A WEEKLY GUIDE TO HAPPENINGS AROUND CAMPUS
MONDAY, JUNE 9, 1986

CALENDAR ISSUE

RIGHT ON THE MONEY

In its May issue, Money magazine published a list of 10 up-and-coming public schools. Among the universities listed was NORTHEAST MISSOURI STATE UNIVERSITY. To identify them, Money polled education associations, high school counselors and professors of higher education. Criteria suggested by these authorities were admissions selectivity, emphasis on undergraduate education, emphasis on a residential rather than a commuting student population and an effort to reach beyond the region, state and even the U.S. for a portion of their student bodies. The following is an excerpt from this publication.

Northeast Mo. State University Kirksville, Mo.

Enrollment: 6,320

Total cost for state residents:
$4,800

Total cost for out-of-staters:
$5,760

Acceptance Rate: 67%

This school in rural Kirksville, (pop. 17,000), 190 miles northwest of St. Louis, has attracted attention from educators nationwide for launching a testing program designed to grade the institution as well as the students. The effort at education quality control, started in 1974, now requires students to take standardized tests as freshmen and again as sophomores in math, English, the sciences and other subjects. By analyzing the results, Northeast Missouri educators feel they can monitor a student's progress while also measuring the effectiveness of teaching at the school. Curriculum standouts: accounting, foreign languages, music, nursing and psychology. Out-of-staters, mostly from Iowa and Illinois, make up 30% of the student body, minorities, 5%.

Northeast Notables

JIM BARNES, LANGUAGE and LITERATURE, has had his poem "La Plata, Missouri: Turkey Season" accepted for publication in the spring issue of "The Ohio Review." Barnes also has a sonnet sequence appearing in the spring issue of "Interim," a literary magazine published by the University of Nevada.

WILMA SCOTT, PROJECTS DEPARTMENT, was recently honored by the Upper Midwest Association of College and University Housing Officers. Scott received a certificate of recognition for outstanding service to NMSU's Residence Life Program.
