphere."

Chances are that in the future students and visitors at NMSU will find that the new A-H Building is one of the busiest places on campus. The consolidation of administrative and student service offices and the housing of two academic divisions should prove to be a great convenience for many. The use of decorative guides such as color and furnishings and the use of architectural guides such as the circular lightwell, which divides the two sides of the building, should provide easy access to almost any location within the building. As far as NMSU is concerned, the new Administration-Humanities Classroom Building is definitely "where it's at."

The University mall and fountain can be seen from the Language and Literature Division office located on the third floor.

University computers were shut down for approximately 2 1/2 days when Data Processing moved into the new building. Full computer service was regained three weeks after the move.

Stenographic Services was among the first offices to settle into their new headquarters.

The circular lightwell physically and psychologically divides the building into academic and administrative areas.
